SLAYING IS BAFFLING

Ready To Start Testimony Today In Phoenix Case

Jury Of Middle Aged Men Will Hold Fate Of Ruth Judd For Trunk Killings

STATE ALIENIST WATCHES WOMAN

Spectators Jam Small Courtroom To Glimpse Woman Accused Of Horrible Crime

By ARTHUR L. MAREK
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 21—"Winsome Winnie" Ruth Judd" frail ethereal daughter of a Darlington, Ind., preacher was to go into court today to face a jury of middle-aged family men who will try her for the Phoenix "trunk murder."

Mrs. Judd is accused of shooting Agnes Anne Leroi, husky red haired nurse and blonde Hedvig Samuelson, ultra-feminine invalid teacher, packing their bodies in trunks and taking them to Los Angeles.

Ruth Is Unmoved

For two days Mrs. Judd sat unmoved while attorneys debated qualifications of jurors.

More than 500 persons tried to occupy the 85 spectators seats in the courtroom. In the jostling crowd were many men in wide-brimmed sombrerors, typical of this land of hot sunshine and giant cactus. The land of the ten gallon hat had never before been so stirred by a murder, although cattle wars and banditry recorded many blood-stained pages in Arizona history.

When court adjourned late yesterday, Mrs. Judd was in a friendly whispering conversation with Dr. George W. Stephens, state alienist who will testify in an attmept to contradict her defense of insanity.

Reactions Recorded

Mrs. Judd's every reaction during the questioning of prospective jurors was noted by Dr. Stephens. Her face scarcely changed expression.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Believe it or not, but Pa Newc saw a man wading up the Neshannock creek about 5 o'clock last evening, wearing hip boots and carrying what looked like a fishing pole in his hands.

Some ingenious person on East Wallace avenue has arranged a contraption on the globe of a street light so that the rays are broken and do not shine annoyingly into the windows of the homes near by.

There is a certain man, rather prominent in this city, who carries a ball of string in his vest pocket. "It brought me luck at one time, years ago," he explains to questions, but will not enlarge upon the story.

The blue and orange class caps worn by this mid-year class at senior high school appear to be the same as worn by the January class of 1929.

You wouldn't wonder why your letters get delayed in the mails if you had to contend with obstacles that confront the post office. Special clerks must re-address those lacking street directions, and not often are the names of the addressee missing in the city directory. More often they find the address, but occasionally they don't. Today's mail brought letters from a congressman, with names and the city given but minus street locations.

Jameson Hospital Fund Workers To Meet This Evening

Leaders and workers who have enrolled for service in the Jameson Memorial Hospital campaign for $60,000, will meet tonight at six fifteen in the ball room of the Castleton when the formal organization meeting will be held. Two hundred men and women are expected and the campaign of solicitation will start immediately upon conclusion of the dinner-meeting.

For a number of weeks the preliminary plans have been under way, meetings of committees have been held, some advance solicitation has been made, and detail work pointed towards this meeting tonight.

No Overhead

At the very outset of the campaign it should be made clear that there will be no overhead expense entailed. When a citizen subscribes to the fund, one hundred cents of every dollar will go to the Jameson Memorial Hospital. Not even the meals served to the workers will be paid for by the hospital or from the fund that is raised. The gross will be net h. this campaign.

General Chairman Fred L. Rentz and the board of directors of the Jameson Memorial Hospital are most desirous of seeing a full attendance of workers in the Casaleton tonight. The plan of campaign will be outlined questions as to methods will be answered and the campaign formally put under way.

Workers are asked to make every effort to attend the meeting tonight in the Castleton. It will open at six fifteen and will not conflict with evening engagements that have been made. It will be brief but to the point. The important thing is for every worker to attend so that the various divisions may go out fully equipped to conduct the campaign.

Workmen Arriving And Starting Work At Pymatuning Dam

(Special To The News)

ESPYVILLE, Pa., Jan. 21.—Like a patch of khaki colored mushrooms that sprang into being over night, the general concentration camp of the Pymatuning dam project is now perched on the shore line of what will some day be Pennsylvania's largest island lake. With a speed that not even the army could better the camp was constructed, the tents erected, and the permanent buildings put up, and the camp is receiving the first draft of men who will clear the site for the dam. Among them are 45 men from Lawrence county.

To the average citizen of this sleepy little village, things have happened with breath taking speed in the past two weeks. Not so long since Espyville was a quiet little hamlet with a few houses and a couple of general stores. Nothing happened during the day except the arrival of the trains on the Pennsylvania railroad. Away from the hurly burly of the business world Espyville lived, moved and had its being in a rather sleepily peaceful manner.

Men and Machinery

The sleepiness of the village has changed and today a small army of men is concentrated just outside the village limits. Big heavy trucks roar their way through the mud carrying

Open Rebellion In Spain Today

TROOPS RUSHED FROM MADRID

(International News Service)

MADRID, Jan. 21.—Long-smouldering dissatisfaction in the Catalonian area of Spain flared into open rebellion today.

Led by syndicalists and communists, revolutionaries took control of a wide area extending from Manresa to Berga, seizing the telephone lines and railways.

"The situation is serious," a government official told International News Service, "but we are determined to crush it without delay."

Seizure of telephone communications cut the town of navalcles off from the outside world. Transportation was crippled by seizure of the railway.

Indicative of their determination to resort to violance, the revolters seized the Balserent Military Powder Magazine, containing a large stock of dynamite and other explosives.

Troops Are Rushed

The moment word of the uprising reached the government in Madrid, heavy detachments of troops were rushed to the scene of the disturbance from numerous points.

Two hundred civil guards and three battalions of Cavalry were dispatched from Saragossa. The minister of the navy ordered a battleship to proceed, to Barcelona under forced draft with a full complement of troops.

New Castle Men Qualify For Jobs

Only Two Fail To Pass Physical Examination At Pymatuning

DILKS MAY RUN HOME FOR DINNER

Of the entire delegation of men sent to the Pymatuning dam Thursday morning, only two men failed to pass the physical examination, according to Robert L. Meermans, who accompanied the men to the dam. These two were not rejected, but were asked to undergo another examination before they can be accepted.

Dr. Dickey, the physician in charge of the concentration camp at Espyville, was delighted with the fitness of the men sent up. It was the finest group yet sent to the dam, he said. Among the men examined was Earl Lin Dilks, nationally known long distance runner, who was one of the group. Dilks is a railroader, but has not worked for some time due to the depression.

Run Home for Dinner

When Dr. Dickey came to Dilks, Lin said to him, "Doc, see how my heart is acting." Placing the stethoscope over his ribs, Dr. Dickey listened attentively and then said: "sounds perfect to me. Seems to be in splendid shape."

"Just thought I might run home for dinner next Sunday," said Dilks.

"Where do you live?" asked the doctor.

"Not far," said Dilks; "just about 60 miles from here."

Dr. Dickey thought for a time that Dilks was either trying to spoof him or else he was talking wildly. Mr. Meermans then told him that Dilks was a long distance runner, had run several times from New Castle to Erie, and had been one of the cross-country runners when Cash and Carry Pyle staged that ill-starred marathon.

The men were assigned quarters

Atterbury Is Optimistic Of Near Future

(International News Service)

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 21.—"Optimistic and hopeful," W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, today foresaw a return of prosperity via mere stable cotton, oil and wheat prices. "Fifteen cent cotton, dollar wheat, dollar oil—and I believe I see them all coming—will increase your buying power." Atterbury told the chamber of commerce here. "Then we folks back east will begin making a few items and prosperity will roll upon us before we know it."

Plan By Which Prisoners Got Guns Explained

Harold "Monk" Fontaine, Held In Canada, As Ringleader Of Leavenworth Break

SMUGGLED GUNS IN SHOE POLISH

Canadian Charges Against Former Convict Will Be Waived

(International News Service)

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 21.—Harold "Monk" Fontaine, sought by the United States government as the man whose "outside work" resulted in the Leavenworth Prison escape plot last month, will be deported as soon as possible, Orville G. Adams, Canadian immigration director here said today.

Released from Leavenworth last November after serving five years for smuggling aliens across the Detroit river into the United States, Fontaine immediately began operations to send guns and ammunition into the prison, American federal officers stated.

Will Waive Charges

Fontaine surrendered here yesterday to a six year old charge of assaulting an officer. The offense carries a penalty of two years imprisonment under Canadian law, but the charge will be waived, Adams declared, to co-operate with the American government's investigation of the jail break.

The escape plot was planned by Fontaine and the seven convicts involved when he was at the prison, according to the American officers seeking Fontaine.

When Fontaine was released he purchased one half barrel of shoe polish from the same St. Louis dealer who supplies the prison. He had it shipped to Joliet, Ill., to "George H. Clark." Claiming the shipment at Joliet, Fontaine removed the shoe polish, substituting a shotgun, and two machine guns.

Sends Shoe Polish

One of the seven prisoners then received a telegram stating "Your Aunt Emma's very ill." The code arranged as a signal for arrival of the guns and ammunition. Fontaine returned the shipment to St. Louis and then sent it under regular shoe polish markings to the penitentiary.

When the package arrived at the prison, it was admitted without inspection by guards.

Machines Meet Head-On On New Bedford Road Near City

YOUNGSTOWN MAN TERRIBLY INJURED

One man may die and two others were injured Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock when the cars of Harry E. Boak, 218 Park avenue, and P. C. Farwell of 558 West Ravenwood avenue, Youngstown, O., came together in a head-on collision on the New Bedford road, near Scotland Lane.

The injured:

Harry E. Boak, 218 Park avenue, New Castle. Cut on right knee, minor cuts about head and face. Taken to Jameson Memorial hospital, but removed to his home after treatment.

According to an eye witness of the accident, the crash was caused by the car going west to Youngstown passing a truck. This was the car driven by Farwell. He said that he and McCarthy were driving from West Leechburg, Pa., to Youngstown. "I am not sure," he said, "but I must have fallen asleep." Asked if he remembered passing a truck he said he thought he had.

The cars were badly smashed, the engine of Boak's car being torn

Directors Of County Schools Elect Sampson

Is Named To Succeed W. H. Helle, Who Has Been President For Several Terms

TEN-YEAR PLAN FURTHER OUTLINED

Directors of the rural schools of Lawrence County elected Eugene Sampson of R. F. D. No. 3, Volant, president of their association at the concluding session held in the Second U. P. Church, Wednesday afternoon.

Other officers named were: J. A. Schott and James Eakin, vice presidents; Miss Mary Walker, secretary; Charles Ferguson, treasurer; Harry Smith, auditor; and W. A. Brown, delegate to the state convention.

Mr. Sampson succeeds W. H. Helle, who has been president of the organization for the past five years.

Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, president of Slippery Rock State Teachers College, continued his discussion of the "Ten-Year Plan" in education, which is being worked out under Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of education.

Ten-Year Plan

The Ten-Year plan aims to accomplish three things, namely, to find out where education is now in the state of Pennsylvania; to set up an ideal as to what it ought to be; and to find ways and means to reach this ideal in a period of ten years.

Sub-committees which have been named to look into the various phases of education, and to recommend changes, consist of school finance, local unit of administration, teachers preparation, recodification, laws, and methods.

Dr. Eisenberg is chairman of the administration section and spoke upon this part of the plan at the afternoon meeting.

He showed that the money being spent by first class districts per pupil amounts to $125; second class, $101; third class, $83; and fourth class, $76. In districts where they have no high school, only half as many pupils go on to take a high school education as do in districts where they do have a high school.

One of the aims of the Ten-Year Plan will be to bring high schools to the rural pupils.

Community Centers

It is hoped to do this by establishing community centers of learning in the counties, rather than having the township lines the boundaries.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 21—Fifty girl students and nuns were forced to flee early today when fire swept one end of a dormitory of the Franciscan convent at Sylanvia near here.

The blaze was discovered in the furnace room at 5:40 o'clock and the fact it is the custom of these at the convent to rise at 5 a. m. probably averted a panic.

Mystery In Burglary At Grove Street Place Of Business

CASH AND STOCK TAKEN FROM SAFE

An apparently insolvable mystery surrounds the breaking into of the place of business of the New Castle Produce Company, Grove street, some time during the night and the entering and looting of the safe of the concern, in the office.

Officers M. J. Young, Thomas and Harlan answered the call and made a thorough investigation, finding that to appearances, entrance to the building had been effected by the use of a key and also that a key had been used in getting into the safe, the outer door of which had been left unlocked.

Principal loss sustained by the concern was $115 in cash and 205 shares of France-American bank stock and private papers belonging

Hunt Clues In Murder Mystery At Philadelphia

BELIEVE REVENGE MOTIVE OF CRIME

Police Inclined To Believe That 3-X Maniac May Be Implicated

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—A blood-stained piece of cloth, a possible murder tell tale, today was found in a cache near where the slayer of Norman Bechtel, model young church worker, had abandoned the victim's automobile.

Authorities termed it the only clue of potential value uncovered since the body of Bechtel was found with eleven vicious knife wounds under a winterbare cherry-tree in the vacant estate of Mrs. Thomas Stokes of Germantown.

Cloth Examined.

Police believed the murderer had wiped his crimson hands on the square of cloth after abandoning the car in which Bechtel was stabbed to death.

The discovery, made by International News Service, was turned over to fingerprint experts to examine.

The blood-marked cloth, still damp, was wrapped in a newspaper featuring a recent letter from "3-X," the mass murderer of Long Island, to Captain William H. Houghton, chief of the United States secret service bureau in Philadelphia.

This wrapping suggested to police the killing of Bechtel may have been perpetrated by the letter-writing maniac. The crime was similar in many ways to the 3-X murders in New York in which "3-X" had suddenly pounced on victims in automobiles along lonely roads and butchered them.

May Be 3-X.

The letter from "3-X" to Captain Houghton rambled about the activities of Communists and referred to the Easton, Pa., bomb explosions which killed three men.

Captain Houghton today told In-

Harold "Monk" Fontaine, Held In Canada, As Ringleader Of Leavenworth Break

SMUGGLED GUNS IN SHOE POLISH

Canadian Charges Against Former Convict Will Be Waived

(International News Service)

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 21.—Harold "Monk" Fontaine, sought by the United States government as the man whose "outside work" resulted in the Leavenworth Prison escape plot last month, will be deported as soon as possible, Orville G. Adams, Canadian immigration director here said today.

Released from Leavenworth last November after serving five years for smuggling aliens across the Detroit river into the United States, Fontaine immediately began operations to send guns and ammunition into the prison, American federal officers stated.

Will Waive Charges

Fontaine surrendered here yesterday to a six year old charge of assaulting an officer. The offense carries a penalty of two years imprisonment under Canadian law, but the charge will be waived, Adams declared, to co-operate with the American government's investigation of the jail break.

The escape plot was planned by Fontaine and the seven convicts involved when he was at the prison, according to the American officers, seeking Fontaine.

When Fontaine was released he purchased one half barrel of shoe polish from the same St. Louis dealer who supplies the prison. He had it shipped to Joliet, Ill., to "George H. Clark." Claiming the shipment at Joliet, Fontaine removed the shoe polish, substituting a shotgun, and two machine guns.

Sends Shoe Polish

One of the seven prisoners then received a telegram stating "Your Aunt Emma's very ill." The code arranged as a signal for arrival of the guns and ammunition. Fontaine returned the shipment to St. Louis and then sent it under regular shoe polish markings to the penitentiary.

When the package arrived at the prison, it was admitted without inspection by guards.

Directors Of County Schools Elect Sampson

Is Named To Succeed W. H. Helle, Who Has Been President For Several Terms

TEN-YEAR PLAN FURTHER OUTLINED

Directors of the rural schools of Lawrence County elected Eugene Sampson of R. F. D. No. 3, Volant, president of their association at the concluding session held in the Second U. P. Church, Wednesday afternoon.

Other officers named were: J. A. Schott and James Eakin, vice presidents; Miss Mary Walker, secretary; Charles Ferguson, treasurer; Harry Smith, auditor; and W. A. Brown, delegate to the state convention.

Mr. Sampson succeeds W. H. Helle, who has been president of the organization for the past five years.

Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, president of Slippery Rock State Teachers College, continued his discussion of the "Ten-Year Plan" in education, which is being worked out under Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of education.

Ten-Year Plan

The Ten-Year plan aims to accomplish three things, namely, to find out where education is now in the state of Pennsylvania; to set up an ideal as to what it ought to be; and to find ways and means to reach this ideal in a period of ten years.

Sub-committees which have been named to look into the various phases of education, and to recommend changes, consist of school finance, local unit of administration, teachers preparation, recodification, laws, and methods.

Dr. Eisenberg is chairman of the administration section and spoke upon this part of the plan at the afternoon meeting.

He showed that the money being spent by first class districts per pupil amounts to $125; second class, $101; third class, $83; and fourth class, $76. In districts where they have no high school, only half as many pupils go on to take a high school education as do in districts where they do have a high school.

One of the aims of the Ten-Year Plan will be to bring high schools to the rural pupils.

Community Centers

Fish Protector To Be Requested

Sportsmen's Association Directors To Make Request To Pinchot

Directors of the Lawrence County Sportsmen's association met last night at the office of Alderman O. H. P. Green and it was decided to request Governor Pinchot to name a paid fish protector for the county of Lawrence.

The association directors will not make any recommendation as to who the governor should appoint but will leave that to the governor's discretion.

Allegations that trout are being caught is said to be one of the reasons for the subject being discussed last night and the request that will be made of the governor.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 21—Fifty girl students and nuns were forced to flee early today when fire swept one end of a dormitory of the Franciscan convent at Sylanvia near here.

The blaze was discovered in the furnace room at 5:40 o'clock and the fact it is the custom of those at the convent to rise at 5 a. m. probably averted a panic.

Mystery In Burglary At Grove Street Place Of Business

CASH AND STOCK TAKEN FROM SAFE

An apparently insolvable mystery surrounds the breaking into of the place of business of the New Castle Produce Company, Grove street, some time during the night and the entering and looting of the safe of the concern, in the office.

James Tardelli, employe of the concern discovered that the place had been entered as he went to work about six o'clock this morning, and immediately notified Charles Gurgiolo, head of the concern, and the police.

Officers M. J. Young, Thomas and Harlan answered the call and made a thorough investigation, finding that to appearances, entrance to the building had been effected by the use of a key and also that a key had been used in getting into the safe, the outer door of which had been left unlocked.

Principal loss sustained by the concern was $115 in cash and 205 shares of France-American bank stock and private papers belonging

Hunt Clues In Murder Mystery At Philadelphia

BELIEVE REVENGE MOTIVE OF CRIME

Police Inclined To Believe That 3-X Maniac May Be Implicated

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—A blood-stained piece of cloth, a possible murder tell tale, today was found in a cache near where the slayer of Norman Bechtel, model young church worker, had abandoned the victim's automobile.

Authorities termed it the only clue of potential value uncovered since the body of Bechtel was found with eleven vicious knife wounds under a winterbare cherry-tree in the vacant estate of Mrs. Thomas Stokes of Germantown.

Cloth Examined.

Police believed the murderer had wiped his crimson hands on the square of cloth after abandoning the car in which Bechtel was stabbed to death.

The discovery, made by International News Service, was turned over to fingerprint experts to examine.

The blood-marked cloth, still damp, was wrapped in a newspaper featuring a recent letter from "3-X," the mass murderer of Long Island, to Captain William H. Houghton, chief of the United States secret service bureau in Philadelphia.

This wrapping suggested to police the killing of Bechtel may have been perpetrated by the letter-writing maniac. The crime was similar in many ways to the 3-X murders in New York in which "3-X" had suddenly pounced on victims in automobiles along lonely roads and butchered them.

May Be 3-X.

The letter from "3-X" to Captain Houghton rambled about the activities of Communists and referred to the Easton, Pa., bomb explosions which killed three men.

Captain Houghton today told In-

(International News Service)

BERWICK, Pa., Jan. 21.—The roar and clatter of New York's subway trains brought cheer to Berwick's 2,000 jobless today.

The American Car & Foundry Co. plant has completed preparations for filling an order for 500 subway cars. Work on the order will get under way next week and will continue for a year.

Practically all the city's unemployed, idle for more than a year, will be given work on the contract.

I remember, I remember, that dusty summer drought, when corn was parched and hay was burned, or badly scorched about. I remember, I remember, the words of weather sharks who told of years of rainless days by looking at some barks. But all that stuff is past and gone, we've rain now and to spare, and prospects for the summer are, for weather that is fair. For rains like these will fill the wells and droughts will fade away, and farmers can get what they want, it's forty eight today.

Sanitary Water Board Cares For State Streams

Have Control Of Over 100,000 Miles Of Waterways In Pennsylvania

THREE CLASSES OF STREAMS LISTED

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21—The control of water courses in Pennsylvania, estimated at more than 100,000 miles, is lodged by law in the sanitary water board, with Dr. Theodore E. Appel, secretary of health, as chairman. The other members of the board are: Lewis E. Staley, secretary forest and waters; Oliver M. Deibler, commissioner of fisheries; Dr. J. Norman Henry, Dean Elmer A. Holbrook and P. T. Davis. Deputy Attorney General A. Lee Edwards has been designated as legal adviser to the board.

The activities of the sanitary water board are carried forward by an employed personnel composed of W. L. Stevenson, chief engineer; J. R. Hoffert, civil engineer; C. L. Siebert, executive engineer, and P. E. Daniels, chief industrial wastes section and chief of laboratories. A field force of special investigators is composed of Dr. Glenn V. Brown, in charge of the sanitary survey of the Allegheny, Ohio and Beaver rivers; J. P. Gray, in charge of this work along the Schuylkill and Brandywine rivers, and Paul S. Armstrong, in the Lehigh and Delaware river basins.

Other engineers function in special capacities under direction of the board, among them being H. M. Van Zandt, who is in charge of the board's work of supervising conditions in the bituminous mining area, as affected by acid coal mine wastes, and F. B. Milligan, assigned to the special task of working with the tannery wastes disposal committee.

In a general way the streams of the state have been classified by this board under three heads. Some 25,000 miles of waterway, mostly of course, the smaller streams and the upper reaches of the main streams, come in the class "A" group, being those water courses that are polluted from any artificial source, and abound in fish life. These are the streams that are virtually in a state of pristine purity.

An estimated 40,000 miles of streams belong in the class "B" group. These waterways in general are visably clean, fit for use as water supplies with property treatment and support much fish life; but industries and the drainage from the habitations of man on their watersheds, have caused them to be more or less polluted. The balance of the streams fall nominally into class "C".

to Charles Gurgiolo. The checks were untouched.

A check on the case was being made today by Detective John Young.

According to Charles Gurgiolo, head of the concern, he is quite sure that he locked the inner door of the safe, also the door of the office on leaving. A brother, Augustine Gurgiolo and the bookkeeper, Sarah Malone, were with him as he left and all are sure that the safe and door were locked.

Finding the outer door of the safe unlocked, but the inner door locked, the thieves evidently had a key that operated the lock of the inner door and using it, gained admittance to the safe.

The only damage done in the entire job was done after entrance to the safe had been gained. Unable to unlock or get into the strong box of the safe, the robbers smashed in the wooden partitions on all sides of it and managed to break them out and secure the strong box.

ternational News Service he believed that "3-X" was a grim reality and was in the vicinity of Philadelphia.

There were many theories as to the motive behind the murder mystery but the Philadelphia detective bureau admitted frankly they were only theories.

"We have made no progress whatever in solving the case," said Captain Harry Heanly of the homicide squad.

The bizarre theory was put forward by some that it was a "hex murder" committed by a follower of black magic. They pointed out the circle of stab wounds about the victim's heart resembled one of the mystical symbols used by "hex doctors" in certain portions of Pennsylvania.

Detective Sergeant Frank May expressed the belief it was a crime of vengeance. He discarded the theory that robbery was the motive.

PURE GEOMETRY IS BASIS OF PAINTING

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Pure geometry was the basis for all Renaissance paintings believes Julian Bowes, well-known exponent of dynamic symmetry in art.

The old masters, Bowes, believes, were masters not only because they painted beautiful pictures, but because they also had a knowledge of geometry and applied that knowledge to their work.

To bolster his contention, and with the letters and works of Albrecht Durer, fourteenth century painter, to back him up, Bowes traced on paper in his New York studio geometric designs showing that such masters as Rembrandt, Leonardo da Vinci, Titian and others used the "long-lost gnomon" as the base of design for their work. This gnomon, Bowes showed, when divided into the extreme and mean portion, fixes the accurate proportions of the canvas.

It was used by the Greeks, he said, and was found again by the Renaissance painters, but for the last 400 years had been lost, much to the depreciation of modern painting.

Bowes feels that "divine inspiration" in modern art is "all the bunk." Painting, he believes, is intuition plus wisdom.

Mrs. Judd's busy blue eyes continually surveyed every move in the courtroom. She managed to look squarely in the eyes of every man who passed through the jury box.

Her small head, crowned by copper bronze hair under a dark turban was carried erect, almost regally on her slender white neck. Her thin hands, however, betrayed the inner agitation of the woman whose crime earned her the sobriquet of the "velvet tigress with the iron claws."

Delay Is Granted

When attorneys asked Judge Howard Speakman to delay until this morning the swearing of the jury, an early adjournment was ordered. At this moment Mrs. Judd was still in deep consultation with Dr. Stephens.

A jail matron took the prisoner's arm and led her away. Mrs. Judd turned in the doorway and gave a long deliberate stare at the empty courtroom, a faint scowl on her face. It appeared to observers she was chagrined that the day's session, with its drama and excitement had ended so soon.

road materials to get into the camp, chattering caterpillar tractors grab them when they can go no farther and pilot them to dry ground. Automobiles containing state officials, salesmen, workers and visitors keep the highway peopled, and farther out, in the bottom lands hundreds of unemployed men have been taken out of the ranks of unemployed and are busy felling trees.

The work of clearing the site for the Pymatuning dam is under way and the work is going forward with the speed and efficiency of a well oiled piece of machinery. In the meantime two other camps are being prepared, one about five miles south of Espyville on the Hartstown road, the other about two miles north. Later, a fourth camp will be established when the weather permits workmen to go into the swamp.

Middle of Dam

The camp just outside of Espyville is almost in the exact middle of the projected lake, at what will be the widest point of the entire project. When the dam is completed, the width from the edge of the camp, which will be approximately the shore line, across to the other shore will be 2½ miles, and the average depth will be 20 feet. This will be the widest part of the lake. The length, from Turnerville, where the spillway is located, to a point near Linesville will be approximately 16 miles.

The camp here, which can be aptly termed C. H. Q. contains the headquarters equipment for the Department of Forest and Waters, under Secretary Lewis E. Staley. The camp contains 45 pyramidal squad tents, each one of which will house six men. The floors are of wood and the side walls are of wood, with a stove in the center. Each tent is lighted by electricity, and each bunk has three army blankets on it.

The camp is laid out in army fashion in company street formation. Along each company street, and leading into each tent is a boardwalk which keeps the men out of the mud. At the end of the camp is the bath house with individual wash basins and a shower bath in the end.

Long Mess Hall

At one end of the camp is the mess hall, with board sides going up about 9 feet. Huge stoves heat the mess hall, and at one end is the kitchen, presided over by men who have been selected for their culinary ability. Only the best meals are used in meals and vegetables are selected on the same basis. The meals will be ample, substantial ones. The men will eat breakfast and supper in the mess hall. At noon, trucks carry hot meals out to the men in the field

Captain W. E. Haughton is the military officer in charge of the the camp. He it is who will prescribe the rules for the camp and see to it that the ordinary rules of sanitation are observed by the men. At the head of the camp is the infirmary in charge of Dr. E. F. Dickey, of the State Health department. As the men come into camp they go through the infirmary where Dr. Dickey examines them to see if they have been vaccinated, examines them for heart trouble, hernia and venereal disease.

Wells have been drilled on the camp site for the water supply, and these wells are tested daily by an expert from the Department of Water and Power Resources board. At the entrance to the camp site is the headquarters office in which are located John Ferris, field engineer in charge of the entire work, his assistants and clerical help.

The two other camps located several miles from the general concentration camp will be conducted the same as the main camp, except that they will be smaller. There will be a car assigned for the use of the infirmary and any man hurt in the field will be transported to the infirmary for attention.

The efficiency and excellence of the camp is amazing. Nobody going to work on the dam need be afraid that he will get anything but the very best of care. While it is true that the camp life will be different than home life, it is also true that the camp life will be healthy.

Best Dam Possible

"What we are trying to do" said Secretary Lewis E. Staley "is to give the State of Pennsylvania the very best work possible and at the same time give as many men employment as we can. We will leave nothing undone to make the men comfortable in camp, they will get first class food prepared under the direction of expert cooks and if we make mistakes, they will be honest mistakes."

The work of clearing the dam site has already started. About 6000 acres of the 20,000 acres in the site, are timbered. For the most part the timber is fairly large second growth, much of it swamp white oak and hickory. The men will work in parties of 24, each party under the direction of a foreman who is familiar with timber work. Small brush and saplings will be burned as it is cleared, and the larger timber hauled off and used for firewood, or sold for lumber.

The Pymatuning dam project will undoubtedly attract thousands of tourists during the coming summer. It represents Pennsylvania's largest single unemployment venture at the present time. All of the work of clearing the site is under state supervision, the only contract work being done being that of building the breastworks and outlet for the dam, located at Turnerville. This work is progressing rapidly, the concrete outlets already being constructed.

Ten More To Go

Before he returned to New Castle Mr. Meermans was asked to have 10 more men from Lawrence county and sent up to the dam. It is possible that they will leave on Friday, but if not Friday, then they will leave the first of next week.

The men from this county were transported to the dam in the automobiles of citizens who were willing to donate their cars for the day, pay the expenses of gas and oil, and in some cases private drivers were paid for by the citizens to drive cars. The transportation cost neither the men nor the state one cent.

Before they returned the car owners who drove men to the dam inspected the camp site at Espyville and went out over the area where work is being conducted. They were enthusiastic over the sanitary conditions in the camp and found that the kitchen was being run as well as a hotel kitchen.

Many of the car owners said they would be willing to lend their cars for other trips to the Pymatuning when additional drafts were sent up.

Tuberculosis Clinics Doing Important Work

MANY LIVES SAVED THROUGH THEIR WORK

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21—A far flung activity of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, Dr. Theodore E. Appel, Secretary, is represented by the work of the tuberculosis clinics, located in almost every section of the commonwealth.

These clinics reach a total of 112 in number, and are located in every county of the state, with the exception of Philadelphia county, which cares for its own tubercular patients. Visiting nurses of the State Department of Health are in attendance at each session of the clinics.

Locations of these clinics, together with the hours when they are operating, are widely advertised, and the house to house work of the nurses who attend them help to bring to the rooms for examination those persons in the community who may be suspected of being tubercular, or who have referred to the clinic by the family physician.

At the beginning of the year, state nurses are finding in many sections of the state, especially the mining and some industrial regions, that 90 per cent of the bread winners in the homes they visit, are in the ranks of the unemployed. A condition such as this, ministering as it does to the spreading of tuberculosis, is being closely watched by these nurses in the field, and all persons suspected of having tubercular trouble are promptly invited to the clinics for a test.

These state clinics are, of course, for the indigent only, and they form the portal of entrance to the state sanatoria. Examinations are carefully made by competent physicians, and advice given as to habits of life, types of food, and best methods to care for this trouble, if it is shown to exist. Through the physician and the nurse, and in cooperation with local tuberculosis societies wherever possible, propaganda is circulated, and health education regarding tuberculosis is freely distributed.

This work moves forward on an established schedule almost every working day in the year, and its value in discovering cases, and giving helpful advice as well as listing many for the sanitoria, is almost incalculable. Without clinic activities, many tubercular patients would not be discovered in time to render aid.

These various community centers would then form one administration district. Some of these administration districts might include portions of more than one county, the idea being to do away with township, and county boundaries.

Each community unit would be supervised by five school directors, and the administration unit would be governed by seven directors, elected to serve for six years.

The duties of the latter board would be to elect the county superintendent, fix salaries, recommend approved text books, and to decide upon the Community District lines, etc.

All first and second class districts would be exempt from this method of control and would form their own separate districts, the Community Center control idea being largely for third and fourth class districts.

A discussion of this point developed the fact that students living in the area served by high schools like the city of New Castle, would probably have the same right to attend the high school in this district as they lived in the city, as the plans are still very much in a formative stage.

Dr. Eisenberg stated that there were 20 second class districts in the state, such as New Castle, and 29 districts on the order of Ellwood City. He believed that under the final plan, the territory contiguous to these districts would be joined to them.

Denounces Smoking

Dr. M. S. Bentz, superintendent of the Cambria County Schools continued his remarks of the morning to the directors on their duties, and talked mostly of teacher selection.

He stated that he would not employ a teacher who smoked, and would get rid of such a teacher at the earliest opportunity if he found it out. Quite a discussion on this point ensued, and Dr. Eisenberg, who was asked of the prevalence of this habit in the colleges, stated that there was less a tendency to smoke today by girl students than there had been three or four years ago.

Dr. Eisenberg stated that he was dead against it, first because society doesn't approve of it, and second because it has an effect on future child-bearing possibilities.

Dr. Bentz stated that the directors should be careful to select only those teachers of the highest moral standing in their community, in order to surround each individual pupil with contacts that will increase his capacity to grow in the proper direction.

County Superintendent John C. Syling read the report on the last state convention which had been prepared by Wendell P. Ball, who was a delegate to the convention, and who has since moved to Chicago. This was done while the election was being held.

After the results of the election had been announced, a rising vote of thanks to retiring president Hells was given, after which adjournment was called.

Reparations cost the poor Germans almost as much as they would spend for armament if they were free.

Sanitary Water Board Cares For State Streams

Have Control Of Over 100,000 Miles Of Waterways In Pennsylvania

THREE CLASSES OF STREAMS LISTED

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21—The control of water courses in Pennsylvania, estimated at more than 100,000 miles, is lodged by law in the sanitary water board, with Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health, as chairman. The other members of the board are: Lewis E. Staley, secretary forest and waters; Oliver M. Deibler, commissioner of fisheries; Dr. J. Norman Henry, Dean Elmer A. Holbrook and P. T. Davis. Deputy Attorney General A. Lee Edwards has been designated as legal adviser to the board.

The activities of the sanitary water board are carried forward by an employed personnel composed of W. L. Stevenson, chief engineer; J. R. Hoffert, civil engineer; C. L. Siebert, executive engineer, and P. E. Daniels, chief industrial wastes section and chief of laboratories. A field force of special investigators is composed of Dr. Glenn V. Brown, in charge of the sanitary survey of the Allegheny, Ohio and Beaver rivers; J. P. Gray, in charge of this work along the Schuylkill and Brandywine rivers, and Paul S. Armstrong, in the Lehigh and Delaware river basins.

Other engineers function in special capacities under direction of the board, among them being H. M. Van Zandt, who is in charge of the board's work of supervising conditions in the bituminous mining area, as affected by acid coal mine wastes, and F. B. Milligan, assigned to the special task of working with the tannery wastes disposal committee.

In a general way the streams of the state have been classified by this board under three heads. Some 25,000 miles of waterway, mostly of course, the smaller streams and the upper reaches of the main streams, come in the class "A" group, being those water courses that are polluted from any artificial source, and abound in fish life. These are the streams that are virtually in a state of pristine purity.

An estimated 40,000 miles of streams belong in the class "B" group. These waterways in general are visably clean, fit for use as water supplies with property treatment and support much fish life; but industries and the drainage from the habitations of man on their watersheds, have caused them to be more or less polluted. The balance of the streams fall nominally into class "C".

By a coincidence Mrs. Boak was returning from Youngstown with Mrs. William Ellis and arrived at the scene of the accident while the injured men were in the store of James Atkinson being treated.

to Charles Gurgiolo. The checks were untouched.

A check on the case was being made today by Detective John Young.

According to Charles Gurgiolo, head of the concern, he is quite sure that he locked the inner door of the safe, also the door of the office on leaving. A brother, Augustine Gurgiolo and the bookkeeper, Sarah Malone, were with him as he left and all are sure that the safe and door were locked.

Finding the outer door of the safe unlocked, but the inner door locked, the thieves evidently had a key that operated the lock of the inner door and using it, gained admittance to the safe.

The only damage done in the entire job was done after entrance to the safe had been gained. Unable to unlock or get into the strong box of the safe, the robbers smashed in the wooden partitions on all sides of it and managed to break them out and secure the strong box.

HUNT CLUES IN MURDER MYSTERY AT PHILADELPHIA

ternational News Service he believed that "3-X" was a grim reality and was in the vicinity of Philadelphia.

There were many theories as to the motive behind the murder mystery but the Philadelphia detective bureau admitted frankly they were only theories.

"We have made no progress whatever in solving the case," said Captain Harry Heanly of the homicide squad.

The bizarre theory was put forward by some that it was a "hex murder" committed by a follower of black magic. They pointed out the circle of stab wounds about the victim's heart resembled one of the mystical symbols used by "hex doctors" in certain portions of Pennsylvania.

Detective Sergeant Frank May expressed the belief it was a crime of vengeance. He discarded the theory that robbery was the motive.

PURE GEOMETRY IS BASIS OF PAINTING

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Pure geometry was the basis for all Renaissance paintings believes Julian Bowes, well-known exponent of dynamic symmetry in art.

The old masters, Bowes, believes, were masters not only because they painted beautiful pictures, but because they also had a knowledge of geometry and applied that knowledge to their work.

To bolster his contention, and with the letters and works of Albrecht Durer, fourteenth century painter, to back him up, Bowes traced on paper in his New York studio geometric designs showing that such masters as Rembrandt, Leonardo da Vinci, Titian and others used the "long-lost gnomon" as the base of design for their work. This gnomon, Bowes showed, when divided into the extreme and mean portion, fixes the accurate proportions of the canvas.

It was used by the Greeks, he said, and was found again by the Renaissance painters, but for the last 400 years had been lost, much to the depreciation of modern painting.

Bowes feels that "divine inspiration" in modern art is "all the bunk." Painting, he believes, is intuition plus wisdom.

Mrs. Judd's busy blue eyes continually surveyed every move in the courtroom. She managed to look squarely in the eyes of every man who passed through the jury box.

Her small head, crowned by copper bronze hair under a dark turban was carried erect, almost regally on her slender white neck. Her thin hands, however, betrayed the inner agitation of the woman whose crime earned her the sobriquet of the "velvet tigress with the iron claws."

Delay Is Granted

When attorneys asked Judge Howard Speakman to delay until this morning the swearing of the jury, an early adjournment was ordered. At this moment Mrs. Judd was still in deep consultation with Dr. Stephens.

A jail matron took the prisoner's arm and led her away. Mrs. Judd turned in the doorway and gave a long deliberate stare at the emptying courtroom, a faint scowl on her face. It appeared to observers she was chagrined that the day's session, with its drama and excitement had ended so soon.

WORKMEN ARRIVING AND STARTING WORK AT PYMATUNING DAM

road materials to get into the camp, chattering caterpillar tractors grab them when they can go no farther and pilot them to dry ground. Automobiles containing state officials, salesmen, workers and visitors keep the highway peopled, and farther out, in the bottom lands hundreds of unemployed men have been taken out of the ranks of unemployed and are busy felling trees.

The work of clearing the site for the Pymatuning dam is under way and the work is going forward with the speed and efficiency of a well oiled piece of machinery. In the meantime two other camps are being prepared, one about five miles south of Espyville on the Hartstown road, the other about two miles north. Later, a fourth camp will be established when the weather permits workmen to go into the swamp.

Middle of Dam

The camp just outside of Espyville is almost in the exact middle of the projected lake, at what will be the widest point of the entire project. When the dam is completed, the width from the edge of the camp, which will be approximately the shore line, across to the other shore will be 2½ miles, and the average depth will be 20 feet. This will be the widest part of the lake. The length, from Turnerville, where the spillway is located, to a point near Linesville will be approximately 16 miles.

The camp here, which can be aptly termed G. H. Q. contains the headquarters equipment for the Department of Forest and Waters, under Secretary Lewis E. Staley. The camp contains 45 pyramidal squad tents, each one of which will house six men. The floors are of wood and the side walls are of wood, with a stove in the center. Each tent is lighted by electricity, and each bunk has three army blankets on it.

The camp is laid out in army fashion in company street formation. Along each company street, and leading into each tent is a boardwalk which keeps the men out of the mud. At the end of the camp is the bath house with individual wash basins and a shower bath in the end.

Long Mess Hall

At one end of the camp is the mess hall, with board sides going up about 9 feet. Huge stoves heat the mess hall, and at one end is the kitchen, presided over by men who have been selected for their culinary ability. Only the best meats are used in meals and vegetables are selected on the same basis. The meals will be ample, substantial ones. The men will eat breakfast and supper in the mess hall. At noon, trucks carry hot meals out to the men in the field

Captain W. E. Haughton is the military officer in charge of the the camp. He it is who will prescribe the rules for the camp and see to it that the ordinary rules of sanitation are observed by the men. At the head of the camp is the infirmary in charge of Dr. E F. Dickey, of the State Health department. As the men come into camp they go through the infirmary where Dr. Dickey examines them to see if they have been vaccinated, examines them for heart trouble, hernia and venereal disease.

Wells have been drilled on the camp site for the water supply, and these wells are tested daily by an expert from the Department of Water and Power Resources board. At the entrance to the camp site is the headquarters office in which are located John Ferris, field engineer in charge of the entire work, his assistants and clerical help.

The two other camps located several miles from the general concentration camp will be conducted the same as the main camp, except that they will be smaller. There will be a car assigned for the use of the infirmary and any man hurt in the field will be transported to the infirmary for attention.

The efficiency and excellence of the camp is amazing. Nobody going to work on the dam need be afraid that he will get anything but the very best of care. While it is true that the camp life will be different than home life, it is also true that the camp life will be healthy.

Best Dam Possible

"What we are trying to do" said Secretary Lewis E. Staley "is to give the State of Pennsylvania the very best work possible and at the same time give as many men employment as we can. We will leave nothing undone to make the men comfortable in camp, they will get first class food prepared under the direction of expert cooks and if we make mistakes, they will be honest mistakes."

The work of clearing the dam site has already started. About 6000 acres of the 20,000 acres in the site, are timbered. For the most part the timber is fairly large second growth, much of it swamp white oak and hickory. The men will work in parties of 24, each party under the direction of a foreman who is familiar with timber work. Small brush and saplings will be burned as it is cleared, and the larger timber hauled off and used for firewood, or sold for lumber.

The Pymatuning dam project will undoubtedly attract thousands of tourists during the coming summer. It represents Pennsylvania's largest single unemployment venture at the present time. All of the work of clearing the site is under state supervision, the only contract work being done being that of building the breastworks and outlet for the dam, located at Turnerville. This work is progressing rapidly, the concrete outlets already being constructed.

NEW CASTLE MEN QUALIFY FOR JOBS

Ten More To Go

Before he returned to New Castle Mr. Meermans was asked to have 10 more men from Lawrence county and sent up to the dam. It is possible that they will leave on Friday, but if not Friday, then they will leave the first of next week.

The men from this county were transported to the dam in the automobiles of citizens who were willing to donate their cars for the day, pay the expenses of gas and oil, and in some cases private drivers were paid for by the citizens to drive cars. The transportation cost neither the men nor the state one cent.

Before they returned the car owners who drove men to the dam inspected the camp site at Espyville and went out over the area where work is being conducted. They were enthusiastic over the sanitary conditions in the camp and found that the kitchen was being run as well as a hotel kitchen.

Many of the car owners said they would be willing to lend their cars for other trips to the Pymatuning when additional drafts were sent up.

WILLIAM McARTHUR IS GIVEN DISCHARGE

William McArthur, Negro, was the only member of the police court class this morning. He was charged with disorderly conduct by Officer Bud Fleeger and the report showed that he had been acting in a very bad manner when arrested.

He could not remember a thing this morning, when he appeared before the mayor, and stated that he was so drunk, that he didn't remember a thing about what had happened. He was discharged by the mayor with a warning not to let the same thing occur again.

Tuberculosis Clinics Doing Important Work

MANY LIVES SAVED THROUGH THEIR WORK

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21—A far flung activity of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, Dr. Theodore B. Appel, Secretary, is represented by the work of the tuberculosis clinics, located in almost every section of the commonwealth.

These clinics reach a total of 112 in number, and are located in every county of the state, with the exception of Philadelphia county, which cares for its own tubercular patients. Visiting nurses of the State Department of Health are in attendance at each session of the clinics.

Locations of these clinics, together with the hours when they are operating, are widely advertised, and the house to house work of the nurses who attend them help to bring to the rooms for examination those persons in the community who may be suspected of being tubercular, or who have referred to the clinic by the family physician.

At the beginning of the year, state nurses are finding in many sections of the state, especially the mining and some industrial regions, that 90 per cent of the bread winners in the homes they visit, are in the ranks of the unemployed. A condition such as this, ministering as it does to the spreading of tuberculosis, is being closely watched by these nurses in the field, and all persons suspected of having tubercular trouble are promptly invited to the clinics for a test.

These state clinics are, of course, for the indigent only, and they form the portal of entrance to the state sanatoria. Examinations are carefully made by competent physicians, and advice given as to habits of life, types of food, and best methods to care for this trouble, if it is shown to exist. Through the physician and the nurse, and in cooperation with local tuberculosis societies wherever possible, propaganda is circulated, and health education regarding tuberculosis is freely distributed.

This work moves forward on an established schedule almost every working day in the year, and its value in discovering cases, and giving helpful advice as well as listing many for the sanitoria, is almost incalculable. Without clinic activities, many tubercular patients would not be discovered in time to render aid.

DIRECTORS OF COUNTY SCHOOLS ELECT SAMPSON

These various community centers would then form one administration district. Some of these administration districts might include portions of more than one county, the idea being to do away with township, and county boundaries.

Each community unit would be supervised by five school directors, and the administration unit would be governed by seven directors, elected to serve for six years.

The duties of the latter board would be to elect the county superintendent, fix salaries, recommend approved text books, and to decide upon the Community District lines, etc.

All first and second class districts would be exempt from this method of control and would form their own separate districts, the Community Center control idea being largely for third and fourth class districts.

A discussion of this point developed the fact that students living in the area served by high schools like the city of New Castle, would probably have the same right to attend the high school in this district as they lived in the city, as the plans are still very much in a formative stage.

Dr. Eisenberg stated that there were 20 second class districts in the state, such as New Castle, and 29 districts on the order of Ellwood City. He believed that under the final plan, the territory contiguous to these districts would be joined to them.

Denounces Smoking

Dr. M. S. Bentz, superintendent of the Cambria County Schools continued his remarks of the morning to the directors on their duties, and talked mostly of teacher selection.

He stated that he would not employ a teacher who smoked, and would get rid of such a teacher at the earliest opportunity if he found it out. Quite a discussion on this point ensued, and Dr. Eisenberg, who was asked of the prevalence of this habit in the colleges, stated that there was less a tendency to smoke today by girl students than there had been three or four years ago.

Dr. Eisenberg stated that he was dead against it, first because society doesn't approve of it, and second because it has an effect on future child-bearing possibilities.

Dr. Bentz stated that the directors should be careful to select only those teachers of the highest moral standing in their community, in order to surround each individual pupil with contacts that will increase his capacity to grow in the proper direction.

County Superintendent John C. Syling read the report on the last state convention which had been prepared by Wendell P. Ball, who was a delegate to the convention, and who has since moved to Chicago. This was done while the election was being held.

After the results of the election had been announced, a rising vote of thanks to retiring president Helle was given, after which adjournment was called.

Reparations cost the poor Germans almost as much as they would spend for armament if they were free.

ALMIRA HOME LADIES TAKE PROGRAM PARTS

The living rooms of the Almira Home were filled Wednesday afternoon with members of the Baird Missionary society of the Highland U. P. church, when they held their monthly meeting for the entertainment of the residents of the home, with the ladies of the home taking part.

After the group had assembled, Mrs. Thomas Boston led the opening devotionals, and Mrs. Harriet Leslie, a resident at the home, who is also a member of the Highland church, extended greetings from the home, and Mrs. J. Gail Blim, president of the society, responded.

The roll call was answered by the names of missionary stations in the home land, after which Miss Hannah R. McCracken of the home gave a splendid reading, "A Teacher's Dream"; Miss Alice Black of the home gave a paper on "Great Women, Ancient and Modern, and What Made Them Great"; this was of great interest. DAWES TO HEAD RECONSTRUCTION BODY

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S decision to name Ambassador Dawes to head the Reconstruction Corporation adds confidence to the hopes for success of the leading feature in the President's relief programme. General Dawes combines fitness with popular appeal, a selection reminiscent of the appointment to the Supreme Court of Chief Justice Hughes who brought corresponding qualities to the judicial position.

Although expert financial knowledge is necessary for the job, no mere banker would do. He would have to have the additional knowledge which Mr. Dawes has shown in his series of diplomatic successes. An understanding of foreign issues, no less than domestic, and a capacity for dealing with men vindicate the President's choice.

The fact that Ambassador Dawes will accept the post should effectively allay persistent rumors that the recent announcement of his intention to return from service at London was putting him in the way of being elected to the White House upon the contingency of a certain turn in events. He denied it at the time with an emphasis that left no loopholes, and now developments confirm his words. It will be gratifying to have him among us once more without thought that his presence has any bearing on the nomination for President.

He has a picturesque way of getting things done of which the country had lost sight while he was abroad, where the exigencies of his situation seldom permitted a free play of these characteristics. Back in America, he will again assert the leadership of which the country has lively memories.

SOME BOOKKEEPING FOR MUSSOLINI

Commonly attributed to Mussolini, the demand comes out of Italy that both reparations and debts be cancelled. Without discussing the motivation of this demand, it is interesting to examine into Italy's accounts in what Mussolini's newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, calls "the tragic bookkeeping of the War."

Under the Young plan, and without the moratorium, Italy was due to receive in the moratorium year: From Germany, in reparations, $45,448,560; from other countries, in debt payments, $1,214,820. Italy would have retained $9,242,160. Then she would have passed on in payments on debts, $22,819,560 to Great Britain, and $14,601,660 to the United States. So her sacrifice, through cancellation, would be under $10,000,000.

Or, in the fifty-eight years of the Young Plan's operation, Italy would be due to receive in reparations from Germany $4,057,204,160, and in debts paid by others, $9,265,980. She would retain $315,532,950. And she would pass on in debt payments, to Great Britain, $1,346,425,500, and to the United States $2,384,691,660, or a rough total of $3,731,000,000.

Cancellation would mean for Italy sacrifice of 315 million dollars in fifty-eight years.

And what would be the United States' sacrifice through cancellation? This moratorium year it is about 239 million dollars; in the entire settlement period of fifty-eight years, it would be more than twenty-one and one-third billion dollars!

The paramount question, however, is whether there can be net economic profit through sacrifice by debt cancellation. That is a big question, when viewed as between Italy with its 315 million sacrifice, and the United States with its 21 and one-third billions. But it is exactly that comparison, between Italy and the United States, that is posed by the Italian demand.—The Minneapolis Journal.

AN INDIAN COME-BACK

Whenever a distinguished visitor enters any American city, one of the first questions the reporters toss at him is, "How do you like our city?" This is especially true of New York; and a group of Indian artists from the Navajo country of New Mexico, visiting New York for an Indian exhibit recently, gave a reply that ought to keep their memory green for a long while.

They simply replied, gravely, "Have you ever seen Santa Fe?"

Of course, not all visitors can use that come-back, for not all visitors to the big town have seen Santa Fe themselves; but there is in it a wholesome antidote to the current worship of metropolitan things people and ways that is worth bearing in mind.

It applies, too, to all visitors, distinguished or otherwise, and it applies to all cities, from New York down to some metropolis of the cow country. For we tend to put too great a halo on our cities; we are too admiring of their tall buildings, their busy streets and their everlasting clatter and noise; we let them overpower us, so that we accord them a respect that isn't based on any genuine values.

We have, in fact, altogether too much of a childish admiration for mere bigness. Because a given building is higher than another, it must be finer. Because a given city is larger than another, it must be a better place to live. Because one home is more elaborate than another, it must be happier.

These Indians managed to escape that mistake. Unimpressed by bigness, they found that Santa Fe could stand comparison with New York very well. Perhaps the towers of Manhattan don't seem so splendid to men who are used to the great red cliffs of New Mexico. Perhaps the congestion of a great city did not seem entirely praiseworthy to men who knew the emptiness of the southwestern plains.

At any rate, their attitude was a sane one. At a time when every town hopes, somehow, to become bigger and more crowded every year, it is a good one to keep in mind.

Mother used to call them "catchy" tunes. Daughter likes them croony.

Do they use tea leaves or the ouija board in making those psychic bids?

Now that the big league baseball players are beginning to quarrel about their 1932 salary contracts we know that spring can't be far off.

The Turtle Called Life
And "Loving Anxiety"
And the Old Black Mammy

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I know a small boy who says that "all girls are silly." I know a little girl who thinks "boys aren't nice."

"I'll keep an eye on both of them and after a few years I'll laugh—but they'll not know what I'm laughing at.

So often we hear "loving anxiety" praised as a noble virtue. Very often it is, but sometimes it is selfish, sometimes it is an interfering interest in another human being. If that isn't true, why does anxiety, when relieved, so often turn to anger?

When I was young, I was fascinated by those homely gray turtles that sat in the sun on rocks or logs.

It was my ambition, then, to creep so quietly upon one of those dozing turtles that I might catch h'm and carve my initials on his back.

But I was never quite able to do it. Always, just at the important second, he slipped from his place and submerged.

I've seen many people, since, trying desperately to carve their initials on the turtle we call Life—and succeeding no better than I did with the little river turtles.

There was an old negro mammy, who had been a slave. She was poor, she was sick, she was alone, and someone tried to convince her that she had been "better off" when she was a slave. She agreed that when she was a slave she was fed and cared for by her owners and was assured of security in old age. She agreed, too, that in freedom she had grocery bills, doctor bills, rent bills and was doomed to uncertainty in her old age. But she preferred her freedom because, as she put it, "Dere's de feelin's!"

"De feelin's" are the most important of our possessions, and they can't be argued about.

People have said to me, "Can't you listen to Reason?"

Yes, I can listen to Reason, but I don't like her voice. It is so harsh, so impatient, so ruthlessly logical. She gives me no chance to be foolish. She endures none of my nonsense. She looks at me so contemptuously.

I could listen more happily to Reason if she spoke more swiftly to her truant children.

GOOD NEIGHBORHOOD

How do you treat the family in your locality who lives in a humble home and has to get along on next to nothing in money?

Do you indicate by your manner that they have no business to try to live in a section which is beyond their financial means?

In justifying your position do you say that these people would stand higher in the estimation of everyone if they would select a home among those of their own limited means?

Rather a snobby position to take, is it not?

Every person who feels that way should be admired for wishing to live in a good neighborhood where there can be a closer association with those whom it is a pleasure to know.

Persons who offer opportunities for educational advance and knowledge.

By this it is not meant that those who live outside a favored section are not as fine a class of people as those who have homes in more favored location.

In fact, it is true that the salt of the earth and the most kindly persons of real merit in fine womanhood or manhood are found in the ordinary walks of life rather than in the neighborhood of the richly beautiful homes.

You may be one of these who has brought reproach upon the wealthy because as soon as you had enough money you snubbed the less favored.

COMPANY TIMES

When Ma's expecting company
She gets all hot and fluttery,
And says: "Oh, me! Oh, my! Oh, dear!
Get busy now or they'll be here
Before we've swept and shined the stairs
And dusted all the parlor chairs!
Good gracious! It is half-past one,
And I've still got my apron on!"

When Ma is going to entertain
Her club, coz it's her turn again,
She sends us children out to play
And asks us kindly please to stay
An' not come runnin' in an' out
Or hang around the door an' shout.
She doesn't want her friends to see
How big a nuisance we can be.

When Ma's expecting company
The neighbors all come in to see
Just how she's fixed the parlor chairs
An' where they'll leave their wraps upstairs,
An' how the curtains drape, an' they Stand round an' talk, till Ma says:
"Hey!
Get out of here. It's half past one!
An' I've still got my apron on!"

FAITH O' THE MAN WHO WAITS

Somewhere hot steel is f. wing.
I can still see it white and glowing.

Somewhere the furnaces are hotly burning.
And strong men keep great ladles turning.

While great steam hammers roar and pound.

But for me it's only a dream—
How could such joy druggery seem.

While the hot steel thrills me thru and thru.

Harmony At Jackson Dinner Counted Democratic Asset

Background Of Party Gains Gives Force To Speeches But Public Thinks Clearer Definition Of Policies Should Be Found.

Harmony at the Jackson Day dinner of Democrats at the national capital is considered by many who comment upon the affair as an asset of the organization. Success in congressional elections is believed to have furnished material for forceful utterances, but a desire is expressed for clearer statements of the party attitude on current issues.

The Jackson Day event, in the opinion of the FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM (Ind. Dem.) "is a labor of love, a ritualistic ceremony and battery service station activity, wherein the ideals of Democracy are recharged in divers and sundry individualistic ways." Demanding something more in the form of "a diagnosis of conditions and a prescription for their cure," The Star-Telegram feels that the dinner "didn't offer a single practical remedy for the correction of present 'rattles' in government, industry or economics."

"It was a good deal of a love feast," says the CHARLESTON (S. C.) EVENING POST (Dem.), "with the three former nominees of the party making speeches which aroused no controversy." The Evening Post declares that "the Democrats are drifting to victory and are likely to win without much more than a passive attitude," but that "it will make a great difference after they have been called to power who is at the head of the party and the leader of the nation; for there are big problems to deal with and a big man is needed to handle them." That paper holds that "the party ought to be able to give the country a government that would throw into the shadow the drab Harding-Coolidge-Hoover dynasty and recall the brilliance of the Wilson era."

"It was an old-fashioned exercise in kicking the elephant all over the lot, and it was executed with great gusto," avers the NORFOLK VIRGINIAN-PILOT (Ind. Dem.), while the DAYTON DAILY NEWS (Ind. Dem.) remarking that "the appreciation of the Jacksonians of the grotesque humor of the plight of their political opponents was just American," feels that "they also talked soberly of the work of reconstruction lying ahead." The COLUMBUS OHIO STATE JOURNAL (Rep.) comments: "Each of the main orators obviously was sincere. The state of the nation apparently has driven much of the ballyhoo out of politics, and has substituted more serious effort. Perhaps this is one of the blessings of the depression."

"It is doubtful," in the judgement of the CHATTANOOGA TIMES (Ind. Dem.), "if there has ever been a greater exhibition of harmony in the Democratic camp. If the party succeeds in keeping the peace within itself and in maintaining it throughout the convention to be held in Chicago beginning next June 27, it will enter the last lap of the campaign under encouraging conditions, provided it does not load itself down with an impossible candidate and a lot of socialistic schemes."

"The spirit of conciliation between opposing factions dominated the dinner," states the ROANOKE WORLD-NEWS (Dem.), with the conclusion: "That solid front is not going to be broken if those at the helm can prevent it and the promise to drop any individual pet schemes for the sake of solidity of purpose and unity of objective guarantees that the party will go into its national convention confident of launching a victorious campaign which will return it to power after 12 years in the slough of defeat."

Observing "an obvious effort to be fair and not claim all the damage done by the depression as due to Republicans," the LOWELL EVENING LEADER (Rep.) assumes that "this must in a way be due to an expectation of coming victory and a consequent sobering of the arguments, because Democracy must pick up a red-hot situation and deal with it successfully." The OKLAHOMA CITY OKLAHOMAN (Ind.) says: "If the deliverances of the evening prove to be what they were designed to be—a definite forecast of the Democratic campaign of 1932—the country may prepare itself to hear furious attacks upon the Hoover administration accompanied by a dearth of panaceas for existing ills. The administration is going to be held to a strict accountability for the state of the union whether that unhappy state has been brought about by administration ineptitudes or natural causes."

Observing that the speakers "shied off" when it came to important subjects, the BALTIMORE SUN (Ind. Dem.) offers the advice: "Our economic welfare is closely involved with the economic welfare of the rest of the world. Since the Democratic party lost one historic campaign by taking a stand for international cooperation, it is not surprising that its spokesmen are cautious in their references to our foreign relationships. But such caution is not in keeping with our situation in the world today. One of the first needs of the country is a reconsideration of the old taboos which have so long stood in the way of a rational adjustment of the debt and reparations problems now standing in the way of world recovery. Before the Democratic party formally enters the approaching campaign it ought to address itself seriously to this need and undertake to find a formula for meeting it. If this is done, and if the outline of policies sketched at the Jackson Day dinner is elaborated so as to indicate more specifically what it intends to do with the tariff, with prohibition and with respect to the nation's fiscal and

RUTH ST. DENIS

World-noted dancer, co-founder of the Denishawn School of Classic Dancing

QUESTION: Miss St. Denis, will you tell us what attributes must be achieved by the classical dancer of the future if he or she is to be recognized as a success in that art?

ANSWER: There are many receipes for success. I believe that any dancer who would achieve success must possess as the crowning characteristic the ability to express the spiritual.

Ruth St. Denis

It seems to me that we stand on the very threshold of an era of great self-expression and spiritual release. To those who would make dancing a career, I would say — "train carefully and thoroughly in the technique and form of the dance. Start your training early, but behind every step and every movement of the body, build a background of the spiritual, that which has motivated the greatest of man's cultural achievements."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

GANDHI'S NEMESIS

The hefty Maharajs of Burdwan, Indian potentate, who recently visited America is the Jimmy Walker of his country, but with great and impressive dignity. His witticisms almost wrecked the Imperial Conference of October, 1919. His epigrams, in solemn, precise English, are treasured in European chancelleries.

In 1908, the huge, but nimble Maharaha seized Sir Adam Fraser by the coat collar, jerked him out of the rance of an assassin's bullet, and ran with him to safety. The British Government made him Sir Byag Chand Mahtab, K. C. S. I. K. C. I. E. "Now I can give a mere maharaja the merry ha-ha!" he said.

His full title is Maharaja Adhiraj Byag Chand Mahtab Bahhadur Mahtab III. This comes all the way down from the Mogul Emperor with no loss in transmission.

He draws $15,000,000 a year and rules 2,000,000 persons. A kindly potentate, he maintains a college for his retainers. This is his first visit to America. He is enlightened in his views and is active and generous in furthering the advancement of women in India.

He is one East Indian who is not at all interested in Gandhi's efforts for independence.

DAWES TO HEAD RECONSTRUCTION BODY

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S decision to name Ambassador Dawes to head the Reconstruction Corporation adds confidence to the hopes for success of the leading feature in the President's relief programme. General Dawes combines fitness with popular appeal, a selection reminiscent of the appointment to the Supreme Court of Chief Justice Hughes who brought corresponding qualities to the judicial position.

Although expert financial knowledge is necessary for the job, no mere banker would do. He would have to have the additional knowledge which Mr. Dawes has shown in his series of diplomatic successes. An understanding of foreign issues, no less than domestic, and a capacitty for dealing with men vindicate the President's choice.

The fact that Ambassador Dawes will accept the post should effectively allay persistent rumors that the recent announcement of his intention to return from service at London was putting him in the way of being elected to the White House upon the contingency of a certain turn in events. He denied it at the time with an emphasis that left no loopholes, and now developments confirm his words. It will be gratifying to have him among us once more without thought that his presence has any bearing on the nomination for President.

He has a picturesque way of getting things done of which the country had lost sight while he was abroad, where the exigencies of his situation seldom permitted a free play of these characteristics. Back in America, he will again assert the leadership of which the country has lively memories.

SOME BOOKKEEPING FOR MUSSOLINI

Commonly attributed to Mussolini, the demand comes out of Italy that both reparations and debts be cancelled. Without discussing the motivation of this demand, it is interesting to examine into Italy's accounts in what Mussolini's newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, calls "the tragic bookkeeping of the War."

Under the Young plan, and without the moratorium, Italy was due to receive in the moratorium year: From Germany, in reparations, $45,448,560; from other countries, in debt payments, $1,214,820. Italy would have retained $9,242,160. Then she would have passed on in payments on debts, $22,819,560 to Great Britain, and $14,601,660 to the United States. So her sacrifice, through cancellation, would be under $10,000,000.

Or, in the fifty-eight years of the Young Plan's operation, Italy would be due to receive in reparations from Germany $4,057,204,160, and in debts paid by others, $9,265,980. She would retain $315,352,950. And she would pass on in debt payments, to Great Britain, $1,346,425,500, and to the United States $2,384,691,660, or a rough total of $3,731,000,000.

Cancellation would mean for Italy sacrifice of 315 million dollars in fifty-eight years.

And what would be the United States' sacrifice through cancellation? This moratorium year it is about 239 million dollars; in the entire settlement period of fifty-eight years, it would be more than twenty-one and one-third billion dollars!

The paramount question, however, is whether there can be net economic profit through sacrifice by debt cancellation. That is a big question, when viewed as between Italy with its 315 million sacrifice, and the United States with its 21 and one-third billions. But it is exactly that comparison, between Italy and the United States, that is posed by the Italian demand.—The Minneapolis Journal.

AN INDIAN COME-BACK

Whenever a distinguished visitor enters any American city, one of the first questions the reporters toss at him is, "How do you like our city?" This is especially true of New York; and a group of Indian artists from the Navajo country of New Mexico, visiting New York for an Indian exhibit recently, gave a reply that ought to keep their memory green for a long while.

They simply replied, gravely, "Have you ever seen Santa Fe?"

Of course, not all visitors can use that come-back, for not all visitors to the big town have seen Santa Fe themselves; but there is in it a wholesome antidote to the current worship of metropolitan things people and ways that is worth bearing in mind.

It applies, too,to all visitors, distinguished or otherwise, and it applies to all cities, from New York down to some metropolis of the cow country. For we tend to put too great a halo on our cities; we are too admiring of their tall buildings, their busy streets and their everlasting clatter and noise; we let them overpower us, so that we accord them a respect that isn't based on any genuine values.

We have, in fact, altogether too much of a childish admiration for mere bigness. Because a given building is higher than another, it must be finer. Because a given city is larger than another, it must be a better place to live. Because one home is more elaborate than another, it must be happier.

These Indians managed to escape that mistake. Unimpressed by bigness, they found that Santa Fe could stand comparison with New York very well. Perhaps the towers of Manhattan don't seem so splendid to men who are used to the great red cliffs of New Mexico. Perhaps the congestion of a great city did not seem entirely praiseworthy to men who knew the emptiness of the southwestern plains.

At any rate, their attitude was a sane one. At a time when every town hopes, somehow, to become bigger and more crowded every year, it is a good one to keep in mind.

The Turtle Called Life
And "Loving Anxiety"
And the Old Black Mammy

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I know a small boy who says that "all girls are silly." I know a little girl who thinks "boys aren't nice."

"I'll keep an eye on both of them and after a few years I'll laugh—but they'll not know what I'm laughing at.

So often we hear "loving anxiety" praised as a noble virtue. Very often it is, but sometimes it is selfish, sometimes it is an interfering interest in another human being. If that isn't true, why does anxiety, when relieved, so often turn to anger?

When I was young, I was fascinated by those homely gray turtles that sat in the sun on rocks or logs.

It was my ambition, then, to creep so quietly upon one of those dozing turtles that I might catch h'm and carve my initials on his back.

But I was never quite able to do it. Always, just at the important second, he slipped from his place and submerged.

I've seen many people, since, trying desperately to carve their initials on the turtle we call Life—and succeeding no better than I did with the little river turtles.

There was an old negro mammy, who had been a slave. She was poor, she was sick, she was alone, and someone tried to convince her that she had been "better off" when she was a slave. She agreed that when she was a slave she was fed and cared for by her owners and was assured of security in old age. She agreed, too, that in freedom she had grocery bills, doctor bills, rent bills and was doomed to uncertainty in her old age. But she preferred her freedom because, as she put it, "Dere's de feelin's!"

"De feelin's" are the most important of our possessions, and they can't be argued about.

People have said to me, "Can't you listen to Reason?"

Yes, I can listen to Reason, but I don't like her voice. It is so harsh, so impatient, so ruthlessly logical. She gives me no chance to be foolish. She endures none of my nonsense. She looks at me so contemptuously.

I could listen more happily to Reason if she spoke more swiftly to her truant children.

GOOD NEIGHBORHOOD

How do you treat the family in your locality who lives in a humble home and has to get along on next to nothing in money?

Do you indicate by your manner that they have no business to try to live in a section which is beyond their financial means?

In justifying your position do you say that these people would stand higher in the estimation of everyone if they would select a home among those of their own limited means?

Rather a snobby position to take, is it not?

Every person who feels that way should be admired for wishing to live in a good neighborhood where there can be a closer association with those whom it is a pleasure to know.

Persons who offer opportunities for educational advance and knowledge.

By this it is not meant that those who live outside a favored section are not as fine a class of people as those who have homes in more favored location.

In fact, it is true that the salt of the earth and the most kindly persons of real merit in fine womanhood or manhood are found in the ordinary walks of life rather than in the neighborhood of the richly beautiful homes.

You man be one of those who has brought reproach upon the wealthy because as soon as you had enough money you snubbed the less favored.

She gets all hot and fluttery,
And says: "Oh, me! Oh, my! Oh, dear!

Before we've swept and shined the stairs
And dusted all the parlor chairs!
Good gracious! It is half-past one,
And I've still got my apron on!"

When Ma is going to entertain
Her club, coz it's her turn again,
She sends us children out to play
And asks us kindly please to stay
An' not come runnin' in an' out
Or hang around the door an' shout.
She doesn't want her friends to see
How big a nuisance we can be.

When Ma's expecting company
The neighbors all come in to see
Just how she's fixed the parlor chairs
An' where they'll leave their wraps upstairs,
An' how the curtains drape, an' they Stand round an' talk, till Ma says: "Hey!
Get out of here. It's half past one!
An' I've still got my apron on!"

Harmony At Jackson Dinner Counted Democratic Asset

Background Of Party Gains Gives Force To Speeches But Public Thinks Clearer Definition Of Policies Should Be Found.

Harmony at the Jackson Day dinner of Democrats at the national capital is considered by many who comment upon the affair as an asset of the organization. "The spirit of conciliation between opposing factions dominated the dinner," states the ROANOKE WORLD-NEWS (Dem.), with the conclusion: "That solid front is not going to be broken if those at the helm can prevent it and the promise to drop any individual pet schemes for the sake of solidity of purpose and unity of objective guarantees that the party will go into its national convention confident of launching a victorious campaign which will return it to power after 12 years in the slough of defeat."

Observing "an obvious effort to be fair and not claim all the damage done by the depression as due to Republicans," the LOWELL EVENING LEADER (Rep.) assumes that "this must in a way be due to an expectation of coming victory and a consequent sobering of the arguments, because Democracy must pick up a red-hot situation and deal with it successfully." The OKLAHOMA CITY OKLAHOMAN (Ind) says: "If the deliverances of the evening prove to be what they were designed to be—a definite forecast of the Democratic campaign of 1932—the country may prepare itself to hear furious attacks upon the Hoover administration accompanied by a dearth of panaceas for existing ills. The administration is going to be held to a strict accountability for the state of the union whether that unhappy state has been brought about by administration ineptitudes or natural causes."

Observing that the speakers "shied off" when it came to important subjects, the BALTIMORE SUN (Ind. Dem.) offers the advice: "Our economic welfare is closely involved with the economic welfare of the rest of the world. Since the Democratic party lost one historic campaign by taking a stand for international cooperation, it is not surprising that its spokesmen are cautious in their references to our foreign relationships. But such caution is not in keeping with our situation in the world today. One of the first needs of the country is a reconsideration of the old taboos which have so long stood in the way of a rational adjustment of the debt and reparations problems now standing in the way of world recovery. Before the Democratic party formally enters the approaching campaign it ought to address itself seriously to this need and undertake to find a formula for meeting it. If this is done, and if the outine of policies sketched at the Jackson Day dinner is elaborated so as to indicate more specifically what it intends to do with the tariff, with prohibition and with respect to the nation's fiscal and

GETTING AHEAD

(How Well Known Persons Achieved Success)

BY THE SUCCESS REPORTER

RUTH ST. DENIS

World-noted dancer, co-founder of the Denishawn School of Classic Dancing

QUESTION: Miss St. Denis, will you tell us what attributes must be achieved by the classical dancer of the future if he or she is to be recognized as a success in that art?

Ruth St. Denis

ANSWER: There are many receipes for success. I believe that any dancer who would achieve success must possess as the crowning characteristic the ability to express the spiritual.

It seems to me that we stand on the very threshold of an era of great self-expression and spiritual release. To those who would make dancing a career, I would say — "train carefully and thoroughly in the technique and form of the dance. Start your training early, but behind every step and every movement of the body, build a background of the spiritual, that which has motivated the greatest of man's cultural achievements."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

GANDHI'S NEMESIS

The hefty Maharaja of Burdwan, Indian potentate, who recently visited America is the Jimmy Walker of his country, but with great and impressive dignity. His witticisms almost wrecked the Imperial Conference of October, 1919. His epigrams, in solemn, precise English, are treasured in European chancelleries.

In 1908, the huge, but nimble Maharaha seized Sir Adam Fraser by the coat collar, jerked him out of the range of an assassin's bullet, and ran with him to safety. The British Government made him Sir Byag Chand Mahtab, K. C. S. I. K. C. I. E. "Now I can give a mere maharaja the merry ha-ha!" he said.

His full title is Maharaja Adhiraj Byag Chand Mahtab Bahhadur Mahtab III. This comes all the way down from the Mogul Emperor with no loss in transmission.

He draws $15,000,000 a year and rules 2,000,000 persons. A kindly potentate, he maintains a college for his retainers. This is his first visit to America. He is enlightened in his views and is active and generous in furthering the advancement of women in India.

He is one East Indian who is not at all interested in Gandhi's efforts for independence.

Prophesying Ventilation Of the Future

Air Conditioning Of All Buildings Coming, Foreseen

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The United States can have the coldest winter weather and the hottest summer weather of any civilized country. Most parts of the country have what a Russian acquaintance of mine called "continental climate", similar to Russia itself. But it is not only the continental part of the country—the land between the great mountain ranges, the Alleghenies and the Rockies—the entire area of the U. S. except the extreme northern and extreme southern parts and the lower Pacific coast shares this extreme variability of climate.

As such, the ventilation problem and temperature conditioning problem of our houses, is a pressing one. For a nation so proud of its progress it has done very little about it.

But there are indications that times are changing. Before long we may expect to see ventilating systems installed in homes and places of business which will have a hot weather as well as a cold weather control. Such a system will not be like our present furnaces in that attention is centered exculsively on temperature. It will also condition the air as to moisture. In the coldest weather it will add moisture to the air and in the hottest weather it will remove moisture from the air. It will control that third important factor in healthy ventilation—movement of the air.

In our very cold below zero weather the air coming in from the outside to be heated by a modern furnace, is entirely too dry. When it is warmed it expands in volume. The cold air had its volume so controlled that it had most of its water squeezed out of it. When heated without having any water added it represents a state somewhat like the Sahara desert. And that is the air most of us have to endure during the winter indoors—summer Sahara desert air.

In the summer, on the contrary, gallons of water can be removed from the air of a room daily. The result is much better than if the air were cooled. If the air is also in motion we can be completely comfortable indoors on the most blistering day.

A recent article by W. B. Spooner, Jr., a chemical engineer, on "Air Conditioning," shows the many changes in social and economic life that the universal installation of such ventilating systems will introduce.

No seasonal slump in theatrical attendance in air conditioned theaters. The air conditioned hotel will be the favorite, winter and summer. No more electric fans. Clothing of almost the same weight winter and summer. Less consumption of candy in the winter, less of soft drinks in the summer. All these things will result from the introduction of proper ventilation in our homes, offices, stores, hotels and places of congregation. It may create as much of a revolution as the automobile or the telephone did.

Coke Business Around Connellsville Begins "Picking Up", New Orders

(International News Service)

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 21.—Coke production, with an increase of 870 tons during the past week, has responded to an increase in buying orders after the turn of the year, a survey of the region revealed today.

One of the most heartening signs was the receipt of a furnace order for 5,000 tons monthly effective last January 1. The Connellsville regional total is now in excess of 10,000 tons for the first time since late in last October.

Estimated production during the week ending January 16 was 10,170 tons divided as follows:

Connellsville, 2,620 tons, an increase of 20 tons over the preceding week; Lower Connellsville, 7,550 tons, an increase of 870 tons as compared with a decrease of 380 tons the preceding week.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" —bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

economic crisis the confidence in evidence at the Washington meeting will be justified."

"It was manifest that the Roosevelt sentinel prevailed over all else," observes the CHARLOTTE OBSERVER (Ind. Dem.) with the incidental comment that, as to Andrew Jackson, "the affair ran to an end with the famous Democrat absolutely unhonored." On the subject of candidates, the MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL (Ind. Rep.) emphasizes the part played by Alfred E. Smith with the statement: "Forthright and dynamic, like that president of a century ago, 'Al' Smith put the punch into the dinner program. What does it all mean? Was the Smith appearance a calculated move to head off the speeding career of Governor Roosevelt? Is Mr. Smith himself a party to such a move? Did he speak as a prospective candidate for president? The Smith speech certainly had a candidate ring. It had the sound of a campaign utterance. There was nothing impersonal about it. It offered a program for the party, but its suggestions were the offering of a man who spoke with authority as the flag bearer of the party last time, and who may conceivably carry the banner again."

"The pretense that Jeffersonian and Jacksonian principles can stop depressions and unemployment is hokum," maintains the SAN JOSE MERCURY HERALD (Rep.) while the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS (Ind.) advises that the Democrats cannot win the presidency by attacking the administration, but "must offer a constructive platform of their own."

Given Acquittal In Murder Case

Wild Demonstration In Youngstown Court Room Over Verdict

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 21—Amid enthusiasm which rivaled the wildest scenes in the history of the Mahoning county court house, 24 year old Victor Miller, was acquitted this afternoon on a charge of first-degree murder.

The jury of four women and eight men was unanimous on the first ballot, after two hours' deliberation of the charge that Miller had driven the automobile used by Albert Williams in the holdup August 12, when the state alleges Williams killed Gabriel Carroll, gasoline station attendant.

Since Miller was charged as having aided and abetted in the murder Judge George H. Gessner instructed the jury it had only three alternatives—a verdict of guilty in the first degree, guilty with recommendation of mercy or not guilty.

Given Acquittal In Murder Case

Wild Demonstration In Youngstown Court Room Over Verdict

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 21—Amid enthusiasm which rivaled the wildest scenes in the history of the Mahoning county court house, 24 year old Victor Miller, was acquitted this afternoon on a charge of first-degree murder.

The jury of four women and eight men was unanimous on the first ballot, after two hours' deliberation of the charge that Miller had driven the automobile used by Albert Williams in the holdup August 12, when the state alleges Williams killed Gabriel Carroll, gasoline station attendant.

Since Miller was charged as having aided and abetted in the murder Judge George H. Gessner instructed the jury it had only three alternatives—a verdict of guilty in the first degree, guilty with recommendation of mercy or not guilty.

State Committee Will Probe Vote Machines

Situation Far Different From That Advocated By Election Reform Will Be Faced

Charges Of Attempted Bribery Will Be Probed, Machines Cost Lot Of Money

By LEO V. DOLAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21.—When the senate voting machine investigating committee meets here next Tuesday it will face a situation far different from that forecast by election law reform advocates when use of the machines to preclude ballot frauds first was urged in Pennsylvania.

Charges of attempted bribery by salesmen for one company, bankruptcy proceedings filed against another and a well defined move on the part of taxpayers in all parts of the state to prevent having additional machines forced on them are some of the things the committee will have to face.

Must Fix Machines.

In addition the committee also will learn officially that 1465 machines have been ordered to the factory for installation of additional mechanical features to prevent cheating at the polls and that in a number of counties voters are anxious to revert to paper ballots.

The committee must decide whether it will continue to back Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the Commonwealth, in his move to force machines upon counties where they were approved by the voters, regardless of action of county commissioners.

One situation which will be called to the attention of the committee is in Cambria county where a bond issue was necessary to obtain money for school teachers' salaries and where the commissioners refuse flatly to buy machines. There, as in other instances, Beamish has announced his intention of forcing the machines upon the county because they were approved at the polls.

Philadelphians Fight.

Philadelphia county commissioners have fought a strenuous battle, including a pending appeal to the state supreme court, to prevent forced purchase of 800 machines at $1094.27 each. After the supreme court rules on the appeal, a group of prominent lawyers who have been active in election reform but who oppose use of the machines is expected to attack constitutionality of the voting machine act.

In Armstrong county the commissioners have refused to purchase machines for Leechburg.

Commissioners in Allegheny and Schuylkill counties have awarded contracts for the purchase of machines but Beamish has ordered those delivered be returned to the factory for installation of additional safeguards. They were purchased from the Poole Company, Baltimore.

Cost Just As High.

On the ground that "practically all the machines were inefficient, defective and broke down," the new board of commissioners in Northumberland county has voiced a contract with the Poole Company for additional machines.

Meanwhile a receivership action has been inaugurated against the Poole Company indicating a possible challenge to validity of the existing contracts as well as probable delivery of additional machines.

Opponents of the "Iron voters" contend state-wide adoption of the machines would result in a cost to the taxpayers in excess of $8,000,000 and that where they are now in use election costs are as high as with paper ballots.

So, under Judge Gray's ruling, she was in the Allegheny county jail today, serving the first day of the term required for the cancellation of the costs.

Five Soloists In School Cantata

Senior High School Music Department To Present "Father Of Waters"

The senior high school music department this week presents a Charles Wakefield Cadman cantata in a public performance. It is the story of the Mississippi river, "The Father of Waters," interpreted musically by the vocal talent of the senior high school.

Choruses interspersed with solos condense into one evening's entertainment the dramatic past of the mighty stream on whose waters has floated many an episode in the pageant of the nation's history. 'Old Man River' has seen romance, adventure and tragedy; he has heard and remembers the native melodies of Indian, Spaniard, Frenchman and African slave. When the great American epic is written it may well seize upon the Mississippi as the setting for its episodes. Meanwhile Cadman has made the most of the varied musical opportunities offered by a river with such a past and the cantata, "Father of Waters", will be a happy blending of melodies familiar as well as new.

Five soloists have been chosen. Morgan Jones' baritone will unfold the wonder of the discovery of the river and the wild adventures of the French explorers. Guy Davis, also a baritone, continues with romance on the bayous of the Mississippi. Another baritone, John Phillips, shows us vocally the full moon and the lights and shadows and mystery of night in Louisiana. Marian Wilkison and Sam Dennis, soprano and tenor, are the first white lovers to share their joy on the shores of "The Father of Waters."

The Canadian tax, they said, is levied upon manufactures, and does not appear as a tax upon retail goods.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

Among those men, who were successful in the early history of this district and really had a part in the growth of this community, was the late Samuel Foltz, who was the father of Samuel Foltz, who died but recently and was president of the First National Bank of Lawrence County at the time of his death. Samuel Foltz, whom we'll designate as Senior, so as to differentiate from the Samuel Foltz, known and remembered personally by a majority of the people of this city at the present time, was born in Butler, Pa., in 1826 and died October 22, 1878. His parents were Nobert and Elizabeth Riddle Foltz. He was given the best educational advantages and when he decided to take up the practice of law, he prepared for his examinations under the tutorship of Charles C. Sullivan, a leading attorney at that time, and was admitted to the bar from Attorney Sullivan's office. Mr. Foltz proved an able lawyer, but he did not confine his activities to the practice of law. When the opportunity afforded, he became interested in industrial and financial enterprises, with which he remained honorably connected for many years. In association with his father-in-law, William Stewart, he owned and operated the Margaret and Will Roy and Winfield furnaces located in Butler and Lawrence counties and until the close of his life was identified with the manufacture of iron in this district. In 1873 he went into the banking business, establishing at that time the private bank of Foltz & Sons, and in 1874 accepted the presidency of the First National Bank of New Castle, remaining as its head until his death, which was accidentally caused by a runaway horse. William S. Foltz, a son became president of the First National Bank on the death of his father Samuel Foltz Sr. Samuel Foltz Jr. eventually succeeded his brother as head of that bank and on the merging of the First National Bank of New Castle and the National Bank of Lawrence county, became president of the merged banks, known as the First National Bank of Lawrence county.

Will Porter, president of the class was in charge of the ceremony. Rev. G. M. Landis, pastor of the First Baptist church of the city, gave the address of the evening selecting "The Man of God" as his subject and the well chosen words were a beautiful application to the life of Mr. McKinney.

Mrs. Madeline Rugh sang two splendid numbers after which Dr. W. E. McClure, pastor of the church drew aside the curtain, which unveiled the beautiful bronze marker. He also read a note of appreciation from Mrs. McKinney, expressing her gratitude for the manner of perpetuating the memory of Mr. McKinney. Mrs. McKinney and granddaughter Jane McKinney, were in the audience.

During the unveiling ceremony, John Paton and Mrs. Paul Welsh most beautifully and softly played "Traumerei" by Schumann.

The benediction was pronounced by Dr. McClure.

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—Rather than pay $390 court costs in an unsuccessful action she started, Mrs. Anna O. Cofsy told Judge James H. Gray she would go to jail.

So, under Judge Gray's ruling, she was in the Allegheny county jail today, serving the first day of the term required for the cancellation of the costs.

Mrs. Cofsy filed an information against Mrs. Bessie Yatkofsky, her sister-in-law, charging embezzlement in the administration of the estate of her husband, Rubin Yatkofsky. The jury acquitted Mrs. Yatkofsky and placed the costs on Mrs. Cofsy.

Five Soloists In School Cantata

Senior High School Music Department To Present "Father Of Waters"

The senior high school music department this week presents a Charles Wakefield Cadman cantata in a public performance. It is the story of the Mississippi river, "The Father of Waters," interpreted musically by the vocal talent of the senior high school.

Choruses interspersed with solos condense into one evening's entertainment the dramatic past of the mighty stream on whose waters has floated many an episode in the pageant of the nation's history. 'Old Man River' has seen romance, adventure and tragedy; he has heard and remembers the native melodies of Indian, Spaniard, Frenchman and African slave. When the great American epic is written it may well seize upon the Mississippi as the setting for its episodes. Meanwhile Cadman has made the most of the varied musical opportunities offered by a river with such a past and the cantata, "Father of Waters", will be a happy blending of melodies familiar as well as new.

Five soloists have been chosen. Morgan Jones' baritone will unfold the wonder of the discovery of the river and the wild adventures of the French explorers. Guy Davis, also a baritone, continues with romance on the bayous of the Mississippi. Another baritone, John Phillips, shows us vocally the full moon and the lights and shadows and mystery of night in Louisiana. Marian Wilkison and Sam Dennis, soprano and tenor, are the first white lovers to share their joy on the shores of "The Father of Waters."

Canadian Sales Tax System Is Approved

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The Canadian sales tax system can be successfully adapted to this country, the house ways and means committee was informed Wednesday by two experts sent to Canada by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to study the system. They are Dr. Thomas Adams of Yale University, a tax expert frequently called upon by congressional committee, and E. C. Alvord, Washington lawyer, who formerly was a treasury tax expert.

The Canadian tax, they said, is levied upon manufactures, and does not appear as a tax upon retail goods.

LOOKING BACK IN NEW CASTLE

Among those men, who were successful in the early history of this district and really had a part in the growth of this community, was the late Samuel Foltz, who was the father of Samuel Foltz, who died but recently and was president of the First National Bank of Lawrence County at the time of his death. Samuel Foltz, whom we'll designate as Senior, so as to differentiate from the Samuel Foltz, known and remembered personally by a majority of the people of this city at the present time, was born in Butler, Pa., in 1826 and died October 22, 1878. His parents were Nobert and Elizabeth Riddle Foltz. He was given the best educational advantages and when he decided to take up the practice of law, he prepared for his examinations under the tutorship of Charles C. Sullivan, a leading attorney at that time, and was admitted to the bar from Attorney Sullivan's office. Mr. Foltz proved an able lawyer, but he did not confine his activities to the practice of law. When the opportunity afforded, he became interested in industrial and financial enterprises, with which he remained honorably connected for many years. In association with his father-in-law, William Stewart, he owned and operated the Margaret and Will Roy and Winfield furnaces located in Butler and Lawrence counties and until the close of his life was identified with the manufacture of iron in this district. In 1873 he went into the banking business, establishing at that time the private bank of Foltz & Sons, and in 1874 accepted the presidency of the First National Bank of New Castle, remaining as its head until his death, which was accidentally caused by a runaway horse. William S. Foltz, a son became president of the First National Bank on the death of his father Samuel Foltz Sr. Samuel Foltz Jr. eventually succeeded his brother as head of that bank and on the merging of the First National Bank of New Castle and the National Bank of Lawrence county, became president of the merged banks, known as the First National Bank of Lawrence county.

Jouett Shouse Issues Warning For Democrats

Chairman Of Democratic National Committee Delivers Vitriolic Speech

MUST MEET WET QUESTION SQUARELY

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—The Democratic party must meet the liquor issue squarely and adopt a courageous platform marked by frankness and brevity in the national convention next June. This warning was broadcast by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national committee at a victory dinner here last night as he departed from his prepared speech to flay the Anti-Saloon league and particularly Bishop James Cannon, Jr.

Shouse's speech was one of the most vitriolic political addresses heard here in years.

Shouse also notified dry church leaders they must keep out of the national convention at Chicago. At the same time he called upon his fellow party chieftains not to evade the 18th amendment.

"We must have the courage to meet every problem with which America is confronted," said Shouse in speaking of the platform. "Not only the tariff, not only unemployment legislation, not only the matter of foreign debts, or regulation of the utilities.

"The courage that we must show embraces meeting one problem also which some would shrink from but which the Democratic party in Pennsylvania has had the courage to meet without equivocation. Of course you know that I mean prohibition," he said.

Democratic victory this fall will depend upon congress, on the platform and the presidential candidate, he asserted.

On another occasion, the man charged, Mrs. Neely was said to have mixed ground glass with pancakes.

Neely further alleged his wife closed the doors and windows in a room and turned on the gas, knowing, he said, it was his habit to strike a match when he entered the room. He said he detected the odor of gas and did not light a match.

Jouett Shouse Issues Warning For Democrats

Chairman Of Democratic National Committee Delivers Vitriolic Speech

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—The Democratic party must meet the liquor issue squarely and adopt a courageous platform marked by frankness and brevity in the national convention next June. This warning was broadcast by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national committee at a victory dinner here last night as he departed from his prepared speech to flay the Anti-Saloon league and particularly Bishop James Cannon, Jr.

Shouse's speech was one of the most vitriolic political addresses heard here in years.

Shouse also notified dry church leaders they must keep out of the national convention at Chicago. At the same time he called upon his fellow party chieftains not to evade the 18th amendment.

"We must have the courage to meet every problem with which America is confronted," said Shouse in speaking of the platform. "Not only the tariff, not only unemployment legislation, not only the matter of foreign debts, or regulation of the utilities.

"The courage that we must show embraces meeting one problem also which some would shrink from but which the Democratic party in Pennsylvania has had the courage to meet without equivocation. Of course you know that I mean prohibition," he said.

Democratic victory this fall will depend upon congress, on the platform and the presidential candidate, he asserted.

On another occasion, the man charged, Mrs. Neely was said to have mixed ground glass with pancakes.

Many Patients Are Treated At State Hospital

Cresson Sanitarium Reports Successful Year With Many Treated

MANY CURES ARE ALSO REPORTED

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21—With 463 patients admitted and 429 discharged during 1931, the Cresson Sanatorium report, submitted by Dr. Thomas H. A. Stites, Medical Director to Dr. Theodore B. Appel, Secretary of Health, indicates a successful year. These figures do not include the children's division.

The care of these patients involved a total of 141,736 hospital days at the institution. Of these adult discharges, about 200 went out under the classifications, "cured, arrested or improved." Some patients having been trained in the type of care they need to further convalesce as well as the diet needed, and the rest required, go out to their homes to continue the strict regimen of Cresson, and to continue the program of regaining their full health and strength.

In the children's department at Cresson, 395 patients were admitted during 1931, of that number 369 being for observation and study of their condition. The discharges for the year totalled 415, of which number 344 went home listed under the heads "cured, arrested or improved." The work of the children's division required 77,339 hospital days during the year.

Thus briefly in figures is written a statement of a great year's work on the top of the Allegheny mountains, where Dr. Stites and his assistants have waged a winning fight for the lives and the consequent health and usefulness of almost a thousand patients.

All that modern scientific discovery, medical skill and careful nursing could do, has been done during the year 1931. Many a fine victory has been won. Sometimes, of course, the enemy was too deeply entrenched to be dislodged, and the medical force had to face defeat. But results have been encouraging and the smile of health has been returning to many a face at Cresson during the past year.

Wife Was Fat

Lost Husband's Love

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper of April 4 in connection with a divorce trial that has attracted wide attention.

"She was a beautiful woman," one witness testified, "but she got fat and is not attractive any more."

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do.

If you are fat how would you like to lose it and at the same time gain in physical charm and acquire a clean, clear skin and eyes that sparkle with buoyant health?

And gain in energy and activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for 30 days. You can help the action of Kruschen by cutting down on pastry and fatty meats and going light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

Kruschen Salts are a blend of 6 mineral salts most helpful to body health. Best of all, a bottle of Kruschen Salts that will last you for 4 weeks costs but a trifle. Ask Kendrick's Cut Rate, New Castle Drug Co. or any druggist for a bottle and start to lose fat today.

Says Parents Should Correct Child Defects

Find Physical Defects Discovered In Schools Are Neglected

HAVE BAD EFFECT IN LATER YEARS

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21—"School boards, parents and civic organizations in Pennsylvania must pay more attention to the physical defects discovered by the school physician in the children attending our public schools, and reported to the teachers and parents, by the State Department of Health on the Blue Folders, said John W. German, Jr., Assistant Supervisor School Division, Bureau of Child Health, in his monthly report issued today.

"Records compiled by this Division show that 74 per cent of the pupils examined in Fourth Class Districts, have some physical defect, while our follow-up report show only 31 per cent of those reported defective, receive treatment. These defects in the children, uncorrected, became a deciding factor not only in the personal comfort and health of the adult individual, but affect his or her earning ability as well.

"The Compensation laws of the state, as well as the desire of industry to eliminate accidents, bar from most trades those who have defective eyesight, poor hearing or crippled limbs. Those in poor health find it difficult to retain a place on any pay roll. Each year Pennsylvania is adding to this list of unfortunate children, who, as adults will become special charges of neglect in childhood.

"The early discovery and correction of physical defects is not only advisable but practical," continued Mr. German. "During the first few years of a childs' school life such corrections will assure the pupil of a normal body in after years. It is therefore sound practice from both the economic and health standpoints, to give heed to the warning of the Blue Folder and act without delay. The future safety and health, as well as wealth of the nation, depends upon the strength and vigor of its citizens."

Many Patients Are Treated At State Hospital

Cresson Sanitarium Reports Successful Year With Many Treated

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21—With 463 patients admitted and 429 discharged during 1931, the Cresson Sanatorium report, submitted by Dr. Thomas H. A. Stites, Medical Director to Dr. Theodore B. Appel, Secretary of Health, indicates a successful year. These figures do not include the children's division.

The care of these patients involved a total of 141,736 hospital days at the institution. Of these adult discharges, about 200 went out under the classifications, ' cured, arrested or improved." Some patients having been trained in the type of care they need to further convalesce as well as the diet needed, and the rest required, go out to their homes to continue the strict regimen of Cresson, and to continue the program of regaining their full health and strength.

In the children's department at Cresson, 395 patients were admitted during 1931, of that number 369 being for observation and study of their condition. The discharges for the year totalled 415, of which number 344 went home listed under the heads "cured, arrested or improved." The work of the children's division required 77,339 hospital days during the year.

Thus briefly in figures is written a statement of a great year's work on the top of the Allegheny mountains, where Dr. Stites and his assistants have waged a winning fight for the lives and the consequent health and usefulness of almost a thousand patients.

All that modern scientific discovery, medical skill and careful nursing could do, has been done during the year 1931. Many a fine victory has been won. Sometimes, of course, the enemy was too deeply entrenched to be dislodged, and the medical force had to face defeat. But results have been encouraging and the smile of health has been returning to many a face at Cresson during the past year.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21—"School boards, parents and civic organizations in Pennsylvania must pay more attention to the physical defects discovered by the school physician in the children attending our public schools, and reported to the teachers and parents, by the State Department of Health on the Blue Folders, said John W. German, Jr., Assistant Supervisor School Division, Bureau of Child Health, in his monthly report issued today.

"Records compiled by this Division show that 74 per cent of the pupils examined in Fourth Class Districts, have some physical defect, while our follow-up reports show only 31 per cent of those reported defective, receive treatment. These defects in the children, uncorrected, became a deciding factor not only in the personal comfort and health of the adult individual, but affect his or her earning ability as well.

"The Compensation laws of the state, as well as the desire of industry to eliminate accidents, bar from most trades those who have defective eyesight, poor hearing or crippled limbs. Those in poor health find it difficult to retain a place on any pay roll. Each year Pennsylvania is adding to this list of unfortunate children, who, as adults will become special charges of neglect in childhood.

"The early discovery and correction of physical defects is not only advisable but practical," continued Mr. German. "During the first few years of a childs' school life such corrections will assure the pupil of a normal body in after years. It is therefore sound practice from both the economic and health standpoints, to give heed to the warning of the Blue Folder and act without delay. The future safety and health, as well as wealth of the nation, depends upon the strength and vigor of its citizens."

Cement Steps Have Been Completed Into Gaston Park

Sidewalks Are Being Laid Out In Lower Park Section

Cement stairway, consisting of about 12 steps, leading from Arlington Avenue down an embankment into Gaston park, has been built and workmen are now laying a dirt walk which will be ashed from the end of the stairway along the north ravine to Lyndal street.

During the past few days stone walls have been extended along the ravines which converge at Lyndal St.

The walk on the south of the lower ravine is being extended and when completed will lead to the top of the hill.

Extension of the stonewalls in the ravines, the laying out of walks and burning of underbrush keeps the 100 men working.

The workmen are secured through the Associated Charities which is the clearing house for the Mayor's Relief Committee.

The men do not receive wages but receive baskets of food and are given hot soup at the noon day hour.

J. K. McQuiddy is foreman of the workers.

Register Men For First Aid Class

Expect To Open Classes In First Aid Methods During February

Plans are progressing for the formation of a boy's first aid class which will be started during the early part of February under the supervision of Ralph M. Davis, chairman of safety and first aid of the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross.

All men of the city 17 years of age or over are eligible to enroll in these classes, which will be conducted by competent first aid instructors, who have a wide experience in this line of work and who hold Red Cross instructors certificates.

The course will last through a period of approximately six weeks, and at the conclusion those who successfully pass the examinations will be awarded Red Cross certificates in First Aid.

Registrations may be made now at the office of the Red Cross, 174 South Mercer street, in the Rescue Mission Building.

Birth Rate Is Lower Last Year

First Ten Months Of 1931 Are Healthful, However, Records Show

Statistics compiled for the first ten months of 1931, show several unusual conditions existed during the year.

The general death rate of 11.3 per thousand population is the same as that of the corresponding period in 1930, which was by far healthiest in Pennsylvania's history.

Judging by the returns of the first ten months, 1931 will record the lowest birth rate in the twenty-six years of registration. Up until November, there had been over eight thousand fewer birth certificates filed than during the same length of time in 1930.

In spite of the drop in birth rate, the infant mortality rate was lower than that of any former year.

There were three less homicides during the first ten months of the year, and only 58 more suicides.

Heart disease caused 229.9 deaths per thousand; cancer, 98.5 per thousand; pneumonia 96.3 deaths per thousand; and nephritis, 92.7 deaths per thousand.

Pneumonia Death Rate Under Average

New Castle Is Comparatively Healthful Spot For Respiratory Diseases

Although a number of other communities showed a lower death rate from respiratory diseases during the first ten months of 1931, the death rate here was below the state average.

According to the records furnished the Pennsylvania Bureau of Vital Statistics, there were 38 deaths from pneumonia, a rate of 92.8 per hundred thousand population; and 11 deaths from influenza, a rate of 26.9 per hundred thousand.

York had the lowest death rate for pneumonia, with but 17 deaths from that disease, while Allentown had the lowest death rate for influenza with but six deaths.

Pittsburgh, with a death rate of 248.7 per hundred thousand led all cities in pneumonia deaths, while Nanticoke had the highest death rate from influenza.

Eczema on Son's Face. Had to Tie Hands. Cuticura Healed.

"Eczema broke out on my son's face. It was in a patch about the size of a half dollar, and was very red. It itched and he used to scratch until it would bleed. I had to tie his hands to keep him from scratching, and he lost considerable sleep on account of it.

"I used several other remedies which failed to help him. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in about two months he was completely healed, after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. W. C. BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Floyd Gibbons And Japanese Commander Are Heard On Radio

Voices Heard Distinctly In United States From Sino-Jap War Front

Commander Honjo Tells World What Manchurian Invasion Is All About

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Hailed by radio experts, editors and publishers as the outstanding achievement of radio-news cooperation, the first broadcast from the Sino-Japanese battle front was acclaimed today as epoch-making.

The joint talk made by General Shigeru Honjo, Commander of the Japanese troops in Manchuria, and Floyd Gibbons, unrivalled headline hunter assigned to cover the war in the Far East by International News Service, was literally heard around-the-world.

First Army Broadcast

For the first radio broadcast ever made from the headquarters of an army in the field was relayed from Mukden to Tokyo, when it was sent speeding across the Pacific for transmission in the United States.

From Pittsburgh and Oakland, Cal., the speeches were rebroadcast to Europe, South America and Australia.

Both General Honjo and Gibbons were heard here and throughout the nation with exceeding clarity though their voices came from a distance of 12,000 miles, according to an estimate.

Purpose Of War

General Honjo dashed in a plane from the front line of the Japanese forces at Chinchow to his general headquarters to make his speech.

Gibbons, in his staccato, rapid fire manner, translated the General's words, and then gave a stirring description of his adventures as a war correspondent with the Japanese Army.

General Honjo, introduced by Gibbons, in part said:

"Our primary purpose in Manchuria is to strengthen our national security by clearing out the menacing forces that disturb peace and order, endangering the rights and interests of Japan and the lives of her nationals.

"At the same time, our aim is to revive and regenerate 30,000,000 people whose blood has been sucked for many years past by ruthless military brigands."

The General ended with the statement he was gratified and hoped the talk would further friendly relations between Tokyo and Washington and reach a friendly audience.

Relates Experiences

Gibbons graphically told of his experiences.

"I followed them all over and was right behind the army when it pushed from Newchang to Panshan, from Panshan to Koupangtze, and from Koupangtze to Chinchow," he said.

"I was right with them in a box car that was as cold as Santa Claus' chimney and I was fired on in an attack that lasted 40 minutes.

"I saw a lot of Chinese dead and I saw one man who looked as though he was fending off a bayonet as he died. His right arm was extended straight up in the air, frozen.

"Boy, is it cold—and it was colder then. They have real winters over here, folks, believe you me."

Grandson Born To Bert J. Ross

New Castle friends have received word of the birth of a grandson to Mr. and Mrs. Bert J. Ross of St. Petersburg, Florida. Mr. Ross was formerly a well known resident of this city and was affiliated with the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company.

The young man, who weighed 6½ pounds, was born to Mr. and Mrs. John H. Ross Monday afternoon in the Mound Park hospital, St. Petersburg, Florida. The baby's mother was Hilda Crawford of Niles, Mich., and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Crawford; her father being superintendent of schools at Niles.

Floyd Gibbons And Japanese Commander Are Heard On Radio

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Hailed by radio experts, editors and publishers as the outstanding achievement of radio-news cooperation, the first broadcast from the Sino-Japanese battle front was acclaimed today as epoch-making.

The joint talk made by General Shigeru Honjo, Commander of the Japanese troops in Manchuria, and Floyd Gibbons, unrivalled headline hunter assigned to cover the war in the Far East by International News Service, was literally heard around-the-world.

First Army Broadcast

For the first radio broadcast ever made from the headquarters of an army in the field was relayed from Mukden to Tokyo, when it was sent speeding across the Pacific for transmission in the United States.

From Piltsburgh and Onkland, Cal., the speeches were rebroadcast to Europe, South America and Australia.

Both General Honjo and Gibbons were heard here and throughout the nation with exceeding clarity though their voices came from a distance of 13,000 miles, according to an estimate.

Purpose Of War

General Honjo dashed in a plane from the front line of the Japanese forces at Chinchow to his general headquarters to make his speech.

Gibbons, in his staccato, rapid fire manner, translated the General's words, and then gave a stirring description of his adventures as a war correspondent with the Japanese Army.

General Honjo, introduced by Gibbons, in part said:

"Our primary purpose in Manchuria is to strengthen our national security by clearing out the menacing forces that disturb peace and order, endangering the rights and interests of Japan and the lives of her natitonals.

"At the same time, our aim is to revive and regenerate 30,000,000 people whose blood has been sucked for many years past by ruthless military brigands."

The General ended with the statement he was gratified and hoped the talk would further friendly relations between Tokyo and Washington and reach a friendly audience.

Relates Experiences

Gibbons graphically told of his experiences.

"I followed them all over and was right behind the army when it pushed from Newchang to Panshan, from Panshan to Koupangtze, and from Koupangtze to Chinchow," he said.

"I was right with them in a box car that was as cold as Santa Claus' chimney and I was fired on in an attack that lasted 40 minutes.

"I saw a lot of Chinese dead and I saw one man who looked as though he was fending off a bayonet as he died. His right arm was extended straight up in the air, frozen.

"Boy, is it cold—and it was colder then. They have real winters over here, folks, believe you me."

Party Lines Broken By Efforts To Slash Governmental Wages

Democratic Leader Appeals For Support Of Hoover's Economic Program

Clash Occurs Between Representatives Over Agricultural Supply Bill Cut

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Governmental economy became the dominant question in the house today as controversies arising out of the new Bi-Partisan saving policy neared a climax.

Party lines were broken on proposals to reduce salaries of government workers, cut forces and deny all appropriations not recommended in the Presidential budget.

The unusual spectacle was presented of a regular epublican assailing leaders of both parties for grant of congressional power to the president, and a democratic leader appealing for support for President Hoover's economy plan.

Fight Continues

The fight to reduce salaries of 250,000 government workers, about 1-3 of the total, five to 10 per cent was continued by Rep. Wood (R) of Indiana, with President Hoover's attitude a much debated question.

Rep. Simmons (R) of Nebraska injected a new proposal. He said he would offer an amendment requiring all government bureaus to cut their forces five per cent.

Cut Is Argued

Simmons clashed with Rep. Byrns (D) of Tennessee, chairman of the appropriations committee, on the cut of nearly $11,000,000 made in the agricultural supply bill.

He maintained $9,000,000 of the cut was merely a postponement of amounts due for federal aid highways.

Byrns said when he informed President Hoover the Democrats would cooperate, he also informed Mr. Hoover he would cut the presidential budget estimates if he could. The President, he said, told him the more Congress cut the more he would be pleased.

NEGRO CUT ON ARM BY HIS COMPANION

Answering a call to the effect that a Negro had been severely cut in a fight, Officers Dukes, Hanna, Richards, Showalter and Fleeger found that a Negro named Nate Donil of 1123 Moravia street, had been severely cut on one of his arms by another Negro, Jim Espy, during an argument between the two men. Espy made his escape, while Donil was being removed to the Jameson Memorial hospital by another Negro. Donil's injuries were attended to and then he was able to return to his home.

Some time after the affair, Officer Fleeger learned that Espy had left the city in an automobile headed for Youngstown. He was wearing a sheepskin coat and an old pair of overalls, when last seen.

Let Contract For Oil And Gas Used By State Machines

Atlantic Refining And American Oil Company Get Contract—Gulf Turned Down

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21.—Contract for the purchase of all gasoline for state owned cars has been awarded to the Atlantic Refining and American Oil Company, the Department of Property and Supplies announced today.

The contract eliminates entirely the Gulf Oil Company which is controlled by the Mellon interests.

The American Oil Company was given the contract in 42 counties of the state on the basis of a bid more than three cents less than the retail price. In less populous counties where the American Company has few or no stations the contract was awarded to the Atlantic Company at two cents less than retail.

Both the Atlantic and Gulf Companies entered exactly the same bids for gasoline and oil. The Atlantic company was given the preference on the basis that it is "a Pennsylvania company," operating only in this state under that name, John L. Hanna, the secretary, said.

The awarding of the contracts followed the demand of Gov. Gifford Pinchot that all purchases be made from the big companies which offer heavy discounts. Because both the Gulf and Atlantic companies have statewide service facilities all purchases formerly were made from them. Both gave the same discounts.

AUTO STOLEN FROM EMERSON AVENUE

Mrs. K. Cannon of 715 Emerson avenue reported to the police last night that her Ford sedan, Pennsylvania license 83Y36, had been stollen from in front of her home. It had not been located late today.

MEN CLEANING LAMPS

Employes of the Pennsylvania Power company were engaged in the downtown section cleaning light globes.

Helen Walsh Is Denied Right To Talk To Crowley

Sweetheart Of Francis ("Two-Gun") Crowley Who Dies Tonight, Denied By Warden

(International News Service)

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing prison today refused to permit Miss Helen Walsh to see her former sweetheart, Francis (Two-Gun") Crowley, who is in the death house awaiting electrocution tonight.

Miss Walsh arrived at the prison shortly before 11 o'clock this morning, accompanied by a lawyer. The attorney had in his possession an order signed by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser of White Plains, directing Warden Lawes to permit her to see Crowley provided Warden Lawes thought such a visit advisable.

Justice Morschauser left the matter to the discretion of the warden.

The order was handed Clement Ferling, secretary to Warden Lawes by Daniel Katz, of counsel for Miss Walsh.

Ferling transmitted the order to the warden, who read it and said: "The applicattion is denied."

Roosevelt About Ready To Enter Presidency Race

James A. Farley, Chairman Of New York State Democratic Committee Visits Governor

(International News Service)

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt may shortly, and for the first time publicly, toss his hat into the ring for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Reports to this effect were current at the Capitol today with the arrival of James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic state committee.

"I don't know what Jim is coming to see me about," Governor Roosevelt said, but he smiled when he said it.

"Just up to talk things over with the governor," was the only comment from chairman Farley.

Poor Board Will Test Talbot Bill

Dauphin County Poor Board Will Join Luzerne County In Test Fight

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21.—Dauphin county's poor board today served notice of its intention to join Luzerne county in a test case involving ultimate determination of the constitutionality of the Talbot bill.

The Talbot bill, opposed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot but allowed automatically to become law, appropriates $10,000,000 from the general fund to the State's poor districts.

Earl V. Compton, counsel, representing the Dauphin county poor board in its suit against the State Welfare Department to compel payment of this county's share of the Talbot bill appropriation, petitioned the county court for the right to enter appearance in the suit of the Central poor board of Luzerne county.

The Luzerne action was filed a week ago to test the bill's constitutionality. Compton's action today was an amici curiae petition which, if granted, would result in former U. S. Senator George Wharton Pepper and former Attorney General Alter taking part in the argument against the commonwealth's contention that the act is unconstitutional.

Mr. Hoover seems to be trying. Could it be possible that Coolidge didn't make that spell of prosperity?

Pity the Bambino

Determined that friend hubby is not going to outdo her either in boxing skill or in the matter of eliminating excess poundage, Mrs. George Herman Ruth, the former Claire Hodgson of the stage and wife of the bouncing Bambino, is shown as she took a lesson in the manly art. Mrs. Ruth is training under the supervision of Artie McGovern, in New York, where her famous husband also limbers up.

Party Lines Broken By Efforts To Slash Governmental Wages

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Governmental economy became the dominant question in the house today as controversies arising out of the new Bi-Partisan saving policy neared a climax.

Party lines were broken on proposals to reduce salaries of government workers, cut forces and deny all appropriations not recommended in the Presidential budget.

The unusual spectacle was presented of a regular epublican assailing leaders of both parties for grant of congressional power to the president, and a democratic leader appealing for support for President Hoover's economy plan.

Fight Continues

The fight to reduce salaries of 250,000 government workers, about 1-3 of the total, five to 10 per cent was continued by Rep. Wood (R) of Indiana, with President Hoover's attitude a much debated question.

Rep. Simmons (R) of Nebraska injected a new proposal. He said he would offer an amendment requiring all government bureaus to cut their forces five per cent.

Cut Is Argued

Simmons clashed with Rep. Byrns (D) of Tennessee, chairman of the appropriations committee, on the cut of nearly $11,000,000 made in the agricultural supply bill.

He maintained $9,000,000 of the cut was merely a postponement of amounts due for federal aid highways.

Byrns said when he informed President Hoover the Democrats would cooperate, he also informed Mr. Hoover he would cut the presidential budget estimates if he could. The President, he said, told him the more Congress cut the more he would be pleased.

NEGRO CUT ON ARM BY HIS COMPANION

Answering a call to the effect that a Negro had been severely cut in a fight, Officers Dukes, Hanna, Richards, Showalter and Fleeger found that a Negro named Nate Donil of 1123 Moravia street, had been severely cut on one of his arms by another Negro, Jim Espy, during an argument between the two men. Espy made his escape, while Donil was being removed to the Jameson Memorial hospital by another Negro. Donil's injuries were attended to and then he was able to return to his home.

Some time after the affair, Officer Fleeger learned that Espy had left the city in an automobile headed for Youngstown. He was wearing a sheepskin coat and an old pair of overalls, when last seen.

Let Contract For Oil And Gas Used By State Machines

Atlantic Refining And American Oil Company Get Contract—Gulf Turned Down

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21.—Contract for the purchase of all gasoline for state owned cars has been awarded to the Atlantic Refining and American Oil Company, the Department of Property and Supplies announced today.

The contract eliminates entirely the Gulf Oil Company which is controlled by the Mellon interests.

The American Oil Company was given the contract in 42 counties of the state on the basis of a bid more than three cents less than the retail price. In less populous counties where the American Company has few or no stations the contract was awarded to the Atlantic Company at two cents less than retail.

Both the Atlantic and Gulf Companies entered exactly the same bids for gasoline and oil. The Atlantic company was given the preference on the basis that it is "a Pennsylvania company," operating only in this state under that name, John L. Hanna, the secretary, said.

The awarding of the contracts followed the demand of Gov. Gifford Pinchot that all purchases be made from the big companies which offer heavy discounts. Because both the Gulf and Atlantic companies have statewide service facilities all purchases formerly were made from them. Both gave the same discounts.

Helen Walsh Is Denied Right To Talk To Crowley

Sweetheart Of Francis ("Two-Gun") Crowley Who Dies Tonight, Denied By Warden

(International News Service)

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing prison today refused to permit Miss Helen Walsh to see her former sweetheart, Francis (Two-Gun") Crowley, who is in the death house awaiting electrocution tonight.

Miss Walsh arrived at the prison shortly before 11 o'clock this morning, accompanied by a lawyer. The attorney had in his possession an order signed by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser of White Plains, directing Warden Lawes to permit her to see Crowley provided Warden Lawes thought such a visit advisable.

Justice Morschauser left the matter to the discretion of the warden.

The order was handed Clement Ferling, secretary to Warden Lawes by Daniel Katz, of counsel for Miss Walsh.

Ferling transmitted the order to the warden, who read it and said: "The application is denied."

(International News Service)

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt may shortly, and for the first time publicly, toss his hat into the ring for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Reports to this effect were current at the Capitol today with the arrival of James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic state committee.

"I don't know what Jim is coming to see me about," Governor Roosevelt said, but he smiled when he said it.

"Just up to talk things over with the governor," was the only comment from chairman Farley.

Poor Board Will Test Talbot Bill

Dauphin County Poor Board Will Join Luzerne County In Test Fight

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21.—Dauphin county's poor board today served notice of its intention to join Luzerne county in a test case involving ultimate determination of the constitutionality of the Talbot bill.

The Talbot bill, opposed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot but allowed automatically to become law, appropriates $10,000,000 from the general fund to the State's poor districts.

Earl V. Compton, counsel, representing the Dauphin county poor board in its suit against the State Welfare Department to compel payment of this county's share of the Talbot bill appropriation, petitioned the county court for the right to enter appearance in the suit of the Central poor board of Luzerne county.

The Luzerne action was filed a week ago to test the bill's constitutionality. Compton's action today was an amici curiae petition which, if granted, would result in former U. S. Senator George Wharton Pepper and former Attorney General Alter taking part in the argument against the commonwealth's contention that the act is unconstitutional.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT RETURNED

After hearing the testimony in the death of Mrs. Anna B. Ferrell, wife of George D. Ferrell of Edgewood avenue, who met her death Tuesday evening, January 12, when she was crushed between the freight elevator and the wall of the shaft at the New Castle Dry Goods Co., the jury last evening returned a verdict of death by accidental means.

No new facts which would give an insight into the manner in which Mrs. Ferrell met her death were brought out at the inquest, which was held in the office of Alderman L. C. Mantz on Croton avenue.

Five witnesses were called by Coroner Orville Potter, all of whom gave practically the same testimony. None of them had seen the accident with his own eyes, and none could offer any opinion as to how the accident occured.

Mrs. Carrie F. Swanson, who had been working with Mrs. Ferrell that evening gave the clearest conception of what took place, but she did not know how the accident had happened.

First Witness

Lorimer Seeger was the first witness called. He stated that he was working on the third floor near the elevator shaft when the mishap took place. Others in the building were Miss Reese, Mrs. Swanson, Miss Woodrow, Mr. Stadinger, Mr. Wolf, Mr. Goheen, and the night watchman, he stated.

His attention was attracted to the occurrence by a scraping sound in the elevator shaft, and he then ran to the elevator and stopped it, he said.

On cross-examination by Attorney Walter W. Braham, representing the family of the deceased woman, he stated that not all people in the company's employe were permitted to operate the elevator, only those who were over twenty-one.

He described the manner in which the elevator operated, and the way the safety gates at the floor entrances operated.

Manager Testifies

E. R. Wolf, office manager of the New Castle Dry Goods Co. stated that he was on the second floor of the building, in the office, on the night of the occurrence, and heard a cry or scream, and then a grating noise. He stepped out into the vestibule and one of the ladies called to him from the third floor, and he went with her to the first floor and found the elevator was up. He stated that he then went to the second floor entrance to the elevator shaft and looked down and saw the body of Mrs. Ferrell. It was then approximately 7:50.

He said that he could give no reason why the occurrence should have happened. He stated that she had apparently left the first floor to return to the third, and that the elevator had covered approximately two-thirds of the distance between the first and second floor when it was stopped. He stated that the clearance between the elevator floor and the wall was approximately two inches.

He said that it was about seven feet to the top of the entrance opening into the elevator shaft from the first floor, and that there was a small additional space for the gate to work in, which would make about ten feet in all. The body had been dragged about three or four feet up the side of the wall, above this, or about 14 feet in all from the floor level.

He stated that the gate had been found damaged, the crosspieces and rungs in the gate being cracked and broken. The gate was up when the body was found, he stated, but that normally it would be down at the floor level.

In response to a question from Mr. Braham, he stated that the position of the gate would indicate that the gate might have fallen and struck Mrs. Ferrell and had then been carried up with her body.

Elevator Inspected

He stated that the elevator was inspected twice each month by the Otis elevator mechanic and twice each year by state inspectors. The last time it was looked at was on December 20, last.

He said that the elevator had been in the building since it was built and three years ago, a safety gate was placed on the elevator, which operated by contact. This was on the opposite side from which the accident occurred.

He stated that he did not inspect the elevator after the accident to see how it was operating until the next morning. He did not examine the gate or safety catches, but found the elevator to be operating normally.

J. M. Goheen, Jr., told practically the same story as Mr. Wolf. He stated that he had operated the elevator an hour before and found it working all right.

John Gross, night watchman and janitor, stated that on the evening in question, he had taken the elevator to the third floor of the building at ten minutes to eight, and had then sent the elevator back down, and that if no one stopped it, it would have gone to the basement. He then started on his rounds of the building and after punching a clock in the front and rear of the third floor, had started for the second floor, when he heard the noise and running to the elevator shaft at the second floor, looked down and saw the body.

He stated this would be about three or four minutes after he had sent the elevator down. He said he had not heard any outcry from Mrs. Ferrell.

Elevator Man

George D. Christoph, resident mechanic for the Otis Elevator Company, stated that he inspected the elevator regularly twice each month. The last time had been during the week of December 20.

He stated that he had been called to the building that evening to help get the body out. After the body had been removed, he said that he had operated the elevator, but that the gate would not work, having been sprung and parts of it were broken.

He stated that while the elevator was not of the most modern type, that he considered it fitted with proper appliances.

He also explained how the gates work, being released so they can be opened by a safety catch at the first floor level when the elevator reaches that point and dropping back again, when it had gone up several feet more, releasing another catch.

He stated that the gate went up six feet and six inches before it was engaged by a catch from above, and if not engaged will drop back down. This would take about two seconds to happen, he stated. The weights prevented it from dropping back down too rapidly.

Last Witness

Mrs. Carrie Swanson was the last witness called. She stated that she, Mrs. Ferrell, Miss Reese, Miss Woodrow, Mr. Goheen, and Lorimer Seeger were working on the third floor.

She said Mrs. Ferrell had come back to work about 6:30, and that they were engaged in wrapping linen crash on boards. Mrs. Ferrell had sent the check boy to the first floor for boards, and he brought back five, which was not enough. She went down to find more and came back with two, one which was about three feet long. She said she returned to the first floor a second time and it was on this occasion that the accident occurred.

She stated that the first they were aware that anything had happened was when they heard a noise, and then a sound as if some one said "Oh," and then a crunching sound. She said they all ran together toward the first floor and called Mr. Goheen, meeting Mr. Wolf coming up. Mr. Wolf had asked what was the matter, she said and they had told him there had been an accident to Mrs. Ferrell.

She said she ran down to the first floor and looked down into the pit and could not see anyone and had then looked up and could see nothing. She said she then called three times, and no person answered. She said they realized there had been an accident and she was asked by Mr. Wolf to call No. 8 and then to call a doctor.

Mrs. Swanson said that Mrs. Ferrell had gone down and back up in the elevator the first time, and had gone down in it the second time. She said the elevator had been at the third floor level each time.

She said she had heard her go down when they saw her last, and on cross-examination stated that she could not tell whether anyone had interfered with the elevator or not., but to the best of her knowledge, they had not.

She stated that she had seen Lorimer Seeger run to the elevator and stop it, when they heard the noise of the accident.

There were no other witnesses called and the jury retired, bringing in the following verdict:

"We, the coroner's jury, find that Mrs. Anna B. Ferrell came to her death approximately at 7:50 p. m. on the evening of the 12th day of January, 1932, in the New Castle Dry Goods Building, New Castle, Pa. by being crushed in the freight elevator shaft. We believe that death was caused by accidental means.

The jury was composed of William S. Lewis, Carl Staeber, W. H. Reck, James B. Cooper, J. A. Rugh and L. A. Campbell.

Care Of Water Is Important

Pennsylvania Department Of Health Maintains Largest Engineering Bureau

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 21—The Bureau of Engineering, the Pennsylvania State Department of Health is the largest state sanitary engineering bureau in the United States. It is often called "The heart of the Health Department." It is charged with the tremendous responsibility involved in the care of the domestic and municipal water supply of the commonwealth.

All municipalities and corporations serving water to the public must submit plans to this bureau, and secure approval permits before operating. In addition, they are under constant surveillance, and periodic supervision. Reports must come to the bureau weekly and monthly. All water going to the public from these companies, must come up to a certain standard of purity established by the bureau engineers.

This department also licenses dealers in bottled water for table use, after due investigation. All nuisances discovered in any manner and reported to this bureau are investigated, and if possible, abated. The tenement, lodging and boarding house laws are lodged here for enforcement also.

The field work of this division is carried on by seven District Engineers, whose main duties aside from actual administrative work is to preach the gospel of water purification and proper sewage disposal to the municipalities in their districts. The state is divided into 7 districts as follows: A—M. J. Barrick, Williamsport; B—L. D. Matter, Wilkesbarre; C—C. H. Young, Meadville; D—L. S. Morgan, Pittsburgh; E—R. C. German, Jr., Harrisburg; F—I. M. Glace, Harrisburg; H—H. M. Freeburn, Philadelphia.

The lacation of these District Engineers is such as to bring them into close touch with the problems that arise in various sections of the commonwealth. This plan has been found to work very successfully.

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quick Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Eckerd's Cut Rate and New Castle Drug Co. invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

Here's Explanation Of Freak Winter!

Long Distance Forecaster Declares Solar Radiation And Lunar Pull Brought On Unusual Weather; U. S. Bureau Pooh-Poohs Idea, Calling It "Only A Theory"

Zero weather in Manchuria.

HERBERT J. BROWNE,
Washington's noted weather forecaster.

Ploughing in January, Ohio

Herbert Janvrin Browne, an unofficial weather forecaster of Washington, D. C., whose predictions have been startlingly true, says the sea reflects solar changes during a 11.20-year cycle as well as changes in the position of the moon over the lunar cycle of 18.6 years. According to Browne's system, a combination of influences of maximum solar radiation and the maximum lunar pull would be felt at a given point only once in 55.8 years. This influence is now upon us, says Browne. Thus we see snow in California while the middle west and the east plow and go in bathing. The Gulf Stream has penetrated much farther north than usual, Browne adds, squeezing out the colder water underneath and causing exceptional severity of weather to the southeastward, as far away, indeed, as Manchuria, where soldiers have suffered acutely. The severity of Pacific coast weather has been occasioned by the Japanese current pushing past the Aleutian peninsula and into the Arctic, forcing cold currents to spread to Pacific coast.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Herbert Janvrin Browne, Washington's celebrated long-distance weather forecaster, advances a theory for the freak weather a large part of the world has been experiencing. While Browne's explanation is looked upon by official United States weather bureau men as merely a theory, nevertheless it sounds plausible.

Although Herbert Janvrin Browne advances no claim to have been, by original training, a savant in any sense whatever, his weather forecasting system is built upon the observations of a scientific man of the highest rating—Dr. Charles Greeley Abbot, the astrophysicist, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and discoverer of variability in the sun's radiation.

Dr. Abbot was just arriving at the determination of a cyclical range in the waxing and waning of solar intensity when business requirements inspired Browne to begin upon his quest for some underlying scheme in nature on which he might be able to base a series of longer range meteorological predictions than the weather bureau is yet prepared to recognize as among existing possibilities.

Dr. Abbot's discoveries, coming to his attention, gave him the hint he desired.

A sailor in his youth, with a navigator's education, Browne was familiar with the ocean. The sea, he bethought him, should reflect solar changes, gradually gaining and then gradually losing heat, with the gradual increase and diminution in the intensity of radiation from the big luminary, through the 11.20-year swing which Dr. Abbot had fixed upon as the length of the cycle.

Theory's Background

With due allowance for a lag of about three years, to give time for ocean currents to effect a distribution of the waters throughout the seas, from the equatorial to the most northerly and southerly and back again, this was the theory's groundwork when I first met Browne half a decade ago or a little more.

Since then it has been considerably refined upon.

Notably, Browne now takes into consideration the cyclical changes in the position of the moon, with what he presumes to be its accelerating drag upon the currents, as well as its tidal uplift.

Now the lunar cycle is of 18.6 years.

Thus at a given point (say in the maritime area to the southeastward of the Florida coast) the combination of influences of maximum solar radiation and the maximum lunar pull would be felt only once in 55.8 years.

And this, says Browne, is just the influence which, in that area, recently has been approximately at its climax.

Increasingly Peculiar Weather

The result, he asserts, is the creation of barometric conditions which, moving inland to the northwestward, not only are giving much of the country its peculiar winter, but have been giving it increasingly peculiar weather for several years past.

But that is not all.

The Gulf Stream, under the same influence, has penetrated much farther than usual, past Spitzbergen, into the Arctic, where the warmer water, remaining at the surface, because lighter, has squeezed out the colder water underneath, hastening its movement southward along the European coast and causing exceptional severity of the winter to the southeastward. It has penetrated as far, indeed, as Manchuria, where dispatches have described the suffering of Chinese and Japanese soldiers in the last few weeks, from the sub-zero temperatures they have been exposed to.

Moreover, the winter has been a severe one in northwestern North America—in Canada and even, to some extent across the border—for Pacific conditions have been similar to those in the Atlantic, and the Japan current has pushed past the Aleutians and into the Arctic in that quarter, just as the Gulf Stream has done in the eastern hemisphere.

All this is Herbert Janvrin Browne's version.

The version of the weather bureau is that the barometric conditions he describes have, to be sure, prevailed —with substantially the results which he also describes. But the bureau rejects his explanation of them.

I asked Chief Paul C. Whitney of the coast and goedetic survey's division of tides and currents for his opinion as an impartial witness.

"Browne," said Chief Whitney, "has evolved an interesting theory, but it's only a theory. It would take a vast number of observations, for a long time, to test it."

"How's this for proof?" answers Browne, producing a mass of records, reaching back into ancient history—so far back that there may be room for questioning the earlier ones as doubtful. But they do date back to 1708-'09 with every appearance of authenticity, and it is a fact that they indicate a freak winter at approximately 56-year intervals.

"Even so, it's only a theory that tides and currents had anything to do with them," insists the coast and geodetic expert.

Building Workers In Philadelphia Threaten Strike

About 70,000 Workmen Will Be Effected By Looming Strike

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.— A wage dispute affecting 70,000 workers and threatening halting of $16,-700,000 in proposed construction work loomed here today.

The Philadelphia Builders' Exchange and Employers' Association yesterday recommended a 20 to 40 per cent wage cut to its member associations. The Unions avowed their intention of protecting their wage agreements in the courts or by strikers if necessary. The proposed cut would bring all wages down to $1 per hour for all building mechanics and workers.

CHINESE BANDITS REQUEST $200,000 FOR SHIP CAPTAIN

(International News Service)

PEIPING, Jan. 21.—Chinese bandits today demanded $200,000 ransom for the safe return of Charles Baker, American barge captain kidnapped from aboard his ship in the Yangtze river.

Simultaneously the American Legation here issued a formal protest to the Nanking Nationalist government and sent Vice-Consul Clubb to aid the United States navy gunboat in its efforts to gain the American's release.

The bandits, who kidnapped Baker after looting his ship near the mouth of the river, have moved up to Pailochu, Inland, with their captive.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

For coughs due to colds, the best remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Drys Planning Answer To Wets At Washington

Drys Will Now Have Inning Before Metcalf Senate Probe Committee

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Confronted by the testimony of leading medical experts, scientists and labor executives that legalization of beer would restore health, wealth and prosperity to the nation, prohibitionists have asked for additional time to prepare their case before testifying before the Metcalf Senate committee.

The parade of dry witnesses was scheduled to commence Tuesday but dry leaders indicated they would be unable to prepare their case in that time, a member of the committee said today.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, will be the first dry witness. Bishop James Cannon, Jr., will also testify.

The wets have rested their case, concluded with the announcement that the American Federation of Labor would support modification of the 18th Amendment.

Four Catholics In Spain Killed

Four Meet Death In Attempting To Defend Church From Rioters

(International News Service)

BILBAO, Jan. 21.—Four Catholics were killed today in defending one of several churches and seminaries set afire by rioters in the vicinity of Bilbao.

Authorities were at a loss to check a rapid spread of incendiarism which broke out as feeling between Socialists and Catholics ran at a high pitch.

The four killed were attempting to defend a church at Gallarta against a wild mob of anti-Catholics.

"I took Panama," said Roosevelt. And Japan, as we remember, sent him no notes about it.

FUND CAMPAIGN OPENS

Goal Of $60,000 Set As Jameson Hospital Workers Start

Chairman Urges Intensive Work As Teams Gather

Stresses Vital Necessity Of Campaign's Success If Work Is To Continue

NEED CHALLENGES EVERY INDIVIDUAL

FRED L. RENTZ

As two hundred men of New Castle prepare to start their canvas of the city and county, in an effort to raise $60,000 for the Jameson Memorial Hospital, the general chairman of the campaign again stresses the serious consequences that will certainly accrue if the campaign is not successful.

"This hospital challenges the best that is in all of us" said Mr. Rentz. "Here we hav. an outstandingly efficient hospital, one that ranks with the best in the United States, and yet there is a possibility that it will be unable to continue its work. That possibility can and will be avoided if every division leader, every vice chairman, every worker and every citizen takes to himself the responsibility he should."

"All of us have a personal responsibility in this hospital. David Jameson realized his responsibility to his community and demonstrated that sense of responsibility in a manner that bespoke the calibre of the man. He gave us the hospital and saved the citizens of this community approximately $1,000,000 for the day was at hand when we had to have a new hospital."

Can Be Put Over

"This campaign can be put over" said Mr. Rentz again, but it will take work. Looking over the list of leaders and workers I can not find a single name that has not been represented in previous civic work in New Castle. Many of them are veterans of the campaigns in the past. Once again they are asked to take their share of the work, and once again they have responded."

"Lift this $60,000 deficit and we will be able to operate the hospital without future deficits, except the ordinary operating loss that comes to any general hospital doing any charity work. Hospitals cannot be operated at a profit, they cannot be operated without a loss unless the people operating the hospital fall short of their responsibility.

"This campaign opens tonight. It will be a strenuous campaign but it will be a satisfying one if we put it over. No one man, no group of men can put it over. It takes teamwork and co-operation. This I feel confident we will get. The black shadow of the closed door is too gruesome a picture for New Castle to witness. We must keep the doors open and I am confident we will."

Keep The Doors Open!

(An Editorial)

New Castle enters the Jameson Hospital Campaign Fund tonight, facing the gravest crisis—insofar as hospitalization is concerned—that the city has ever experienced. Unless $60,000 can be raised to lift the deficit from the hospital, it must close its doors.

This is no bogey manufactured to frighten people into giving, no cry of wolf, it is a plain statement of facts as they are. Unless the Jameson Memorial Hospital can be freed of its deficit, its credit re-established, and the hospital placed upon a firm financial basis, then the doors must close and the work cease.

New Castle has been remarkably free from capital expense in the matter of hospitals. In the past twenty five years there has never been a campaign for funds with which to build a hospital. In the case of the Jameson Memorial Hospital, it is the gift of a man whose name will ever stand as a symbol of philanthropy in this city, David Jameson.

David Jameson believed that this city was entitled to a modern hospital and to his already large philanthropies he added this hospital, his last and greatest gift to the citizens of his city before he passed on. It was David Jameson's idea that the doors of the hospital should be open to the people at all times. Will the people of New Castle and Lawrence County fail to carry out this wish?

There has been considerable money raised in the past two years for operating expense. Perhaps it would have been better if the directors had gone to the public for these funds. Instead they dug down into their own pockets, refusing to allow their beneficence to be made known. It is unfair to them and to the citizenry to expect that they continue to carry this load alone and now they have presented the problem to the people.

All of us have a share of the responsibility. The Jameson Memorial Hospital stands as a Memorial of Mercy, ready to serve all the people regardless of race, color or creed. It has, and can, and will render a priceless service to the people, given the opportunity. It cannot function, saddled with a load of debt. The debt has been incurred in fitting it with modern implements, in giving it the best modern skill can devise to fight disease and accident. There will be no future debts of any size incurred for equipment for the need is filled for a long time to come.

What deficits occur in the future will be operating deficits which are usual to any general hospital. These the directors feel they can care for without any unusual effort. But they must have that $60,000 deficit now present, lifted.

One may argue that this is no time to stage a campaign for funds. It is true that the nation and the world are in a depression, but the Ogre of Disease chooses his own time to strike. Only because the need is dire are the directors asking for this $60,000 at this time.

Some there are who will find it impossible to give, but there are so many of us that can give, if only a little. No pledge is too small to be overlooked for the giver not only puts his money into the hospital, he puts himself into it. "Not what we give but what we share."

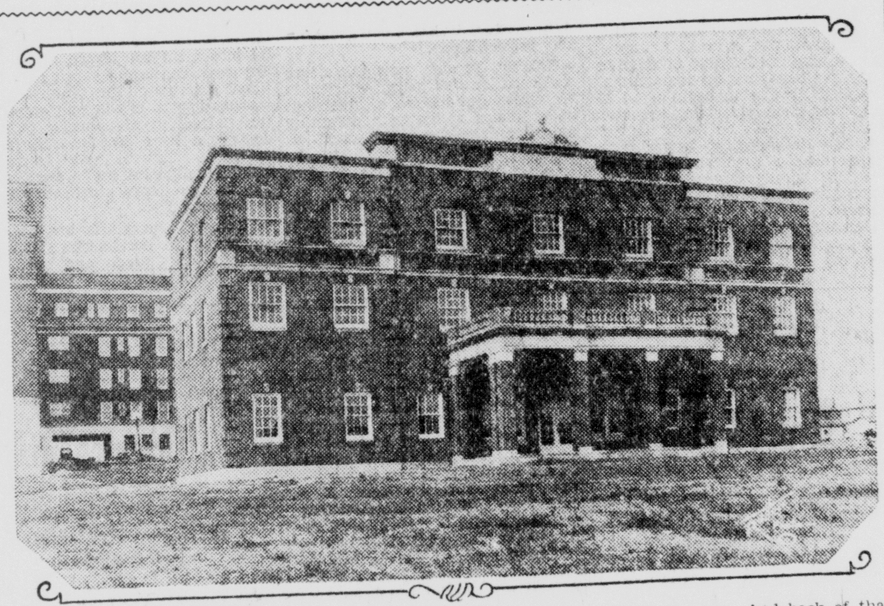
As a city and as citizens we cannot afford to permit the Jameson Memorial Hospital doors to close. This campaign for $60,000 can be put over and will be put over if every one who can afford it will do his share.

Let's keep the doors open!

Jameson Memorial Hospital

The doors you see pictured here, in the picture of the hospital, are open. They have been open to the people since the day this gift of David Jameson was turned over to the citizens of this community. Those doors should never close. They will not close if every citizen does his share in lifting the deficit of $60,000 that has cast a black shadow over the hospital. Unless the deficit is lifted the doors must be closed. Such a catastrophe is unthinkable. Lift the deficit and the hospital will be enabled to function properly. Fail to do so and the Jameson Memorial hospital will be just a building.

Nurses' Home



One of the important features of a good hospital is the training school for nurses. And back of that training school must be a home for the nurses where they can live and study. The Nurses home joining the Jameson Memorial hospital is in keeping with the hospital itself. The home is the gift of Mrs. David Jameson, widow of the donor of the hospital, and their daughter Mrs. Helen Jameson McCreery. Here the young women who have dedicated their lives to the mission of ministering to the sick live during their training period.

Jameson Hospital Must Be Kept Open Declares A. C. Hoyt

ALEX. CRAWFORD HOYT

Hospital Is Need Of Every Citizen—Must Raise $60,000 Fund

"The New Year, which we will welcome tonight with enthusiasm and high hopes, brings with it one inescapable obligation which must be faced by all fair-thinking citizens of New Castle and vicinity," said Alex Crawford Hoyt today in voicing his opinion as to the first and most important community duty demanding serious attention early in the new year. "There is no news in the fact that an accumulated deficit, equipment debt and maintenance of the Jameson Memorial hospital must be financed at once, or the key will be turned in the door. We simply cannot think of the latter being permitted to bring discredit on our community

Obligations For All.

"The 20 directors of the hospital have given weeks and months of painstaking attention to the problem that confronts them, yet no director has any greater obligation than any fellow-citizen to worry over the hospital crisis. Directors have given generously of their own money to keep the institution open. They know that if other citizens were to understand the great need every hour of every day and every night throughout the entire year, and could follow through only a few of the cases—if others could see the things the directors and the doctors see so often then there would be no need to stress an appeal for financial support.

"The difficulty is that many people think a hospital is self-supporting. Throughout the city there are generous, fair-minded men and women always ready to do their share in such matters who never have realized their duty to assist in financing hospital work. They have not given the subject the careful thought it deserves.

You Need Hospital.

"Fundamentally every person, sooner or later, needs good, modern hospital care for himself and his loved ones. Sickness and accident are no respectors of persons. It is frequently and truthfully said that no person knows when he will need the services of a hospital. Taken for granted then that John Blank will need a hospital, the next question is who should provide the hospital that will stand ready to care for him in his hour of serious illness or accident. He knows and we all know that not all of the money of the Rockefellers could provide ambulances, operating rooms, X-rays, laboratories, trained nurses, beds, etc., on an hour's notice.

"Since nobody owes John Blank hospitalization, any more than anybody owes him a house to live in or food, or clothing—since it is manifestly up to him to provide these things for himself; and since nobody can afford to provide his own private hospital it is obviously the sensible thing to provide a community, cooperative hospital.

Hospital Campaign Once In A Lifetime

Few cities in the United States have as unique a record in the matter of hospital fund campaigns as does New Castle. Never in the history of the city has there been a campaign for the purpose of erecting a hospital. As citizens we have been the recipients of some wonderful philanthropies.

The present campaign for $60,000 is the first campaign ever staged for this hospital. It will likely be the last for if this fund is contributed, then the hospital will be on a firm financial basis and can be operated efficiently.

Hence this campaign is "Once In A Lifetime". The payments can be spread over a period of ten months. It is our chance to pay once and for all, the premium on the finest health insurance we have.

"Once In A Lifetime". Make your contribution with that idea in mind.

Meeting Tonight Opens Campaign To Clear Deficit

TEN DIVISIONS TO WAGE DRIVE

Business And Professional Life Represented In Groups Backing Campaign

Faced with the tragedy of the doors of the Jameson Memorial Hospital closing unless sufficient money is raised to clear off the deficit, a group of determined citizens will meet tonight in the Castleton for the opening of the campaign for the $60,000 necessary to wipe the hospital slate clean. At the meeting will be business and professional men, merchants and laboring men, their minds at one as to the vital necessity of putting this campaign over.

This is no ordinary campaign that starts tonight in the Castleton: none of the usual ballyho of fund raising drive attends it. It is serious business, for upon the success or failure of it depends whether or not the Jameson Memorial Hospital continues to minister to the sick and needy, or closes its doors. Hospitals cannot be operated upon good will and resolutions, they take money and the time has arrived when the citizens of New Castle and Lawrence County must say whether or not they want this hospital to continue.

Will Clear Debt

The $60,000 that is being asked for will clear the Jameson Memorial Hospital of a deficit that has been hanging over it for some time. There is nothing unusual about such a deficit. It has been occasioned by the fitting of the hospital with modern equipment. Like a new house that must be fitted with furniture, the Jameson Memorial Hospital had to be fitted with equipment and because it is intricate, because it is the best that money could procure, the debt for it had to be incurred.

With the deficit lifted the hospital will be placed upon a firm financial basis, its credit will be re-

No New Facts In Accident

Coroner Potter Conducts Inquest Into Elevator Fatality

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT RETURNED

After hearing the testimony in the death of Mrs. Anna B. Ferrell, wife of George D. Ferrell of Edgewood avenue, who met her death Tuesday evening, January 12, when she was crushed between the freight elevator and the wall of the shaft at the New Castle Dry Goods Co., the jury last evening returned a verdict of death by accidental means.

No new facts which would give an insight into the manner in which Mrs. Ferrell met her death were brought out at the inquest, which was held in the office of Alderman L. C. Mantz on Croton avenue.

Five witnesses were called by Coroner Orville Potter, all of whom gave practically the same testimony. None of them had seen the accident with his own eyes, and none could offer any opinion as to how the accident occured.

Mrs. Carrie F. Swanson, who had been working with Mrs. Ferrell that evening gave the clearest conception of what took place, but she did not know how the accident had happened.

First Witness

Lorimer Seeger was the first witness called. He stated that he was working on the third floor near the elevator shaft when the mishap took place. Others in the building were Miss Reese, Mrs. Swanson, Miss Woodrow, Mr. Stadinger, Mr. Wolf, Mr. Goheen, and the night watchman, he stated.

His attention was attracted to the occurrence by a scraping sound in the elevator shaft, and he then ran to the elevator and stopped it, he said.

On cross-examination by Attorney Walter W. Braham, representing the family of the deceased woman, he stated that not all people in the company's employe were permitted to operate the elevator, only those who were over twenty-one.

He described the manner in which the elevator operated, and the way the safety gates at the floor entrances operated.

Manager Testifies

E. R. Wolf, office manager of the New Castle Dry Goods Co. stated that he was on the second floor of the building, in the office, on the night of the occurrence, and heard a cry or scream, and then a grating noise. He stepped out into the vestibule and one of the ladies called to him from the third floor, and he went with her to the first floor and found the elevator was up. He stated that he then went to the second floor entrance to the elevator shaft and looked down and saw the body of Mrs. Ferrell. It was then approximately 7:50.

He said that he could give no reason why the occurrence should have happened. He stated that she had apparently left the first floor to return to the third, and that the elevator had covered approximately two-thirds of the distance between the first and second floor when it was stopped. He stated that the clearance between the elevator floor and the wall was approximately two inches.

He said that it was about seven feet to the top of the entrance opening into the elevator shaft from the first floor, and that there was a small additional space for the gate to work in, which would make about ten feet in all. The body had been dragged about three or four feet up the side of the wall, above this, or about 14 feet in all from the floor level.

He stated that the gate had been found damaged, the crosspieces and rungs in the gate being cracked and broken. The gate was up when the body was found, he stated, but that normally it would be down at the floor level.

In response to a question from Mr. Braham, he stated that the position of the gate would indicate that the gate might have fallen and struck Mrs. Ferrell and had then been carried up with her body.

Elevator Inspected

He stated that the elevator was inspected twice each month by the Otis elevator mechanic and twice each year by state inspectors. The last time it was looked at was on December 20, last.

He said that the elevator had been in the building since it was built and three years ago, a safety gate was placed on the elevator, which operated by contact. This was on the opposite side from which the accident occurred.

He stated that he did not inspect the elevator after the accident to see how it was operating until the next morning. He did not examine the gate or safety catches, but found the elevator to be operating normally.

J. M. Goheen, Jr., told practically the same story as Mr. Wolf. He stated that he had operated the elevator an hour before and found it working all right.

John Gross, night watchman and janitor, stated that on the evening in question, he had taken the elevator to the third floor of the building at ten minutes to eight, and had then sent the elevator back down, and that if no one stopped it, it would have gone to the basement. He then started on his rounds of the building and after punching a clock in the front and rear of the third floor, had started for the second floor, when he heard the noise and running to the elevator shaft at the second floor, looked down and saw the body.

He stated this would be about three or four minutes after he had sent the elevator down. He said he had not heard any outcry from Mrs. Ferrell.

Elevator Man

George D. Christoph, resident mechanic for the Otis Elevator Company, stated that he inspected the elevator regularly twice each month. The last time had been during the week of December 20.

He stated that he had been called to the building that evening to help get the body out. After the body had been removed, he said that he had operated the elevator, but that the gate would not work, having been sprung and parts of it were broken.

He stated that while the elevator was not of the most modern type, that he considered it fitted with proper appliances.

He also explained how the gates work, being released so they can be opened by a safety catch at the first floor level when the elevator reaches that point and dropping back again, when it had gone up several feet more, releasing another catch.

He stated that the gate went up six feet and six inches before it was engaged by a catch from above, and if not engaged will drop back down. This would take about two seconds to happen, he stated. The weights prevented it from dropping back down too rapidly.

Last Witness

Mrs. Carrie Swanson was the last witness called. She stated that she, Mrs. Ferrell, Miss Reese, Miss Woodrow, Mr. Goheen, and Lorimer Seeger were working on the third floor.

She said Mrs. Ferrell had come back to work about 6:30, and that they were engaged in wrapping linen crash on boards. Mrs. Ferrell had sent the check boy to the first floor for boards, and he brought back five, which was not enough. She went down to find more and came back with two, one which was about three feet long. She said she returned to the first floor a second time and it was on this occasion that the accident occurred.

She stated that the first they were aware that anything had happened was when they heard a noise, and then a sound as if some one said "Oh," and then a crunching sound. She said they all ran together toward the first floor and called Mr. Goheen, meeting Mr. Wolf coming up. Mr. Wolf had asked what was the matter, she said and they had told him there had been an accident to Mrs. Ferrell.

She said she ran down to the first floor and looked down into the pit and could not see anyone and had then looked up and could see nothing. She said she then called three times, and no person answered. She said they realized there had been an accident and she was asked by Mr. Wolf to call No. 8 and then to call a doctor.

Mrs. Swanson said that Mrs. Ferrell had gone down and back up in the elevator the first time, and had gone down in it the second time. She said the elevator had been at the third floor level each time.

She said she had heard her go down when they saw her last, and on cross-examination stated that she could not tell whether anyone had interfered with the elevator or not, but to the best of her knowledge, they had not.

She stated that she had seen Lorimer Seeger run to the elevator and stop it, when they heard the noise of the accident.

There were no other witnesses called and the jury retired, bringing in the following verdict:

"We, the coroner's jury, find that Mrs. Anna B. Ferrell came to her death approximately at 7:50 p. m. on the evening of the 12th day of January, 1932, in the New Castle Dry Goods Building, New Castle, Pa. by being crushed in the freight elevator shaft. We believe that death was caused by accidental means.

The jury was composed of William S. Lewis, Carl Staeber, W. H. Reck, James B. Cooper, J. A. Rugh and L. A. Campbell.

From Workhouse To Penitentiary

Andy Marshall Is Removed From One Institution To Another By Sheriff

Sheriff Frank Johnston went to the Allegheny county workhouse yesterday and removed Andy Marshall from the workhouse to the western penitentiary. Marshall was sentenced to both institutions for his part in a holdup near Bessemer. His workhouse term, for one year, was up yesterday. He will now have to serve from 2½ to 5 years in the Western penitentiary.

Deputy Sheriff Andy Vandetti and Mrs. Frank Johnston, jail matron, went to the Allegheny county workhouse today for Angeline Stella, who was committed to that institution on a liquor charge. She was sentenced for one year and has served about six months of her time. A petition for parole has been presented and a hearing will be held on next Saturday.

Care Of Water Is Important

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 21.—The Bureau of Engineering, the Pennsylvania State Department of Health is the largest state sanitary engineering bureau in the United States. It is often called "The heart of the Health Department." It is charged with the tremendous responsibility involved in the care of the domestic and municipal water supply of the commonwealth.

All municipalities and corporations serving water to the public must submit plans to this bureau, and secure approval permits before operating. In addition, they are under constant surveillance, and periodic supervision. Reports must come to the bureau weekly and monthly. All water going to the public from these companies, must come up to a certain standard of purity established by the bureau engineers.

This department also licenses dealers in bottled water for table use, after due investigation. All nuisances discovered in any manner and reported to this bureau are investigated, and if possible, abated. The tenement, lodging and boarding house laws are lodged here for enforcement also.

The field work of this division is carried on by seven District Engineers, whose main duties aside from actual administrative work is to preach the gospel of water purification and proper sewage disposal to the municipalities in their districts. The state is divided into 7 districts as follows: A—M. J. Barrick, Williamsport; B—L. D. Matter, Wilkesbarre; C—C. H. Young, Meadville; D—L. S. Morgan, Pittsburgh; E—R. C. German, Jr., Harrisburg; F—I. M. Glace, Harrisburg; H—H. M. Freeburn, Philadelphia.

The location of these District Engineers is such as to bring them into close touch with the problems that arise in various sections of the commonwealth. This plan has been found to work very successfully.

Erie Man Beaten, Home Is Burned

Erie Police Hunt "Fire-Murder" Plotters, Firemen Save Wounded Man

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 21.—Police today started an investigation of a possible "fire-murder" plot.

Firemen, responding to an alarm, stumbled over the body of Russell Carlson, 35, in the doorway of his burning home.

Carlson was unconscious when found. He apparently had been slugged. He had a deep cut over the right eye and the back of his head appeared bruised, police said.

They are probing the possibility that he had been beaten and then left to die after his residence was set on fire.

SUPERVISES WORK IN LABOR CAMPS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21—Coleman B. Mark of the bureau of engineering, state department of health, is supervising the installation of camps for laborers, who will be engaged in clearing the site for Pymatuning dam. This work was delegated to Mr. Mark in the closing days of the old year, and he took up the new duties at once. The same high health standards will be maintained at this new camp, as at the other five now operating at Normalsville, Claysville, Kittanning Point, Pleasant Unity and Curwensville. It is understood that this will be a much larger camp than any so far established.

BIG WAITING LIST AT STATE SANATORIA

To Examine Tots In Kindergartens

Plans Of Dr. Noble Of Pre-School Division Are Working Out

(Special to The News.)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 21—The plans of Dr. Mary Riggs Noble of the pre-school division of the bureau of child health, to carry into the medical examinations of the school children of Pennsylvania into the kindergartens, thus giving the pre-school child the benefit of this service from the state department of health, are working out splendidly, according to her latest report.

During December the work was carried forward actively Tioga and Montgomery counties, and arrangements were completed whereby similar examinations will be made in Cambria and Somerset counties during the current month. Altogether 14 counties of the state were touched by the work of the pre-school division during the closing month of the old year.

In Armstrong county six child health centers now have regular medical service by a physician, which service is gladly welcomed by both mothers and nurses. Four towns are asking for pre-natal clinics and two have been established—one at Coverdale and one at Sharon.

Hospital Is Vital Need To Every One In Entire District

"Emergencies are something over which we have no control. All of us would like to go through life free from accident, from disease, from epidemics. If by some alchemy we could devise some lotion or machine that would keep us free from these things, hospitals would be unnecessary."

"Unfortunately all of us are open to both accident and disease. Out of a clear sky the bolt strikes and overnight we are stricken with appendicitis, with pneumonia, or an automobile accident lays us low."

"When these things come our first thought is a hospital. Perhaps we never used it before, perhaps we have never contributed to its maintenance, but when we need the hospital we need it badly and we want to know that it is equipped and manned to care for our emergency."

"As citizens we have certain responsibilities which are personal and certain ones that are community in nature. It is a man's personal responsibility that he provide food and shelter for himself and family. It is a community responsibility that he sees to it that his city is governed well, that his streets are lighted and that his city has proper hospitalization facilities."

"No hospital can function properly saddled with a heavy deficit. No citizen wants a hospital that does not function properly. Hence it becomes the duty of every citizen to see to it that the Jameson Memorial Hospital has its burden of debt lifted so that we can expect efficient service when accident or disease strikes us or our families."

"I believe in the Jameson Memorial Hospital and I believe that my fellow townsmen believe in it also. The debt that overshadows the hospital can be lifted and I am confident that it will be lifted. It is a community duty that none of us can honestly shirk."

Every Citizen Has Personal Obligation In Hospital Campaign

Louis B. Round, vice president and general manager of the Pennsylvania Power company can hardly be charged with any lack of civic interest in his home town. President of the Rotary Club, one of the members of the Municipal Golf Committee, councilman for the Lawrence County Boy Scouts, chairman of the Civilian Sponsor Committee for Troop F, these and other pieces of work speak for themselves. Hence he is in a position to discuss the place hospitalization has in a community. Touching upon the Jameson Memorial hospital campaign today Mr. Round said:

"As a citizen I have certain responsibilities which I cannot dodge, some of them legal in their nature, others of them moral and civic. I must pay taxes, serve on juries, obey the laws. These are mandatory. Among the moral responsibilities can be listed supporting a church, helping in civic endeavors, aiding the needy and to all of these can be added a duty which I owe myself and my neighbor, that of seeing that we have competent hospitalization."

"I might never need a policeman to protect me or my property but if I did I would want to know he was where I could get him. I might never need a hospital but I want to know that there is one near if I do. Hence it devolves upon me, as a citizen, to lend my aid in seeing that the Jameson Memorial hospital is enabled to continue. If it closes it may mean the difference between life and death for me or my family. If it closes, you and I might need it urgently the day after it closes.

"It is our insurance against accident and disease, it is our guarantee that if such misfortune befalls us, the doors of the Jameson Memorial hospital are open 24 hours a day, standing ready as a Haven of Health for all of us.

"It is your duty, it is my duty, to see that those doors remain open."

Jameson Hospital Is Being Conducted On Sound Principles

In the list of civic workers of the city W. F. Moody's name has usually been found as one of the active members. Community Chest, Kiwanis Club, these and a number of other activities have made heavy demands upon his time. In addition, he is a director of the Jameson Memorial Hospital and as a business man is interested in knowing that the hospital is conducted along business lines.

It has taken us a little time to put the hospital upon a thorough going business basis" said Mr. Moody, "for the very good reason that there was no comparison between the new hospital and the old Shenango Valley. Rules of procedure which were found all right in the Shenango Valley simply wouldn't fit at the Jameson because of its increased size and equipment."

"During this time there has been a deficit accumulating but with the work of the hospital on a business basis as it now is, the future should not hold any deficits save for a small operating deficit which is to be expected in any good hospital. The big thing that is needed now is to lift the deficit of $60,000 and give the Jameson Memorial Hospital a chance to function properly.

"Under the system now in vogue in the Jameson Memorial Hospital we know where every dollar goes and how much of it goes for the various departments. Of the dollar paid by a patient, .0835 percent goes for administration, .0673 for housekeeping, .0295 for laundry, .2590 for dietary, .1402 for plant operation, fuel, power etc., .01 for real estate repairs, .021 for equipment repairs, .0061 for rent and insurance, .1560 for nursing, .023 for pharmacy, .038 for medical and surgical supplies, .0254 for anesthesia, .0717 for laboratory, .0392 for X-Ray, .0124 for physical therapy.

"The Jameson Memorial Hospital is being conducted on sound business principles by people who are trained and skilled in their work. Remove the $60,000 deficit and they will have a chance to demonstrate just how efficient the hospital can be."

Must Take $60,000 Debt Off Hospital For Best Service

Emergencies are nothing new to Dr. Howard C. Harper. Not only the emergencies of civil life but the emergencies of the battle field, and the field hospital. Three times his country has called him to minister to her fighting men and three times he answered the call with credit to the service and to his family. In the Spanish-American War he was a surgeon, in the Mexican Border trouble he had charge of the medical detachment that accompanied Troop F, and in the World War he was a major in charge of field hospitals directly back of the front line trenches.

Knowing the stress and strain of military medicine and surgery has given him a keener insight into the need for proper hospitalization in time of peace. He believed in efficient attention for wounded soldiers, he believes equally as firmly in the need for efficient hospital service for the civilian. And to quote Dr. Harper, "no hospital can function properly with a load of debt overshadowing its every corner."

"The men of New Castle and Lawrence County who are engaged in the practice of medicine and surgery know the value of a good hospital. It means proper facilities for their patients, it means better care, it means a better chance for recovery."

"Here in New Castle we have a hospital that ranks with the best in the country, the Jameson Memorial Hospital. It is a proper setting for the skill of Lawrence County physicians and surgeons. Given a chance to live it will return to the people of this community many times its cost in health and strong bodies."

"With $60,000 debt on it the Jameson Memorial Hospital is not getting a fair chance. Take that debt off and it will be able to keep abreast of the constantly increasing standards of good hospitals, it will be able to really function in a worth while way."

"We did everything humanly possible to keep our military hospitals up to the highest level possible. Surely we will not do less for a peace time hospital."

Hospital Obligation Is To All People Of This Entire District

Among his many other civic duties, Councilman Louis G. Genkinger is interested in proper hospitalization for the people of his city. Concerning the Jameson Memorial Hospital Mr. Genkinger said today:

"In the first two years of its operation, Jameson Memorial Hospital has established itself among the first rank of hospitals in the United States. Of 5,597 general hospitals in the United States, 664 have the officially recognized qualifications equal to those of Jameson Memorial Hospital. To be sure many of these 664 top-qualified hospitals are larger and more elaborately equippped and better manned, but none has better official endorsement. Jameson Memorial Hospital is a part of the 12 per cent top-level of cream of hospitals among the 5,597 general hospitals of the United States. As Directors of the Jameson Memorial Hospital, we know this. Our obligation in administration of our hospital is to all the people who are served by that hospital. We want all our people to know just as much about their hospital as we know. We know that we have a magnificent hospital as measured and approved in terms of quality of modern-hospital care to all its patients.

"We have it; what shall we do with it? We have dedicated Jameson Memorial Hospital to the ideal proposition that in care of the sick and injured the need of the patient shall not be determined by counting the contents of his pocketbook The needs of the patient, sick or injured and in hospital, are considerations technical and having to do with the application of medical-science and clinical experience. We lay people are not competent to determine these needs. We must put ourselves in the hands of our doctors and let them determine our needs.

"The fulfillment of these needs when we are sick and injured is a matter wholly out of our hands also, and a function vested in our doctors and our hospital. Here, unhappily, economics enters the scene. In the fulfillment of our needs, money consideration enters. So far as our hospital is concerned, it is dedicated to the ideal proposition that in all events the needs must be satisfied. The economics of satisfaction of need must stand aside. Inevitably, this builds deficit—a related but detached problem of social economics."

First Two Years Are Difficult Time For New Hospital

For many, many years Marcus Feuchtwanger has been identified with the civic life of New Castle. Long before the war he was active in civic work, during the war he carried a heavy load of the chest-raising funds, and the various other activities conducted as the result of the war. Since the war his interest has not flagged and one of his interests at the present time is the Jameson Memorial hospital, of which he is a director.

"This thing we call a deficit isn't such a bogey when we sit down and analyze its causes," said Mr. Feuchtwanger. "It is present because the management of the hospital refused to let the hospital retrograde to the level of just an ordinary one. The men and women back of it were and are determined to keep it up to the highest standard of American hospitalization, for we believe that New Castle and Lawrence county citizens are entitled to the very best the medical world offers.

"Equipping a new hospital is a task requiring large sums of money. Nor is this cost ended when the doors of the hospital are opened The first two years are the trying years and the Jameson Memorial hospital is emerging from its first two years with a $60,000 deficit. Clear this off and the future seems reasonably certain to care for itself.

"Give the hospital enough money to wipe out this deficit and we guarantee ourselves an institution where patients are certain of proper care in sickness. This care is guaranteed to every patient, whether he be a person of wealth or a charity patient. In the Jameson Memorial hospital a patient is a challenge to the skill of the doctors and the hospital authorities. His financial rating or his social prestige means nothing when sickness enters. Lawyers tell us that before the law all persons are equal. So it is in the Jameson Memorial hospital.

"We cannot afford to fail in the campaign for $60,000 to raise the deficit from the hospital. Disease and accident pick their own times to come. When they do come we must be ready. The Jameson Memorial hospital must be kept open and ready to cope with the enemies of mankind."

Free Care Of Sick Is One Of Reasons For Hospital Deficit

That a hospital stands a deficit upon service rendered for which the state grants a subsidy was brought out today by Charles H. Johnson, Jr., vice president of the Jameson Memorial hospital board of directors. Mr. Johnson said:

"Free care of the indigent sick is one of the reasons why hospitals cannot be operated except at a deficit. There is an erroneous idea abroad that the state pays for all charity patients admitted to the Jameson Memorial hospital. Not only is this untrue but it is a fact that for every patient for which the state pays any money, there is a deficit of approximately $1.40 per day."

The reason for this is obvious when the facts are known. The state subsidy to the Jameson Memorial hospital for the present biennium is $28,000 which means $14,000 per year. Reduced to patient days this means that the state will pay three dollars per day for 13 patients and no more. If there are more free patients in the hospital, the hospital stands the entire cost.

The per patient day cost of the Jameson Memorial hospital is $4.40. This means that when the state pays the hospital three dollars for a patient's care the hospital has a deficit of $1.40 per day. While this is unfortunate yet it is a wise provision of the state for were it to pay the full cost of charity patients the way would be open for dishonesty.

No matter how many charity patients are admitted to the Jameson Memorial hospital the state pays but three dollars per day for 13 of them, with the hospital standing the deficit of $1.40 on the 13, and the entire deficit on the remainder of the charity patients.

Every hospital must do a certain amount of charitable work and it is to the credit of the Jameson Memorial hospital that much of its deficit can be charged to this sort of thing. Hence, if we are to maintain the Jameson Memorial hospital, funds must come from those able to pay, to wipe out the deficit.

New Castle's Problem On Jameson Hospital Same As Other Cities

"The fifth largest industry in America is hospitals. 'Almost $4,000,000,000 are invested in building and equipment. By way of comparison this overshadows investments in automobile manufacture, the production of petroleum, etc. Nearly 600,000 people are employed in caring for approximately 12,000,000 patients each year.'

"Some of these hospitals are privately owned and as such only care for patients able to pay profit-making hospital charges. A number are built and maintained by taxes. These are mostly for city, county, state and other charity cases. The great majority of the approximately 8,000 hospitals in the United States are general, community hospitals that are built by the gifts of the people; serving rich and poor, black and white alike, giving a great deal of free care to those who are unable to pay anything; charge only part-pay for those who are unable to pay fully, that full rates for those who are able to pay their way without asking other citizens to pay for them.

"The Jameson Memorial Hospital is a community, general hospital more modern and better equipped than the average and through Mr. Jameson' magnificent generosity has been given to us without cost.

"Since it has been opened we have incurred a $60,000 debt for equipment and maintainence. Other communities everywhere raise funds to meet such hospital obligations. Most of the 513 community chests throughout the country supply funds to makeup hospital operating deficits each year. We in New Castle face a hospital problem that is little or no different at all from problems of other cities. The only condition that is different from the average is very much in New Castle's favor it is the people of our city escaped having to provide their own hospital buildings, and because of this item should be willing and happy to provide the comparatively small amount now required to put the hospital into a condition that will permit it to render best of service to New Castle's sick and injured

ATTORNEY JOHN P. LOCKHART

"Not all of the people in the great majority of cities throughout the United States are mistaken when they give generously for local hospital purposes. New Castle people should and will do the same."

Hospitals Mean Health Insurance

You may have paid fire insurance for twenty years and never have had a fire. You may have paid accident insurance and never had an accident.

But you don't cancel your policies You may never have had any use for a hospital. If you haven't you are fortunate. Can you say you never will need a hospital? Do you know when you may need one?

Don't cancel your health insurance, for that is just what the Jameson Memorial Hospital means to you. Keep the doors open and maintain your insurance.

Hospitals Are Great Factor In Recovery Of Many Patients

To the football fan who has followed the game for some time it doesn't seem so long since "Bill" Cleland was playing the line for Westminster college. To the soldier it doesn't seem so long since Major W. D. Cleland came back from France where he had been located near another line, the front line of battle. Football and soldiering have both had their day in his life but the spirit that carried him towards the goal posts and through the welter of blood in field hospitals still characterizes him in his practice of medicine and surgery. In that practice he utilizes the hospitals and said today of the Jameson Memorial hospital:

"Physicians and surgeons can go so far in their work of restoring people to health and strength. Beyond that point Nature must be relied upon, but proper care is an ally which Nature must have in her work."

"It is possible to treat people in their homes of course, but it is so much more efficient, so much better to put them in a hospital where they get skilled care twenty-four hours of the day. In the old days operations were performed in homes, sometimes by the light of an oil lamp under conditions that were far from sterile. Today, thanks to the Jameson Memorial hospital we can operate under the most favorable conditions. Sterility in the operating room, modern implements, proper lighting, and post-operative care in the hospital rooms that mean so much to the patients' recovery.

"A patient recovers more quickly and more certainly in a hospital than he possibly could at home. To the unthinking it might seem contradictory that a physician should want his patient to recover quickly but it is so. They want for their patients the very best care possible and this can be obtained only in a hospital.

"Keeping the Jameson Memorial hospital open means so much to this community that to suggest that it must close because of a deficit of $60,000 is to suggest that the people of New Castle and Lawrence county do not want proper care during sickness. They do want it and I feel confident the campaign for funds will be successful.

Can't Measure Worth Of Jameson Hospital In Dollars And Cents

James M. Smith, president of the Shenango Pottery Company is interested in something more than making fine chinaware. One of the many things in New Castle in which he believes thoroughly is the Jameson Memorial Hospital. Not so much from a sentimental viewpoint as from the actual worth of the institution to this community. Commenting upon the hospital and its needs he said:

"From the point of capital expense and from the standpoint of the value of the product it turns out, hospitals rank among the really large industries of America today. Here in New Castle we have a hospital that ranks with the best in America, a hospital efficiently equipped, capably manned, ready twenty-four hours of the day to serve us."

"We cannot measure the product of a good hospital in dollars and cents. How much a human life is worth is something we have not yet reduced to cold financial calculations. How much human happiness is worth cannot be measured by any yard stick of the business world."

"There is a way in which we can express our appreciation of the work of the Jameson Memorial hospital in a tangible, practical way and that is to aid in lifting the load of debt which at present looms as the possible key that will close the doors of this splendid institution. That way is for everyone to share in this community responsibility, to give according to his own abilities, to give a little of what we think this hospital is worth."

"New Castle cannot afford to see the Jameson Memorial hospital close its doors. Such a thing is unthinkable. It cannot and must not happen. Sixty thousand dollars is a sizable sum of money, considered by itself, but placed over against the health and happiness of this entire community it loses some of its size and becomes just an obstacle which must be removed."

Believes In Active Support Of Jameson Memorial Hospital

Not alone does H. B. Richards, manager of the New Castle Water Company believe in the Jameson Memorial Hospital campaign enough to subscribe but he is a divisional chairman in the campaign. With him there can be no such thing as passive interest or moral support. He believes in active support of any cause in which he believes and the cause of the Jameson Memorial Hospital is one in which he believes thoroughly.

"A citizen is a stockholder in his community" said Mr. Richards today, "and as a stockholder he is entitled to know how his organization or any part of it is going. In the case of the Jameson Memorial Hospital, not all of us have known in the past that it needed money. We didn't know that a small group of men and women, the directors of the hospital had dug down into their own pockets before for money to carry the work on."

"They believed that they might be able to get by without asking the rest of us for a little but now they realize that the problem is one that should be shared by the rest of us. As a citizen or a stockholder, I believe that the Jameson Memorial Hospital should be supported by a great host of small contributions, rather than a few huge ones."

"Every citizen in this community is a stockholder in the Jameson Memorial Hospital. None of us know just when we may have to call upon the hospital to put forth its best efforts to save us or one of our loved ones. But against that day we have to be on guard. We keep up our fire insurance although we may never have a fire. The Jameson Memorial Hospital is insurance, not against accident or disease, but rather an assurance that if such things come we will be well taken care of."

"You and I are stockholders. Let's take up our share of this piece of work, wipe the debt from the Jameson Memorial Hospital and guarantee the future functioning of the hospital."

Coming Fund Campaign For Jameson Hospital Community Obligation

John H. Lamb who is President of the Citizens National Bank also is Treasurer of the Jameson Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Lamb today said:

"The measure of a community is its attitude toward its community obligations. No person can put his finger on a more urgent, city-wide duty than caring for the immediate financial needs of the Jameson Memorial Hospital. New Castle people will not permit the key to be turned in the door of this fine institution, but somehow many good citizens who usually think straight and right have neglected to give serious consideration to the crisis facing the hospital, and now we face calamity. Maybe it is because we who are most closely connected with the affairs of the Jameson Memorial have not kept the public sufficiently informed as to its needs.

"With the New Year we face a tremendously important task that can be accomplished if we first give it serious, determined attention. It is a call for pleasant, unrestrained cooperation. Instead of allowing ourselves to be spoiled by Mr. Jamesons wonderful gift, we should pay its comparatively small accumulated equipment and operation debts and give ourselves the full benefit of the finest hospital serving any city of equal size anywhere. Once we dispose of the $60,000 now embarrassing the hospital we should have no occasion to again make a similar city-wide debt-raising appeal such as we plan for January."

Aims Of Jameson Memorial Hospital Given By Director

For the past two weeks statements have been printed in these columns concerning the Jameson Memorial Hospital. They have come from business and professional men whose interest in the hospital is one of civic pride. Today Dr. Wayne Bissell, Director of the Jameson Memorial Hospital goes into the operation of the hospital. His statements follows.

My very close connection with the activities and development of service of Jameson Memorial Hospital during the past two years makes me a prejudiced judge. I am therefore denied the privilege of expressing opinions, however well grounded and sincere. Any expression from me must be statement of simple fact.

Administration of Jameson Memorial Hospital during the past two years has been focused on the simple proposition of building the best quality of patient-care we know how to build. It has been our purpose also to make that uniformly high standard care available to all who need it, without regard to social standing, race, color or religion and regardless of the ability of the patient to pay. That this building of high standards in patient-care has been accomplished with signal success is evidenced by the fact that Jameson Memorial Hospital is officially approved by every recognized agency of hospital grading in the United States as well as Pennsylvania. Our hospital takes rank equally, in terms of quality of its service, with the 77 other top rank hospitals of Pennsylvania's total of 311. Thirty nine of these 77 top-rank hospitals are located in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

No person of our community who has need of our hospital care is ever denied it, contagious diseases, mental disorders and old age disability excepted. We have kept faith with our sick in building high standards of hospital care. The question remains, have we done our work economically? We know we have done our work with unusual economy, but before recording the figures it is necessary to have the facts on operating costs of other similar fully approved general hospitals of other communities. Data are available, month by month and year by year on operation of 91 such hospitals, distributed in 81 communities scattered over 35 states. All these hospitals were going concerns and fully operative since 1928 or before. This is mentioned because Jameson Memorial Hospital was born, so to speak, on the threshold of depression. These 91 hospitals operated during 1930 and 1931 at an average cost of $5.80 for each patient each day. This cost did not include depreciation or capital expense for permanent improvements and equipment. During the same period (1930-31) the average cost in Jameson Memorial Hospital was $4.93, 83 cents lower per day per patient. These 91 hospitals, for the same period, averaged 73 cents loss per day in the care of each patient. This loss in Jameson Memorial Hospital was the same, 73 cents. This 73 cents average loss per day per patient for each of the 91 established hospitals, as well as our own new hospital, represents the average difference between the cost of giving each patient what he needs and the money received from all sources for the needed care given. In the aggregate, the loss for the 91 hospitals was more than $6,000,000.00. for 1930 and 1931.

Jameson Memorial Hospital has had another expense during its first two years, the expense of equipment and facility necessary to building the high standard internal machanism of approved quality of patient care. This expense has amounted to 62 cents for each patient each day during 1930 and nine months of 1931. But even if this 62 cents is added to the operating cost of $4.93, the aggregate of $5.55 is less than average operating cost of the 91 hospitals ($5.80).

In very large measure the load of our hospital deficit has been carried by Directors and their friends for over two years. The load has become too heavy, but the major expense is over. The outlook is bright. A voluntary adjustment of wages and salaries by hospital personnel, effective October 1, 1931, amounted to a reduction of 80 cents a day in average cost of care of each patient. The operating budget is practically balanced.

The public is now asked to help, just as is every other community public enjoying the protection of a fully approved hospital. Jameson Memorial Hospital has cost the general public of New Castle, exactly nothing. The people, all who are able, are asked to contribute to the fund being raised. The sum asked for is less than 6 percent on the cost of the property. Whether we go over the top or close the hospital is up to every one of us, vitally important business of each and every one of us.

Jameson Hospital Board Of Directors Highly Commended

Dr. Loyal W. Wilson this morning in speaking of the character of representation on the board of the Jameson Memorial hospital said:

"The hospital is managed by a board of directors composed of well known men and women all of whom are respected for their business ability. These directors have been New Castle residents for many years, many of them are members of old established New Castle families and naturally are well acquainted with local conditions. They give liberally of their time and in the past have given liberally of their money to make up hospital deficits. It is needless to say that no one of the directors of the hospital receives a cent of remuneration for the time he devotes to hospital affairs. Each renders the service wholly gratituitously, being happy to serve such a worthy cause.

"We know that they are the type of men and women who give a public trust much of their time and careful attention. And we also believe that any mistakes that have been made will be corrected by our able board.

"Any private business in New Castle that could boast of a board of equal standing and ability to that in control of the hospital would be most fortunate."

established and it will be able to operate as a modern disease fighting institution should. Once the deficit is lifted, the only future deficit that will accrue will be that common to all general hospitals, a small annual operating deficit which the directors feel can be met without any such campaign as the one just starting.

The campaign opening tonight is headed by Fred L. Rentz, and associated with him are outstanding citizens of this community. Not a one but realizes that this is not a propitious time to raise funds, and not a one but realizes that because of this fact they must work the harder to accomplish the aim of the campaign.

Ten Divisions

There are ten general divisions listed in the arrangement of the campaign. They are, Automobile, Financial, General, Industry, Mercantile, Official, Organizations, Public Service, Professional, and Real Estate and Construction. Each division is headed by a chairman, and the various subdivisions under each general division is headed by a vice chairman. Each vice chairman has his group of workers and in this manner every phase of the business and professional life of the city will be canvassed.

In order to make it possible for many people to contribute the pledges will be spread over a period of ten months, the pledge to designate just when he wishes to make his payments.

Tonight is the opening of the campaign. The decision as to the future of the Jameson Memorial Hospital lies squarely with the people of this community. The workers who will assemble in the Castleton tonight are confident of the outcome and are backing their confidence with their own personal pledges and a lot of hard work.

They're adopting the five-day week for foreign cabinets—five days and out.—The Omaha Evening World-Herald.

League Leaders Have Hard Games

Specialty And Hot Mills Win In Games Last Night

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 21.—Both of the league leaders had tough going in their games at the Shelby clubhouse last night. The Specialty, who hold second place in the Shelby League, just managed to nose out the Office passers, 37-33, and the Hot Mills broke a deadlock in the third quarter to defeat the Mechanicals, 23-17.

Incidentally, the Specialty was minus the services of two of its regulars and the Hot Mills one. Ben Chambers of the latter team received a severe injury to his arm in the second quarter and was unable to finish the game.

In the first game it appeared that the ex-champs, Specialty, were going to have easy going. Boone found it to be a great day for him, having acquired at the close of the games 11 baskets. Seven of these were obtained in the first half. Patterson and Sumner also scored in this period. The Office were trailing behind a 13-6 count at the end of the initial period.

The ex-champs continued their wild race in the second quarter. They held their opponents in check while they managed to roll up a safe score. The Office was outscored, 12-5, in this period, which made the standing 25-11 for the Specialty.

Fans received a surprise in the next quarter when the Office began to reverse the situation. A sudden spurt twice placed them in front. The work of Joe Rielley was the feature of this period. Januzzi and Alexander aided their cause extensively. The escore at the end of the third quarter was 31-28 for the Specialty. The final chapter was a thriller. The lead exchanged hands several times and at one time it appeared that the Office was safe behind a five-point lead. But the Specialty rallied in the last three minutes to wipe off their deficit and stepped in front, which place they held to the end of the game. The final score was 37-33 for the Specialty.

The Mechanicals managed to keep the Hot Mills guessing for the first two quarters in the second game, but weakened in the final stanza to drop the game. They started off fast and scored early. The champions were kept in check until the final stanza. The scoore was 8-6 for the Mechanicals at the end of the first quarter. Matters began to get more interesting in the second quarter, as the Hot Mills strove to get in front. They got within one point of their opponent's lead to make the score 10-9 at the half. Ferrucci got the basket for the Mechanicals and Ursu and Friedhoff three points for the Hot Mills.

The third quarter became more complicated as each team became more desperate to obtain a lead. The Mechanicals were outscored, 5-4, in this period, which made the game deadlocked at 14-all at the close. The champions went on a spree in the final chapter to easily win the game. They accumulated nine points to two for their opponents. Clyde, Ursu and Fitzgerald led the attack. The final score was 23-16 for the Hot Mills. They only need one more victory to insure their place as champions of the first half. Two defeats would give them a tie with the Specialty, providing the latter wins its remaining games. It is almost a certainty that the Hot Mills will win their position. They are favored to whip the Office next Saturday, which would place them out of danger.

The line-up:

The Parent Problem

Child Makes Plea For Little Brother

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

"Dear Doctor Myers: I am writing in regards to my little brother who is ten years old. He is dreadfully under weight for one thing. But the main thing that I'm writing about is his behavior and attitude toward his parents, sisters and brothers. To me he seems to have an extremely nervous system. He never can sit still for five minutes at a time. He will deliberately annoy others, doing things which he knows he should not do. He's so frightened at the least little noise and of the dark. He cries easily and is so jumpy.

"I've tried to get my parents to take him to a doctor, but they insist there is nothing the matter with him except that he is naturally mean. He gets so many lickings for things the other children do. Just because he acts this way I supose my parents think he does all of the mean things. I'd like to have your advice on this."

Answer: Your letter has touched me, and so many of my readers will share my sympathy with you and with your suffering little brother. What makes it such a tragedy is that your parents are doubtless wholly unaware of the harm they are doing. I have a notion they are as conscientous about the matter as you are. They merely see the problem differently. Rather, they entirely fail to see the problem as it is.

In the first place you doubtless know enough about human nature to realize that it is too much to expect your parents to take advice from you, their child, no matter how good that advice may be. Since you seem to have a good insight into the case maybe you might quietly persuade some older person whom your parents respect, to try to change their point of view toward your brother, and to take him at once to a medical specialist for advice.

Some such a friend might persuade your parents to read this column regularly, in which many aspects of your brother's problems are discussed.

By such means they might be induced to borrow from the library a copy of my book, "The Modern Parent" or my "Building Personality in Children," in which are a number of concrete suggestions. Some one might, moreover, persuade them to substitute other punishments for whipping and to reduce the punishment by playing up the child's successes, making him feel a more worthy member of the family.

My heart goes out to that lad as I know yours does, too. But keep in mind that you want to get results. It is possible that the more you say to your parents by way of criticism the more severe they will grow. It's the way of human nature's self-defense. I do hope some one may lead your parents to understand your little brother better and show them how to guide him more happily.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Marginalia of a Madhattanite:

That little "Vanities" girl's remark keeps bobbing back to mind: "Earl's given me a break at last. Haven't you heard? He's promoting me from the back row to be one of the nudes in the first act finale! I always knew I'd click if I kept at it!" . . . At a party the other night the napkins were a pale golden hue and each had embroidered on it in large script: Bacardi. . . . I can't figure out why the burlesk wheels hire those hefty and battle-scarred chorusine swhen plenty of lovely young things are looking for back-row jobs just now...From four hundred to two thousand job-seekers respond whenever a night club or new show sends out a call...

These times are bringing out unsuspected versatility in practitioners of the arts...MacClelland Barclay, whose action-filled pretty-girl illustrations you've admired, has turned to sculpture and found it immensely profitable, transmuting his clean line to bronze ash trays...And John Held, Jr., has taken up fiction, now that his flaming youth cartoons have not the novelty they held for collegites ten years ago...Russell Patterson is doing "straight" illustration for the magazines, recalling the fact that he exhibited his oils brilliantly in Paris and Vienna fifteen years ago....He still is a comparative youngster, too...

All parties are agog just now over the Hawaiian situation, and some strange stories are going the rounds. ...My sympathy is with Bobby Bell, who is on his way now to Hawaii, as "the man of the family"...I remember some grand parties at "Twin Oakes," the family estate outside Washington, and I recall Mrs. Fortescue, a charming and imperious lady, whose present predicament is inconceivable...

FIGHTER'S FUTURE

Several of the sport commentators have remarked the difficulty in "placing" Gene Tunney. A Dempsey or a Corbett is easy to predict; they must travel a lot, they must involve themselves in frequent public appearances reminiscent of the old days, and they ade gently and gracefully from the public eye.

Gene is another matter. He couldn't succeed as a college professor, because his words are far too long for students to understand. He won't go back into the ring, which he secretly hates, or into any sort of barn-storming. He needn't do either, now, and his tastes run differently.

Maybe—I could even hazard probably—politics holds Gene's destiny. He has already been invited to join the Democratic Victory Fund committee, besides being a member of the Governor of Connecticut's staff. He is Irish, you'll remember, and he has a charming smile coupled with a swift understanding of his opponent's phychology. In addition, it would be a brave voter who'd dare heckle him.

How Doctors Fight FAT

Medical science finds that lack of a certain gland secretion is a great cause of obesity. Food that should create energy goes to excess fat. People slow down and gain weight. Now doctors the world over supply that lacking factor. Instead of starving people, they combat the cause of fat. Abnormal figures, in late years, have been disappearing fast.

That modern method is the basis of Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 24 years—millions of boxes of them. Now almost everyone has friends who know and show the delightful effects of Marmola.

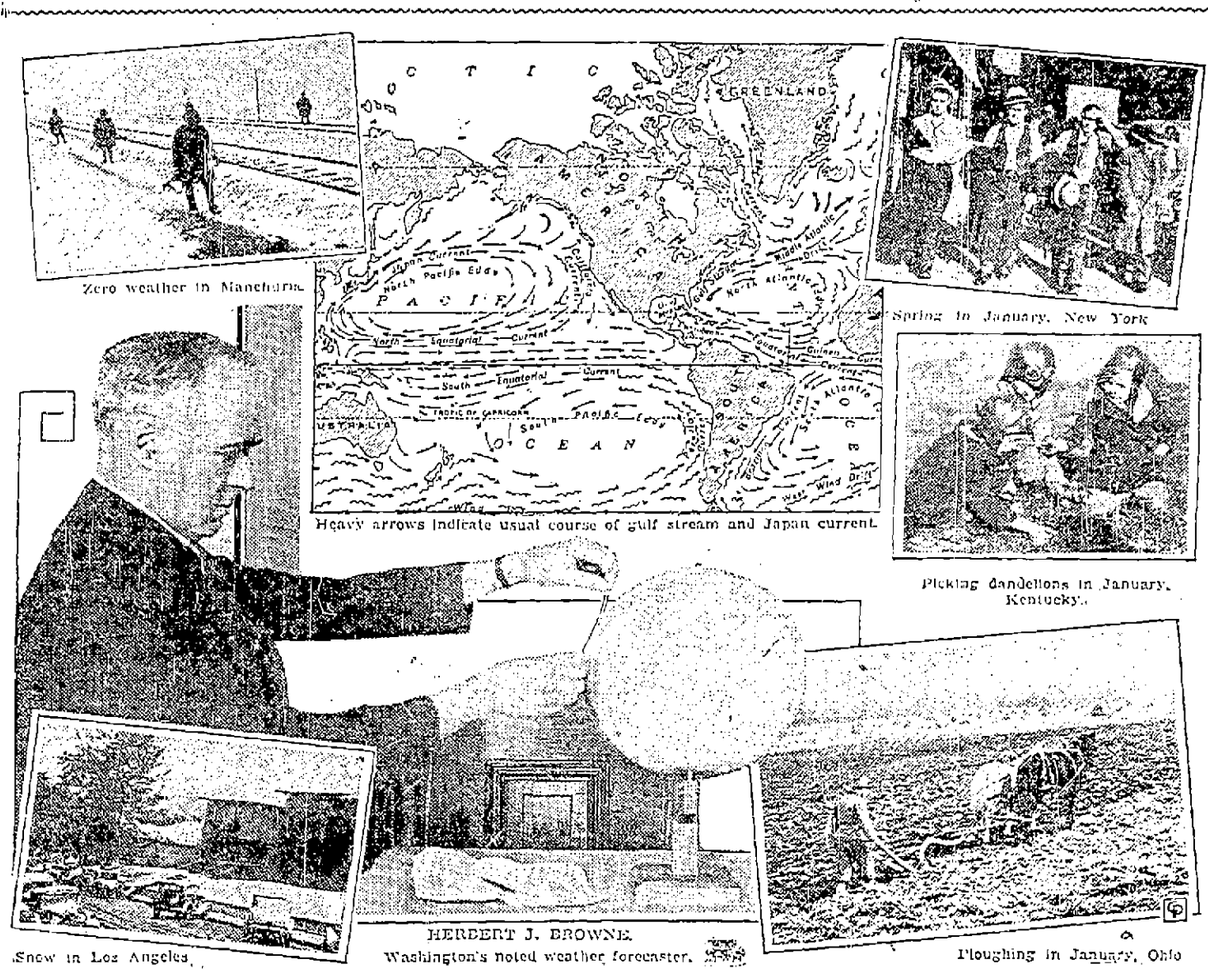
Long Distance Forecaster Declares Solar Radiation And Lunar Pull Brought On Unusual Weather; U. S. Bureau Pooh-Poohs Idea, Calling It "Only A Theory"



Zero weather in Manchuria.

HERBERT J. BROWNE
Washington's noted weather forecaster.

Ploughing in January, Ohio

Herbert Janvrin Browne, an unofficial weather forecaster of Washington, D. C., whose predictions have been startlingly true, says the sea reflects solar changes during a 11.20-year cycle as well as changes in the position of the moon over the lunar cycle of 18.6 years. According to Browne's system, a combination of influences of maximum solar radiation and the maximum lunar pull would be felt at a given point only once in 55.8 years. This influence is now upon us, says Browne. Thus we see snow in California while the middle west and the east plow and go in bathing. The Gulf Stream has penetrated much farther north than usual, Browne adds, squeezing out the colder water underneath and causing exceptional severity of weather to the southeastward, as far away, indeed, as Manchuria, where soldiers have suffered acutely. The severity of Pacific coast weather has been occasioned by the Japanese current pushing past the Aleutian peninsula and into the Arctic, forcing cold currents to spread to Pacific coast.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Herbert Janvrin Browne, Washington's celebrated long-distance weather forecaster, advances a theory for the freak weather a large part of the world has been experiencing. While Browne's explanation is looked upon by official United States weather bureau men as merely a theory, nevertheless it sounds plausible.

Although Herbert Janvrin Browne advances no claim to have been, by original training, a savant in any sense whatever, his weather forecasting system is built upon the observations of a scientific man of the highest rating—Dr. Charles Greeley Abbot, the astrophysicist, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and discoverer of variability in the sun's radiation.

Dr. Abbot was just arriving at the determination of a cyclical range in the waxing and waning of solar intensity when business requirements inspired Browne to begin upon his quest for some underlying scheme in nature on which he might be able to base a series of longer range meteorological predictions than the weather bureau is yet prepared to recognize as among existing possibilities.

Dr. Abbot's discoveries, coming to his attention, gave him the hint he desired.

A sailor in his youth, with a navigator's education, Browne was familiar with the ocean. The sea, he bethought him, should reflect solar changes, gradually gaining and then gradually losing heat, with the gradual increase and diminution in the intensity of radiation from the big luminary, through the 11.20-year swing which Dr. Abbot had fixed upon as the length of the cycle.

Theory's Background

With due allowance for a lag of about three years, to give time for ocean currents to effect a distribution of the waters throughout the seas, from the equatorial to the most northerly and southerly and back again, this was the theory's groundwork when I first met Browne half a decade ago or a little more.

Since then it has been considerably refined upon.

Notably, Browne now takes into consideration the cyclical changes in the position of the moon, with what he presumes to be its accelerating drag upon the currents, as well as its tidal uplift.

Now the lunar cycle is of 18.6 years.

This at a given point (say in the maritime area to the southeastward of the Florida coast) the combination of influences of maximum solar radiation and the maximum lunar pull would be felt only once in 55.8 years.

And this, says Browne, is just the influence which, in that area, recently has been approximately at its climax.

Increasingly Peculiar Weather

The result, he asserts, is the creation of barometric conditions which, moving inland to the northwestward, not only are giving much of the country its peculiar winter, but have been giving it increasingly peculiar weather for several years past.

But that is not all.

The Gulf Stream, under the same influence, has penetrated much farther than usual, past Spitzbergen, into the Arctic, where the warmer water, remaining at the surface, because lighter, has squeezed out the colder water underneath, hastening its movement southward along the European coast and causing exceptional severity of the winter to the southeastward. It has penetrated as far, indeed, as Manchuria, where dispatches have described the suffering of Chinese and Japanese soldiers in the last few weeks, from the sub-zero temperatures they have been exposed to.

Moreover, the winter has been a severe one in northwestern North America—in Canada and even, to some extent across the border—for Pacific conditions have been similar to those in the Atlantic, and the Japan current has pushed past the Aleutians and into the Arctic in that quarter, just as the Gulf Stream has done in the eastern hemisphere.

All this is Herbert Janvrin Browne's version.

The version of the weather bureau is that the barometric conditions he describes have, to be sure, prevailed—with substantially the results which he also describes. But the bureau rejects his explanation of them.

I asked Chief Paul C. Whitney of the coast and geodetic survey's division of tides and currents for his opinion as an impartial witness.

"Browne," said Chief Whitney, "has evolved an interesting theory, but it's only a theory. It would take a vast number of observations, for a long time, to test it."

"How's this for proof?" answers Browne, producing a mass of records, reaching back into ancient history—so far back that there may be room for questioning the earlier ones as doubtful. But they do date back to 1708-'09 with every appearance of authenticity, and it is a fact that they indicate a freak winter at approximately 56-year intervals.

"Even so, it's only a theory that tides and currents had anything to do with them," insists the coast and geodetic expert.

Building Workers In Philadelphia Threaten Strike

About 70,000 Workmen Will Be Effected By Looming Strike

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.— A wage dispute affecting 70,000 workers and threatening halting of $26,700,000 in proposed construction work loomed here today.

The Philadelphia Builders' Exchange and Employers' Association yesterday recommended a 20 to 40 per cent wage cut to its member associations. The Unions avowed their intention of protecting their wage agreements in the courts or by strikers if necessary. The proposed cut would bring all wages down to $1 per hour for all building mechanics and workers.

CHINESE BANDITS REQUEST $200,000 FOR SHIP CAPTAIN

(International News Service)

PEIPING, Jan. 21.—Chinese bandits today demanded $200,000 ransom for the safe return of Charles Baker, American barge captain kidnapped from aboard his ship in the Yangtze river.

Simultaneously the American Legation here issued a formal protest to the Nanking Nationalist government and sent Vice-Consul Clubb to aid the United States navy gunboat in its efforts to gain the American's release.

The bandits, who kidnapped Baker after looting his ship near the mouth of the river, have moved up to Pailochu, inland, with their captive.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

For coughs due to colds, the best remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Drys Planning Answer To Wets At Washington

Drys Will Now Have Inning Before Metcalf Senate Probe Committee

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Confronted by the testimony of leading medical experts, scientists and labor executives that legalization of beer would restore health, wealth and prosperity to the nation, prohibitionists have asked for additional time to prepare their case before testifying before the Metcalf Senate committee.

The parade of dry witnesses was scheduled to commence Tuesday but dry leaders indicated they would be unable to prepare their case in that time, a member of the committee said today.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, will be the first dry witness. Bishop James Cannon, Jr., will also testify.

The wets have rested their case, concluded with the announcement that the American Federation of Labor would support modification of the 18th Amendment.

Four Meet Death In Attempting To Defend Church From Rioters

(International News Service)

BILBAO, Jan. 21.—Four Catholics were killed today in defending one of several churches and seminaries set afire by rioters in the vicinity of Bilbao.

Authorities were at a loss to check a rapid spread of incendiarism which broke out as feeling between Socialists and Catholics ran at a high pitch.

The four killed were attempting to defend a church at Gallarta against a wild mob of anti-Catholics.

"I took Panama," said Roosevelt. And Japan, as we remember, sent him no notes about it.

News Of The World As Told In Pictures

Roaring Rapids on a Mississippi Farm

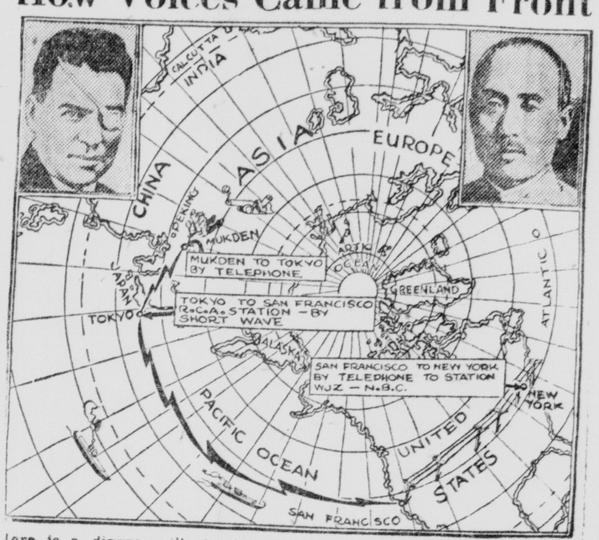
Britain's Bigger and Better Submarine

Said to be the world's largest submarine, this huge undersea craft, bearing the colorful name of "H. M. S. Sturgeon," is shown at Tilbury Docks, London, soon after her launching. The sleek and sturdy vessel, which has passed its tests to the complete satisfaction of the British Admiralty, embodies many features heretofore regarded as impractical for submarines. Besides her fore and aft torpedo tubes, the undersea monster carries batteries of disappearing guns and anti-aircraft artillery.

How Voices Came from Front



Here is a diagram illustrating the course of the remarkable radio broadcast of General Honjo (right, inset), commander of the Japanese Army in Manchuria, and Floyd Gibbons (left inset), famous International News Service war correspondent, from the war zone. Relayed through a field transmitter from Mukden, Manchuria, to Tokyo, Japan, thence to San Francisco by short wave, the program was carried to New York by special transcontinental phone circuits for distribution to stations of the WJZ red network, while N. B. C. short-wave units at Pittsburgh and Schenectady retransmitted the program to Europe, where it was rebroadcast.

Arrested as "Honor-Slayer"

Slain Churchman

Attacked while keeping a midnight tryst with a young woman near Germantown, Pa. Norman P. Bechtel (above), well known Mennonite church worker of Philadelphia, died as the result of twenty stab wounds. A trolley car conductor told the police that he had seen two men and a girl leave the scene, the girl screaming for help as the car dashed away.

As Rammed Rum Chaser Made Port

Tornado's Wake of Death

Imperial Infant

Despite her mere year of existence, there is a decidedly regal touch to the attitude of this little Japanese princess, who holds her "sceptre" in her left hand. She is Princess Yon, baby daughter of the Emperor of the Land of the Rising Sun. She was born in March, 1931, and has two sisters, one aged 6 and the other 4. This official photograph was made by a member of the imperial household.

Accuses Physician

Big Step Towards Olympics

This unusual photo, made, apparently, from beneath the championship feet of Mack Weiss, shows the pedestrian king taking a huge stride in his training at Los Angeles for the Olympic try-outs. Weiss, holder of the American record for the Olympic distance, set a mark of 4 hours 52 minutes and 43 seconds for the 50,000 meters (31 miles, 125 yards) at Philadelphia in 1929. He will compete in the Olympic trials under the colors of the Los Angeles A. C.

Twice Fled From Chain Gang

Sentenced to serve six years in the chain gang in Georgia, for the theft of $5.80, Robert Elliot Burns (left) succeeded in escaping after he had served two years of his term. Starting life all over again, Burns established himself as a prosperous and respected publisher in Chicago. But Georgian authorities traced him and had him extradited to finish his sentence. Again he escaped and so far has not been located by his erstwhile jailers. He is shown telling his experiences to his brother, the Rev. Vincent Burns. Where? Somewhere in the United States.

Scene of Fatal Oil Blast

There is no smoke without fire and this huge cloud is no exception. One man was killed and five seriously injured when this oil tank near Oklahoma City exploded. Four storage tanks of 2,500-barrels capacity were ignited by a welding torch, killing the man who was operating it. So intense was the heat of the fire that it threatened four other gusher type wells near by. The blast broke all windows for a mile radius.

Getting His Old Job Back

As Jap Emperor Reviewed His Warriors

Reminiscent of the colorful scenes that were a feature of militaristic Germany in pre-war days is this imposing display of Japanese military man power. All the pomp and grandeur that distinguished such brilliant parades in the era before the world realized that war is not all it was cracked up to be was in evidence when Emperor Hirohito of Japan reviewed the crack troops of his army, including the Imperial Bodyguard, on the Yoyogi Parade Ground in Tokyo, recently. The Emperor is shown, in inset, mounted on his favorite horse, Keisho, as he inspected his warriors. On the return to the palace after the review an object said to have been a hand grenade, was hurled at the royal procession. The missile slightly damaged a carriage other than that in which the Emperor was riding.

Prodigal Princess

Returning to her native land for a visit, the Maharanee Mahimai M. S. Holkar of Indore, formerly Nancy Ann Miller, of Seattle, Wash., is shown on her arrival in New York. The marriage of the American girl and the Indian Maharajah caused a world-wide sensation a few years ago. Evidence that she has embraced the faith of her husband is seen in the ruby caste mark she wears in her forehead.

Celebrate New Appointment

This group is comprised of a few of the distinguished guests that attended the luncheon tendered to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt by the Philippine Delegation at Washington, D. C., on the Colonel's appointment as Governor General of the Philippines. The former Governor General of Porto Rico was nominated for the post by President Hoover and indorsed by the Senate. Left to right (seated) are Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and Mrs. Nicholas Roosevelt Longworth, widow of the late Speaker of the House. Standing are: Secretary of War Patrick J. FUND CAMPAIGN OPENS

Goal Of $60,000 Set As Jameson Hospital Workers Start

Chairman Urges Intensive Work As Teams Gather

Stresses Vital Necessity Of Campaign's Success If Work Is To Continue

NEED CHALLENGES EVERY INDIVIDUAL

FRED L. RENTZ

As two hundred men of New Castle prepare to start their canvas of the city and county, in an effort to raise $60,000 for the Jameson Memorial Hospital, the general chairman of the campaign again stresses the serious consequences that will certainly accrue if the campaign is not successful.

"This hospital challenges the best that is in all of us" said Mr. Rentz. "Here we have an outstandingly efficient hospital, one that ranks with the best in the United States, and yet there is a possibility that it will be unable to continue its work. That possibility can and will be avoided if every division leader, every vice chairman, every worker and every citizen takes to himself the responsibility he should."

"All of us have a personal responsibility in this hospital. David Jameson realized his responsibility to his community and demonstrated that sense of responsibility in a manner that bespoke the calibre of the man. He gave us the hospital and saved the citizens of this community approximately $1,000,000 for the day was at hand when we had to have a new hospital."

Can Be Put Over

"This campaign can be put over" said Mr. Rentz again, but it will take work. Looking over the list of leaders and workers I can not find a single name that has not been represented in previous civic work in New Castle. Many of them are veterans of the campaigns in the past. Once again they are asked to take their share of the work, and once again they have responded."

"Lift this $60,000 deficit and we will be able to operate the hospital without future deficits, except the ordinary operating loss that comes to any general hospital doing any charity work. Hospitals cannot be operated at a profit, they cannot be operated without a loss unless the people operating the hospital fall short of their responsibility.

"This campaign opens tonight. It will be a strenuous campaign but it will be a satisfying one if we put it over. No one man, no group of men can put it over. It takes teamwork and co-operation. This I feel confident we will get. The black shadow of the closed door is too gruesome a picture for New Castle to witness. We must keep the doors open and I am confident we will."

Keep The Doors Open!

(An Editorial)

New Castle enters the Jameson Hospital Campaign Fund tonight, facing the gravest crisis—insofar as hospitalization is concerned—that the city has ever experienced. Unless $60,000 can be raised to lift the deficit from the hospital, it must close its doors.

This is no bogey manufactured to frighten people into giving, no cry of wolf, it is a plain statement of facts as they are. Unless the Jameson Memorial Hospital can be freed of its deficit, its credit re-established, and the hospital placed upon a firm financial basis, then the doors must close and the work cease.

New Castle has been remarkably free from capital expense in the matter of hospitals. In the past twenty five years there has never been a campaign for funds with which to build a hospital. In the case of the Jameson Memorial Hospital, it is the gift of a man whose name will ever stand as a symbol of philanthropy in this city, David Jameson.

David Jameson believed that this city was entitled to a modern hospital and to his already large philanthropies he added this hospital, his last and greatest gift to the citizens of his city before he passed on. It was David Jameson's idea that the doors of the hospital should be open to the people at all times. Will the people of New Castle and Lawrence County fail to carry out this wish?

There has been considerable money raised in the past two years for operating expense. Perhaps it would have been better if the directors had gone to the public for these funds. Instead they dug down into their own pockets, refusing to allow their beneficence to be made known. It is unfair to them and to the citizenry to expect that they continue to carry this load alone and now they have presented the problem to the people.

All of us have a share of the responsibility. The Jameson Memorial Hospital stands as a Memorial of Mercy, ready to serve all the people regardless of race, color or creed. It has, and can, and will render a priceless service to the people, given the opportunity. It cannot function, saddled with a load of debt. The debt has been incurred in fitting it with modern implements, in giving it the best modern skill can devise to fight disease and accident. There will be no future debts of any size incurred for equipment for the need is filled for a long time to come.

What deficits occur in the future will be operating deficits which are usual to any general hospital. These the directors feel they can care for without any unusual effort. But they must have that $60,000 deficit now present, lifted.

One may argue that this is no time to stage a campaign for funds. It is true that the nation and the world are in a depression, but the Ogre of Disease chooses his own time to strike. Only because the need is dire are the directors asking for this $60,000 at this time.

Some there are who will find it impossible to give, but there are so many of us that can give, if only a little. No pledge is too small to be overlooked for the giver not only puts his money into the hospital, he puts himself into it. "Not what we give but what we share."

As a city and as citizens we cannot afford to permit the Jameson Memorial Hospital doors to close. This campaign for $60,000 can be put over and will be put over if every one who can afford it will do his share.

Let's keep the doors open!

ALEX. CRAWFORD HOYT

Hospital Is Need Of Every Citizen—Must Raise $60,000 Fund

"The New Year, which we will welcome tonight with enthusiasm and high hopes, brings with it one inescapable obligation which must be faced by all fair-thinking citizens of New Castle and vicinity," said Alex Crawford Hoyt today in voicing his opinion as to the first and most important community duty demanding serious attention early in the new year. "There is no news in the fact that an accumulated deficit, equipment debt and maintenance of the Jameson Memorial hospital must be financed at once, or the key will be turned in the door. We simply cannot think of the latter being permitted to bring discredit on our community

Obligations For All.

"The 20 directors of the hospital have given weeks and months of painstaking attention to the problem that confronts them, yet no director has any greater obligation than any fellow-citizen to worry over the hospital crisis. Directors have given generously of their own money to keep the institution open. They know that if other citizens were to understand the great need every hour of every day and every night throughout the entire year, and could follow through only a few of the cases—if others could see the things the directors and the doctors see so often then there would be no need to stress an appeal for financial support.

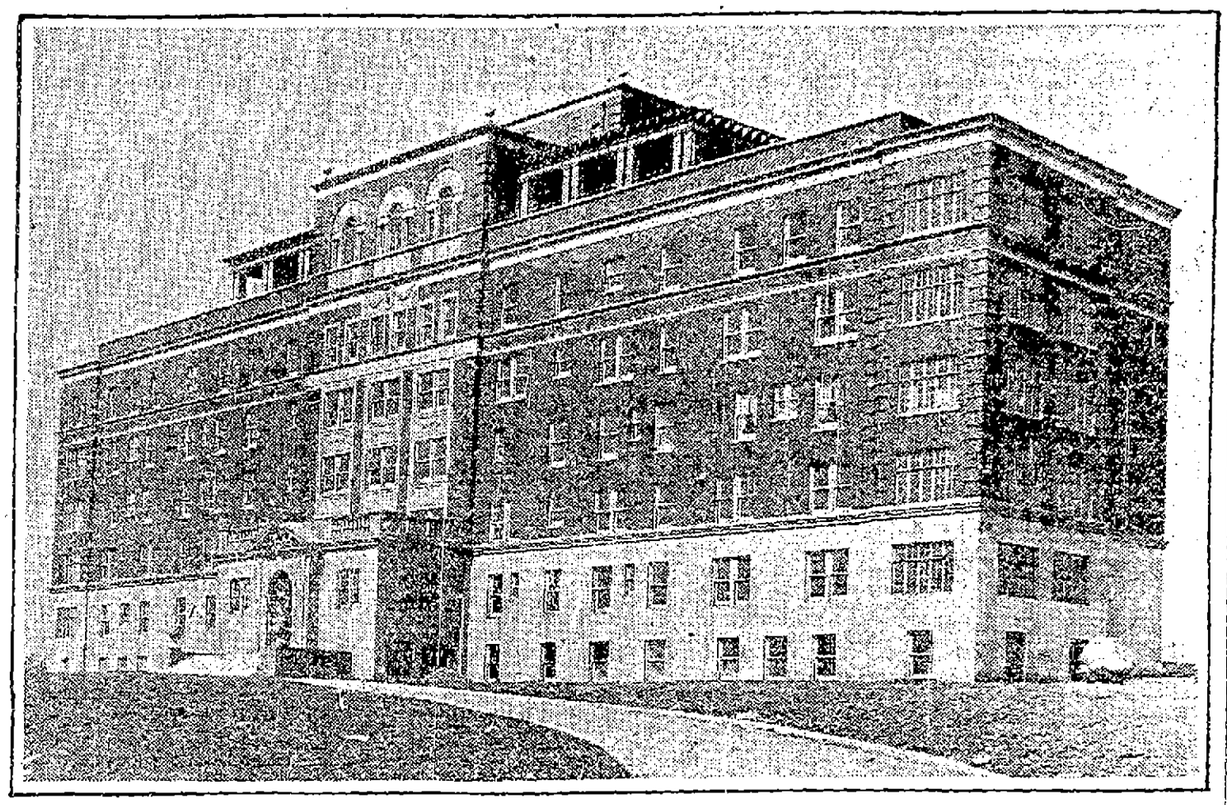
"The difficulty is that many people think a hospital is self-supporting. Throughout the city there are generous, fair-minded men and women always ready to do their share in such matters who never have realized their duty to assist in financing hospital work. They have not given the subject the careful thought it deserves.

You Need Hospital.

"Fundamentally every person, sooner or later, needs good, modern hospital care for himself and his loved ones. Sickness and accident are no respecters of persons. It is frequently and truthfully said that no person knows when he will need the services of a hospital. Taken for granted then that John Blank will need a hospital, the next question is who should provide the hospital that will stand ready to care for him in his hour of serious illness or accident. He knows and we all know that not all of the money of the Rockefellers could provide ambulances, operating rooms, X-rays, laboratories, trained nurses, beds, etc., on an hour's notice.

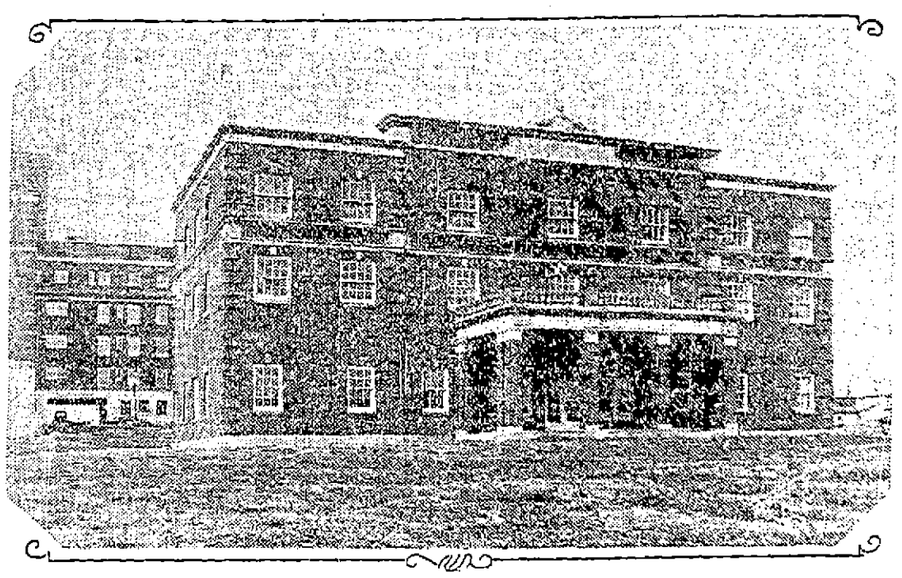
"Since nobody owes John Blank hospitalization, any more than anybody owes him a house to live in or food, or clothing—since it is manifestly up to him to provide these things for himself; and since nobody can afford to provide his own private hospital it is obviously the sensible thing to provide a community, cooperative hospital.

Jameson Memorial Hospital



The doors you see pictured here, in the picture of the hospital, are open. They have been open to the people since the day this gift of David Jameson was turned over to the citizens of this community. Those doors should never close. They will not close if every citizen does his share in lifting the deficit of $60,000 that has cast a black shadow over the hospital. Unless the deficit is lifted the doors must be closed. Such a catastrophe is unthinkable. Lift the deficit and the hospital will be enabled to function properly. Fail to do so and the Jameson Memorial hospital will be just a building.

Nurses' Home



One of the important features of a good hospital is the training school for nurses. And back of that training school must be a home for the nurses where they can live and study. The Nurses home joining the Jameson Memorial hospital is in keeping with the hospital itself. The home is the gift of Mrs. David Jameson, widow of the donor of the hospital, and their daughter Mrs. Helen Jameson McCreery. Here the young women who have dedicated their lives to the mission of ministering to the sick live during their training period.

Hospital Campaign Once In A Lifetime

Few cities in the United States have as unique a record in the matter of hospital fund campaigns as does New Castle. Never in the history of the city has there been a campaign for the purpose of erecting a hospital. As citizens we have been the recipients of some wonderful philanthropies.

The present campaign for $60,000 is the first campaign ever staged for this hospital. It will likely be the last for if this fund is contributed, then the hospital will be on a firm financial basis and can be operated efficiently.

Hence this campaign is "Once In A Lifetime". The payments can be spread over a period of ten months. It is our chance to pay once and for all, the premium on the finest health insurance we have. "Once In A Lifetime". Make your contribution with that idea in mind.

Meeting Tonight Opens Campaign To Clear Deficit

TEN DIVISIONS TO WAGE DRIVE

Business And Professional Life Represented In Groups Backing Campaign

Faced with the tragedy of the doors of the Jameson Memorial Hospital closing unless sufficient money is raised to clear off the deficit, a group of determined citizens will meet tonight in the Castleton for the opening of the campaign for the $60,000 necessary to wipe the hospital slate clean. At the meeting will be business and professional men, merchants and laboring men, their minds at one as to the vital necessity of putting this campaign over.

This is no ordinary campaign that starts tonight in the Castleton; none of the usual ballyho of fund raising drive attends it. It is serious business, for upon the success or failure of it depends whether or not the Jameson Memorial Hospital continues to minister to the sick and needy, or closes its doors. Hospitals cannot be operated upon good will and resolutions, they take money and the time has arrived when the citizens of New Castle and Lawrence County must say whether or not they want this hospital to continue.

Will Clear Debt

The $60,000 that is being asked for will clear the Jameson Memorial Hospital of a deficit that has been hanging over it for some time. There is nothing unusual about such a deficit. It has been occasioned by the fitting of the hospital with modern equipment. Like a new house that must be fitted with furniture, the Jameson Memorial Hospital had to be fitted with equipment and because it is intricate, because it is the best that money could procure, the debt for it had to be incurred.

With the deficit lifted the hospital will be placed upon a firm financial basis, its credit will be re-

E. & A. Safety Drive Reduces Injuries Here

Pennsy's Local Workers Top Central Region In 1931 Contest

LOOK TO BETTER RECORD FOR '32

A more intensive campaign among shopmen, trainmen, yard workers and office folk impress the vital importance of safety first, and a stricter compliance on the part of every employee to the safety practices now in use, led the Erie and Ashtabula division of the Pennsylvania railroad to newer heights last year in the safety first competition which the system sponsors.

Second in Class B for the entire Pennsylvania system, the E. and A. stepped up in front of every other division in the Central region territory. Only the Atlantic division outscored it for system honors.

Not One Fatality

During 1931 there was not one accidental death on the entire division, although in 1930 there were two and in 1929, three.

Reportable I. C. C. cases, denoting the more serious of accidents were reduced from 20 in 1930 to 10 during 1931. The Interstate Commerce Commission hears of each reportable case, one that disables an employee for over three days.

Taking in everything, counting the smallest accident where a hand may have been scratched, and the most serious injury, the E. and A. records revealed 167 during the past year as compared with 351 in 1930. The drop was greater than 50 per cent.

The E. & A. station department set up a perfect safety record for the second consecutive year, but wins no banner because the station departments of two other larger divisions, the Renova and the Logansport, also kept their accident slates clean.

Best among 16 other divisions, the maintenance-of-equipment department set up a record of .8 injuries per million-man-hours. For eleven months of the year the train service department had a percentage of 4.26 injuries per million-man-hours. The engine service department placed third among others, its percentage being 1.81 injuries per million-man-hours.

For its high standing on the Central region, the E. & A. division set up a score of 2.08 percent, with the Renovo division second with a percentage of 3.16 injuries per million-man-hours.

Education Pushed

"We try to correct bad practices before harm results" Safety Agent L. C. Gleason, who announced the year's report, said. "The men have shown a fine attitude toward safety and a fine willingness to live up to every safety rule."

To impress the safety message more indelibly on the men, divisional and district safety meetings are held; the shop groups listen to daily safety talks by some of their own men or superiors, and in all branches of the service, train service, engine service or in the clerical end, the safety first obligations are held high.

Superintendent H. T. Frushour commented that the past year's records attests to the fine attitude toward safety first prevalent all over the division.

YOUTHFUL "ROBBER GANG" ROUNDED UP

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 21—Ten Washington youths, ranging from 12 to 17 years of age, all members of prominent families, pleaded guilty in criminal court here today to 30 charges of burglary, felonious breaking and entry and larceny. All admitted membership in a "gang" which had terrorized the fashionable residence district of East Washington for more than a year.

Judges Erwin Cummins and Howard W. Hughes, sitting together concurred in sending nine of the boys to the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza and the tenth to the State Industrial School at Oakdale.

Pulchritude and the Peke

Here's an instance where the term "lucky dog" is more truth than poetry. The favored canine in such an enviable situation is Milsi, blue-blood Pekinese, which was one of the doggy aristocrats exhibited at the annual show of the American Pekinese Club at New York recently. Mrs. Charles Schneider, of Forest Hills, L. I., is the charming owner. Proceeds of the show were donated to the Women's League for Animals.

Pittsburgh Boy Fatally Injured In Digging Coal

Landslide Buries Youngster As He Digs Coal For Mother, Dies In Hospital

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—Benjamin Bromley, 15, who set out to dig coal so that his mother "could have money to buy other things" was dead today.

Accompanied by his brother, Herman, 13, Ben went to an abandoned coal mine here. While Ben "mined" the coal, Herman packed it into baskets. After a short time, according to Herman, Ben complained his legs were caught in the earth. Then Ben cried out and Herman made frantic efforts to free him.

Paul Dutine, 13, ran to Herman's aid and together they began to dig the boy out. While they worked, the earth began to slide and Ben was completely covered.

Police were called and Ben was still alive when he was extricated. For an hour police worked with an inhalator after the boy's head was uncovered, while neighbors removed the earth from the rest of the boy's body.

Despite efforts to revive him, Ben died a short time later in Southside Hospital.

BLOSSOMS BLOOM ON BURNING BUSH

A "Burning Bush" in the front yard of the William J. Dunn home in Muddy Creek township on Tuesday, January 19, thumbed its nose at Jack Frost who has been standing hesitant behind the scenes took the stage by storm and certainly has gone over big with the spectators.

The entire bush, and it is a large one, came into full bloom on Tuesday and has been attracting wide attention. Burning Bush in January is almost unheard of—a freak of nature that not many people in this part of the country see in a life time.

Ira L. Moore, a mail carrier, on Wednesday brought to The News several flowers from the bush. The flowers are well developed and could not have been prettier if they had opened in July.

Helen Walsh Will Talk With Crowley Last Time Today

Warden Lawes Will Not Oppose Doomed Slayer Seeing His Sweetheart

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Doomed to die in Sing Sing tonight, Francis ("two-gun") Crowley will be granted his final wish, that he be allowed to ses his former sweetheart, Helen Walsh, just once, before he shuffles "the last mile" to his death in the electric chair.

At first Warden Lewis E. Lawes, a student of criminology and one of America's foremost penologists, said no, even though Helen had obtained an order from a supreme court justice that she should be allowed to see the prisoner.

The warden had been ordered to appear in supreme court in Brooklyn to show why he should not permit Miss Walsh and Crowley to see each other for the last time.

But when the court order was served on Warden Lawes, who was in bed this morning from the effects of a fall, he said he would not oppose it.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—Heroic service medals will be awarded to two Central Region employes of the Pennsylvania railroad at a meeting of the board of directors soon to be held in Philadelphia, it was announced today.

The two employes, to be rewarded for heroic action in the face of grave personal danger, are Francis C. Kibbe, Buffalo division car inspector, of Oil City, and Glen V. Hartzell, Pittsburgh division freight conductor, of Cresson.

Kibbe's award will be presented in recognition of his bravery in rescuing Robert Vistin, 5, after the boy had fallen into icy water at Franklin last March 27.

Hartzell will receive his reward for leaping from the rear platform of his train, as it backed around a curve, to snatch up a small child sitting on the track ahead.

Hospital Is Vital Need To Every One In Entire District

"Emergencies are something over which we have no control. All of us would like to go through life free from accident, from disease, from epidemics. If by some alchemy we could devise some lotion or machine that would keep us free from these things, hospitals would be unnecessary."

Unfortunately all of us are open to both accident and disease. Out of a clear sky the bolt strikes and overnight we are stricken with appendicitis, with pneumonia, or an automobile accident lays us low."

"When these things come our first thought is a hospital. Perhaps we never used it before, perhaps we have never contributed to its maintenance, but when we need the hospital we need it badly and we want to know that it is equipped and manned to care for our emergency."

"As citizens we have certain responsibilities which are personal and certain ones that are community in nature. It is a man's personal responsibility that he provide food and shelter for himself and family. It is a community responsibility that he sees to it that his city is governed well, that his streets are lighted and that his city has proper hospitalization facilities."

"No hospital can function properly saddled with a heavy deficit. No citizen wants a hospital that does not function properly. Hence it becomes the duty of every citizen to see to it that the Jameson Memorial Hospital has its burden of debt lifted so that we can expect efficient service when accident or disease strikes us or our families."

"I believe in the Jameson Memorial Hospital and I believe that my fellow townsmen believe in it also. The debt that overshadows the hospital can be lifted and I am confident that it will be lifted. It is a community duty that none of us can honestly shirk."

Every Citizen Has Personal Obligation In Hospital Campaign

Louis B. Round, vice president and general manager of the Pennsylvania Power company can hardly be charged with any lack of civic interest in his home town. President of the Rotary Club, one of the members of the Municipal Golf Committee, councilman for the Lawrence County Boy Scouts, chairman of the Civilian Sponsor Committee for Troop F, these and other pieces of work speak for themselves. Hence he is in a position to discuss the place hospitalization has in a community. Touching upon the Jameson Memorial hospital campaign today Mr. Round said:

"As a citizen I have certain responsibilities which I cannot dodge, some of them legal in their nature, others of them moral and civic. I must pay taxes, serve on juries, obey the laws. These are mandatory. Among the moral responsibilities can be listed supporting a church, helping in civic endeavors, aiding the needy and to all of these can be added a duty which I owe myself and my neighbor, that of seeing that we have competent hospitalization."

"I might never need a policeman to protect me or my property but if I did I would want to know he was where I could get him. I might never need a hospital but I want to know that there is one near if I do. Hence it devolves upon me, as a citizen, to lend my aid in seeing that the Jameson Memorial hospital is enabled to continue. If it closes it may mean the difference between life and death for me or my family. If it closes, you and I might need it urgently the day after it closes.

"It is our insurance against accident and disease, it is our guarantee that if such misfortune befalls us, the doors of the Jameson Memorial hospital are open 24 hours a day, standing ready as a Haven of Health for all of us.

"It is your duty, it is my duty, to see that these doors remain open."

Jameson Hospital Is Being Conducted On Sound Principles

In the list of civic workers of the city W. F. Moody's name has usually been found as one of the active members. Community Chest, Kiwanis Club, these and a number of other activities have made heavy demands upon his time. In addition, he is a director of the Jameson Memorial Hospital and as a business man is interested in knowing that the hospital is conducted along business lines.

It has taken us a little time to put the hospital upon a thorough going business basis" said Mr. Moody, "for the very good reason that there was no comparison between the new hospital and the old Shenango Valley. Rules of procedure which were found all right in the Shenango Valley simply wouldn't fit at the Jameson because of its increased size and equipment."

"During this time there has been a deficit accumulating but with the work of the hospital on a business basis as it now is, the future should not hold any deficits save for a small operating deficit which is to be expected in any good hospital. The big thing that is needed now is to lift the deficit of $60,000 and give the Jameson Memorial Hospital a chance to function properly.

"Under the system now in vogue in the Jameson Memorial Hospital we know where every dollar goes and how much of it goes for the various departments. Of the dollar paid by a patient, .0835 percent goes for administration, .0673 for housekeeping, .0295 for laundry, .2590 for dietary, .1402 for plant operation, fuel, power etc., .01 for real estate repairs, .021 for equipment repairs, .0061 for rent and insurance, .1560 for nursing, .023 for pharmacy, .038 for medical and surgical supplies, .0254 for anesthesia, .0717 for laboratory, .0392 for X-Ray, .0124 for physical therapy.

"The Jameson Memorial Hospital is being conducted on sound business principles by people who are trained and skilled in their work. Remove the $60,000 deficit and they will have a chance to demonstrate just how efficient the hospital can be."

Must Take $60,000 Debt Off Hospital For Best Service

Emergencies are nothing new to Dr. Howard C. Harper. Not only the emergencies of civil life but the emergencies of the battle field, and the field hospital. Three times his country has called him to minister to her fighting men and three times he answered the call with credit to the service and to his family. In the Spanish-American War he was a surgeon, in the Mexican Border trouble he had charge of the medical detachment that accompanied Troop F, and in the World War he was a major in charge of field hospitals directly back of the front line trenches.

Knowing the stress and strain of military medicine and surgery has given him a keener insight into the need for proper hospitalization in time of peace. He believed in efficient attention for wounded soldiers, he believes equally as firmly in the need for efficient hospital service for the civilian. And to quote Dr. Harper, "no hospital can function properly with a load of debt overshadowing its every corner."

"The men of New Castle and Lawrence County who are engaged in the practice of medicine and surgery know the value of a good hospital. It means proper facilities for their patients, it means better care, it means a better chance for recovery."

"Here in New Castle we have a hospital that ranks with the best in the country, the Jameson Memorial Hospital. It is a proper setting for the skill of Lawrence County physicians and surgeons. Given a chance to live it will return to the people of this community many times its cost in health and strong bodies."

"With $60,000 debt on it the Jameson Memorial Hospital is not getting a fair chance. Take that debt off and it will be able to keep abreast of the constantly increasing standards of good hospitals, it will be able to really function in a worth while way."

"We did everything humanly possible to keep our military hospitals up to the highest level possible. Surely we will not do less for a peace time hospital."

Hospital Obligation Is To All People Of This Entire District

Among his many other civic duties, Councilman Louis G. Genkinger is interested in proper hospitalization for the people of his city. Concerning the Jameson Memorial Hospital Mr. Genkinger said today:

"In the first two years of its operation, Jameson Memorial Hospital has established itself among the first rank of hospitals in the United States. Of 5,597 general hospitals in the United States, 664 have the officially recognized qualifications equal to those of Jameson Memorial Hospital. To be sure many of these 664 top-qualified hospitals are larger and more elaborately equippped and better manned, but none has better official endorsement. Jameson Memorial Hospital is a part of the 12 per cent top-level of cream of hospitals among the 5,597 general hospitals of the United States. As Directors of the Jameson Memorial Hospital, we know this. Our obligation in administration of our hospital is to all the people who are served by that hospital. We want all our people to know just as much about their hospital as we know. We know that we have a magnificent hospital as measured and approved in terms of quality of modern hospital care to all its patients.

"We have it; what shall we do with it? We have dedicated Jameson Memorial Hospital to the ideal proposition that in care of the sick and injured the need of the patient shall not be determined by counting the contents of his pocketbook. The needs of the patient, sick or injured and in hospital, are considerations technical and having to do with the application of medical science and clinical experience. We lay people are not competent to determine these needs. We must put ourselves in the hands of our doctors and let them determine our needs.

"The fulfillment of these needs when we are sick and injured is a matter wholly out of our hands also, and a function vested in our doctors and our hospital. Here, unhappily, economics enters the scene. In the fulfillment of our needs, money consideration enters. So far as our hospital is concerned, it is dedicated to the ideal proposition that in all events the needs must be satisfied. The economics of satisfaction of need must stand aside. Inevitably, this builds deficit—a related but detached problem of social economics."

First Two Years Are Difficult Time For New Hospital

For many, many years Marcus Feuchtwanger has been identified with the civic life of New Castle. Long before the war he was active in civic work, during the war he carried a heavy load of the chest-raising funds, and the various other activities conducted as the result of the war. Since the war his interest has not flagged and one of his interests at the present time is the Jameson Memorial hospital, of which he is a director.

"This thing we call a deficit isn't such a bogey when we sit down and analyze its causes," said Mr. Feuchtwanger. "It is present because the management of the hospital refused to let the hospital retrograde to the level of just an ordinary one. The men and women back of it were and are determined to keep it up to the highest standard of American hospitalization, for we believe that New Castle and Lawrence county citizens are entitled to the very best the medical world offers.

"Equipping a new hospital is a task requiring large sums of money. Nor is this cost ended when the doors of the hospital are opened. The first two years are the trying years and the Jameson Memorial hospital is emerging from its first two years with a $60,000 deficit. Clear this off and the future seems reasonably certain to care for itself.

"Give the hospital enough money to wipe out this deficit and we guarantee ourselves an institution where patients are certain of proper care in sickness. This care is guaranteed to every patient, whether he be a person of wealth or a charity patient. In the Jameson Memorial hospital a patient is a challenge to the skill of the doctors and the hospital authorities. His financial rating or his social prestige means nothing when sickness enters. Lawyers tell us that before the law all persons are equal. So it is in the Jameson Memorial hospital.

"We cannot afford to fall in the campaign for $60,000 to raise the deficit from the hospital. Disease and accident pick their own times to come. When they do come we must be ready. The Jameson Memorial hospital must be kept open and ready to cope with the enemies of mankind."

Free Care Of Sick Is One Of Reasons For Hospital Deficit

That a hospital stands a deficit upon service rendered for which the state grants a subsidy was brought out today by Charles H. Johnson, Jr., vice president of the Jameson Memorial hospital board of directors. Mr. Johnson said:

"Free care of the indigent sick is one of the reasons why hospitals cannot be operated except at a deficit. There is an erroneous idea abroad that the state pays for all charity patients admitted to the Jameson Memorial hospital. Not only is this untrue but it is a fact that for every patient for which the state pays any money, there is a deficit of approximately $1.40 per day."

The reason for this is obvious when the facts are known. The state subsidy to the Jameson Memorial hospital for the present biennium is $28,000 which means $14,000 per year. Reduced to patient days this means that the state will pay three dollars per day for 13 patients and no more. If there are more free patients in the hospital, the hospital stands the entire cost.

The per patient day cost of the Jameson Memorial hospital is $4.40. This means that when the state pays the hospital three dollars for a patient's care the hospital has a deficit of $1.40 per day. While this is unfortunate yet it is a wise provision of the state for were it to pay the full cost of charity patients the way would be open for dishonesty.

No matter how many charity patients are admitted to the Jameson Memorial hospital the state pays but three dollars per day for 13 of them, with the hospital standing the deficit of $1.40 on the 13, and the entire deficit on the remainder of the charity patients.

CHARLES H. JOHNSON, Jr.

Every hospital must do a certain amount of charitable work and it is to the credit of the Jameson Memorial hospital that much of its deficit can be charged to this sort of thing. Hence, if we are to maintain the Jameson Memorial hospital, funds must come from those able to pay, to wipe out the deficit.

New Castle's Problem On Jameson Hospital Same As Other Cities

"The fifth largest industry in America is hospitals. 'Almost $4,000,000,000 are invested in building and equipment. By way of comparison this overshadows investments in automobile manufacture, the production of petroleum, etc. Nearly 600,000 people are employed in caring for approximately 12,000,000 patients each year.'

"Some of these hospitals are privately owned and as such only care for patients able to pay profit-making hospital charges. A number are built and maintained by taxes. These are mostly for city, county, state and other charity cases. The great majority of the approximately 8,000 hospitals in the United States are general, community hospitals that are built by the gifts of the people; serving rich and poor, black and white alike, giving a great deal of free care to those who are unable to pay anything; charge only part-pay for those who are unable to pay fully, that full rates for those who are able to pay their way without asking other citizens to pay for them.

"The Jameson Memorial Hospital is a community, general hospital more modern and better equipped than the average and through Mr. Jameson's magnificent generosity has been given to us without cost.

"Since it has been opened we have incurred a $60,000 debt for equipment and maintainence. Other communities everywhere raise funds to meet such hospital obligations. Most of the 513 community chests throughout the country supply funds to makeup hospital operating deficits each year. We in New Castle face a hospital problem that is little or no different at all from problems of other cities. The only condition that is different from the average is very much in New Castle's favor it is the people of our city escaped having to provide their own hospital buildings, and because of this item should be willing and happy to provide the comparatively small amount now required to put the hospital into a condition that will permit it to render best of service to New Castle's sick and injured.

ATTORNEY JOHN P. LOCKHART

"Not all of the people in the great majority of cities throughout the United States are mistaken when they give generously for local hospital purposes. New Castle people should and will do the same."

Hospitals Mean Health Insurance

You may have paid fire insurance for twenty years and never have had a fire. You may have paid accident insurance and never had an accident.

But you don't cancel your policies.

You may never have had any use for a hospital. If you haven't you are fortunate. Can you say you never will need a hospital? Do you know when you may need one?

Don't cancel your health insurance, for that is just what the Jameson Memorial Hospital means to you. Keep the doors open and maintain your insurance.

Hospitals Are Great Factor In Recovery Of Many Patients

To the football fan who has followed the game for some time it does'nt seem so long since "Bill" Cleland was playing the line for Westminster college. To the soldier it doesn't seem so long since Major W. D. Cleland came back from France where he had been located near another line, the front line of battle. Football and soldiering have both had their day in his life but the spirit that carried him towards the goal posts and through the welter of blood in field hospitals still characterizes him in his practice of medicine and surgery. In that practice he utilizes the hospitals and said today of the Jameson Memorial hospital:

"Physicians and surgeons can go so far in their work of restoring people to health and strength. Beyond that point Nature must be relied upon, but proper care is an ally which Nature must have in her work."

"It is possible to treat people in their homes of course, but it is so much more efficient, so much better to put them in a hospital where they get skilled care twenty-four hours of the day. In the old days operations were performed in homes, sometimes by the light of an oil lamp under conditions that were far from sterile. Today, thanks to the Jameson Memorial hospital we can operate under the most favorable conditions. Sterility in the operating room, modern implements, proper lighting, and post-operative care in the hospital rooms that mean so much to the patients' recovery.

"A patient recovers more quickly and more certainly in a hospital than he possibly could at home. It will be successful.

the unthinking it might seem contradictory that a physician should want his patient to recover quickly but it is so. They want for their patients the very best care possible and this can be obtained only in a hospital.

"Keeping the Jameson Memorial hospital open means so much to this community that to suggest that it must close because of a deficit of $60,000 is to suggest that the people of New Castle and Lawrence county do not want proper care during sickness. They do want it and I feel confident the campaign for funds in this community responsibility, to

James M. Smith, president of the Shenango Pottery Company is interested in something more than making fine chinaware. One of the many things in New Castle in which he believes thoroughly is the Jameson Memorial Hospital. Not so much from a sentimental viewpoint as from the actual worth of the institution to this community. Commenting upon the hospital and its needs he said:

"From the point of capital expense and from the standpoint of the value of the product it turns out, hospitals rank among the really large industries of America today. Here in New Castle we have a hospital that ranks with the best in America, a hospital efficiently equipped, capably manned, ready twenty-four hours of the day to serve us."

"We cannot measure the product of a good hospital in dollars and cents. How much a human life is worth is something we have not yet reduced to cold financial calculations. How much human happiness is worth cannot be measured by any yard stick of the business world."

"There is a way in which we can express our appreciation of the work of the Jameson Memorial hospital in a tangible, practical way and that is to aid in lifting the load of debt which at present looms as the possible key that will close the doors of this splendid institution. That way is for everyone to share give according to his own abilities, to give a little of what we think this hospital is worth."

"New Castle cannot afford to see the Jameson Memorial hospital close its doors. Such a thing is unthinkable. It cannot and must not happen. Sixty thousand dollars is a sizable sum of money, considered by itself, but placed over against the health and happiness of this entire community it loses some of its size and becomes just an obstacle which must be removed."

Believes In Active Support Of Jameson Memorial Hospital

Not alone does H. B. Richards, manager of the New Castle Water Company believe in the Jameson Memorial Hospital campaign enough to subscribe but he is a divisional chairman in the campaign. With him there can be no such thing as passive interest or moral support. He believes in active support of any cause in which he believes and the cause of the Jameson Memorial Hospital is one in which he believes thoroughly.

"A citizen is a stockholder in his community" said Mr. Richards today, "and as a stockholder he is entitled to know how his organization or any part of it is going. In the case of the Jameson Memorial Hospital, not all of us have known in the past that it needed money. We didn't know that a small group of men and women, the directors of the hospital had dug down into their own pockets before for money to carry the work on."

"They believed that they might be able to get by without asking the rest of us for a little but now they realize that the problem is one that should be shared by the rest of us. As a citizen or a stockholder, I believe that the Jameson Memorial Hospital should be supported by a great host of small contributions, rather than a few huge ones."

"Every citizen in this community is a stockholder in the Jameson Memorial Hospital. None of us know just when we may have to call upon the hospital to put forth its best efforts to save us or one of our loved ones. But against that day we have to be on guard. We keep up our fire insurance although we may never have a fire. The Jameson Memorial Hospital is insurance, not against accident or disease, but rather an assurance that if such things come we will be well taken care of."

"You and I are stockholders. Let's take up our share of this piece of work, wipe the debt from the Jameson Memorial Hospital and guarantee the future functioning of the hospital."

Coming Fund Campaign For Jameson Hospital Community Obligation

John H. Lamb who is President of the Citizens National Bank also is Treasurer of the Jameson Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Lamb today said:

"The measure of a community is its attitude toward its community obligations. No person can put his finger on a more urgent, city-wide duty than caring for the immediate financial needs of the Jameson Memorial Hospital. New Castle people will not permit the key to be turned in the door of this fine institution, but somehow many good citizens who usually think straight and right have neglected to give serious consideration to the crisis facing the hospital, and how we face calamity. Maybe it is because we who are most closely connected with the affairs of the Jameson Memorial have not kept the public sufficiently informed as to its needs.

"With the New Year we face a tremendously important task that can be accomplished if we first give it serious, determined attention. It is a call for pleasant, unrestrained cooperation, instead of allowing ourselves to be spoiled by Mr. Jamesons wonderful gift, we should pay as comparatively small accumulated equipment and operation debts and give ourselves the full benefit of the finest hospital serving any city of equal size anywhere. Once we dispose of the $60,000 now embarrassing the hospital we should have no occasion to again make a similar city-wide debt-raising appeal such as we plan for January."

Bridenbaugh Is Displeased With New Castle Five

Local Mentor Makes Statement That Boys Are Getting "Big Headed"

"Showing In Past Three Games Has Not Been Too Good," Coach States

Speaking before several officials and a News representative, Phillip H. Bridenbaugh, head coach of the New Castle high school basketball team. Wednesday morning in the Athletic Association room stated that the players on the present floor quintet are getting "big headed" because they have won five straight games, and he may revise his line-up to correct this situation.

Perhaps the officials made a big mistake in carding Scott high of North Braddock, 1930 state champs for the opening game. The New Castle team led from the start and was defeated in the last 15 seconds when a Scott player let loose a wierd shot which found the rim. Although the local team lost, the feeling was installed into them that they were pretty good.

Meeting the Pitt Freshies team next, another ranked opponent, the local five managed to pull through with a triumph over this highly touted combination. Since then the showing has been "terrible" as Mr. Bridenbaugh states. It has been obvious in the past games that the boys are attempting to "Put on the Ritz" on the floor.

An air of arrogancy appears to prevail among the players, the local coach believes. For instance Tuesday night when the local five battled Youngstown South, an inexperienced five, the New Castle boys were attempting many "grandstand" tricks which do not look nice from the side lines. The result was that New Catle defeated South only by an 18-11 score when the score should have been twice that.

The discussion came about when Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner who is also displeased with the team, suggested arranging to practice more on the George Washington floor where New Castle pays its games. The junior high floor is occupied the majority of afternoons and for this reason the Senior high team is forced to practice on the high school court. Coach Bridenbaugh retaliated with the remark that the whole trouble is not practice but "over confidence."

Coach Bridenbaugh has noticed particularly in the past three games he says that the athletes want to "show off," and this condition will not be tolerated, he says.

The Section Three race is plenty tough with teams like Butler, and Beaver Falls competing. In order for New Castle to be among the W. P. I. A. L. title seekers in the tournament in March, the tossers will have to play much better basketball than has been seen in the past three games.

Panthers Hand Tech Setback

Traditional Rivals At Pittsburgh Play Lopsided Game Wednesday

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—Carnegie Tech's basketball winning streak was at a temporary end today and the credit was given to John Brown, Pitt's gangling center. The score was 33-22.

Brown was given his "big chance" last night when Dr. H. C. Carlson, the Pitt coach, sent him to bat for Russ Ochsenhirt, out with an injured foot.

Brown rolled up 15 points to his credit and stowed the game safely away for Pitt.

At game time, Tech was given a slight edge over Pitt for the traditional court battle. At the end of half, the score was 26 to 6 in Pitt's favor and the Panthers took things easy for the rest of the game.

It will be the night of nights for the Union High gridders. They will be kingpins for the evening. The school will be their's. The boys who brought the championship to Union will eat plenty of good food.

Praise For Boyd

Coach Morgan Boyd will come in for his share of the praise for the championship team. Boyd in his short regime at Union has raised the athletic standard up to the 100 per cent mark. His worth is well recognized. Union was and is fortunate in having a man the caliber of Boyd to direct the destinies of the football and basketball teams.

Union began the season with eight veterans on the football squad The men who formed the nucleus were Davis, Augustyn, Jaworski, Mateja, Sniezek, Dec, Andres and Lannigan. With this squad from the season before Coach Boyd began the hardest schedule that any Union team ever undertook. Only one game was lost that to Youngstown East High, a major class High School team.

Jaworski Leading Scorer

Joe Jaworski was the leading scorer of the team followed by Joe Augustyn and in turn L. Augustyn, Denney, Ammons, Monico and Dec. Union High played fifteen straight games without a defeat, but two ties marred this record in the two years.

Letters and pictures of the squad will be given out by Coach Boyd tonight as his part of the program that will follow the banquet. Coach Robert "Bob" Thorn of Grove City College basketball team and Athletic Director will be the principal speaker. Torn will no doubt have a fine message from the high school boys. Torn's experience dates back many, many years and he knows athletics from a to z. His talk tonight is eagerly awaited by the gridders. Principal Leonard of Union High will act as toastmaster of the ocasion.

Have Excellent Record

In the 1929 season Joe Jaworski was captain of the team and Andrew Eve was manager. In the 1930 season Joe Augustyn was captain of the team and Cecil McConahey was manager. In the past season Walter Sniezek was captain and Francis Davis manager.

In three years Union has won 19 games and lost 6, and tied 2 scoring 455 points against 157 for their opponents.

Fred Lindstrom Signs Contract

Versatile Star Of New York Giants Will Be Shifted To Second Base

OTHER HOLDOUTS MAY SIGN SOON

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—With receipt of the signed contract of Fred Lindstrom, their most versatile star, officials of the New York Giants heaved two sighs of relief today.

Sigh No. 1 was heaved with the comfortitg thought Lindy's acceptance was bound to weaken the morale of the club's holdout colony, headed by Bill Terry, first baseman. The other reason is that Lindstrom, for the second successive year, looms as one of the two key players on the team.

Last year Manager John McGraw made two "noble experiments" in shifting Lindstrom from third to right field and starting an untried rookie, Johnny Vergez, at the hot corner. Both experiments were successful.

Linstrom at Second.

This year Jawn is going to try to put over another parlay. He intends to start Leonard Koenecke, rookie from Indianapolis, in the outfield, and shift Lindstrom from right field to second base.

Hughie Critz, the club's regular second sacker, was hampered last season by an injury to his right shoulder which crippled his throwing arm. Hughie said yesterday at his southern home that he was doubtful as to whether he could regain his former effectiveness, and McGraw himself has just about given up hope on the diminutive star.

Lindy is the tenth member of the club to sign or agree to terms. He is the leader of a certain faction on the club and his desertion of the ranks of the holdouts is likely to exert a powerful psychological influence on Bill Terry, his pal and roommate.

Geo. Washington U. Added To Westminster Grid Card

Titan Football Schedule Is Revised; Nine Games Booked For Fall

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 21.—George Washington University will be played in football by Westminster College in a game October 1, in Washington, D. C., next fall, the athletic council announced last night. This contest, and one with St. Francis to be played at New Wilmington on October 8 fill the Titan card, giving the United Presbyterians a nine-game schedule for the coming season.

Following negotiations with the two new opponents and with Adrian College of Michigan, which had previously been carded tentatively for October 1, a plan was worked out whereby Adrian would not be met next fall and George Washington tendered the Titans the date for a game in the capitol.

Other new opponents on the Titan schedule for this coming fall include St. Bonaventure and Muskingum. Both these colleges will be played away from home. The St. Francis game at home this fall is the first of a two-year arrangement. The Titans will play the Saints at Johnstown in 1933. The Muskingum game at New Concord on November 12 this year is also the first of a two-year series. The Muskingum team will play at New Wilmington in 1933.

The revised schedule, showing nine contests four of which will be played at home, is one of the best ever planned for a Westminster team. The Titans will play in Ohio, New York, District of Columbia, and in Pennsylvania.

Teams on last fall's schedule who do not appear next fall are Adrian, Allegheny, Edinboro, and Juniata. In place of these opponents, George Washington University, St. Francis, Muskingum, and St. Bonaventure have been carded.

Feauture games with district rivals will be Grove City and Geneva away; and Thiel, Slippery Rock, and Waynesburg at home. Bethany and Westminster tried to arrange a date for a contest but open dates would not agree, so the Bisons had to be left off the 1932 card. Bethany will no doubt be included on the 1933 schedule

The revised schedule as announced is: September 24, Slippery Rock at home; October 1, George Washington at Washington, D. C.; October 8, St. Francis at home; October 15, Grove City at Grove City; October 22, St. Bonaventures at Olean, N. Y.; October 29, Waynesburg at home; November 5, Thiel at home; November 12, Muskingum at New Concord; November 19, Geneva at Beaver Falls.

Aims Of Jameson Memorial Hospital Given By Director

For the past two weeks statements have been printed in these columns concerning the Jameson Memorial Hospital. They have come from business and professional men whose interest in the hospital is one of civic pride. Today Dr. Wayne Bissell, Director of the Jameson Memorial Hospital goes into the operation of the hospital. His statement follows.

"In very close connection with the activities and development of service of Jameson Memorial Hospital during the past two years makes me a prejudiced judge. I am therefore denied the privilege of expressing opinions, however well grounded and sincere. Any expression from me must be statement of simple fact.

"Administration of Jameson Memorial Hospital during the past two years has been focused on the single proposition of building the best quality of patient-care we know how to build. It has been our purpose also to make that uniformly high standard care available to all who need it, without regard to social standing, race, color or religion and regardless of the ability of the patient to pay. That this building of high standards in patient-care has been accomplished with signal success is evidenced by the fact that Jameson Memorial Hospital is officially approved by every recognized agency of hospital grading in the United States as well as Pennsylvania. Our hospital takes rank equally, in terms of quality of its service, with the 77 other top rank hospitals of Pennsylvania's total of 311. Thirty nine of these 77 top-rank hospitals are located in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

"No person of our community who has need of our hospital care is ever denied it, contagious diseases, mental disorders and old age disability excepted. We have kept faith with our sick in building high standards of hospital care. The question remains, have we done our work economically? We know we have done our work with unusual economy, but before recording the figures it is necessary to have the facts on operating costs of other similar fully approved general hospitals of other communities. Data are available, month by month and year by year on operation of 91 such hospitals, distributed in 87 communities scattered over 35 states. All these hospitals were going concerns and fully operative since 1928 or before. This is mentioned because Jameson Memorial Hospital was born, so to speak, on the threshold of depression. These 91 hospitals operated during 1930 and 1931 at an average cost of $5.80 for each patient each day. This cost did not include depreciation or capital expense for permanent improvements and equipment. During the same period (1930-31) the average cost in Jameson Memorial Hospital was $4.93, 83 cents lower per day per patient. These 91 hospitals, for the same period, averaged 73 cents loss per day in the care of each patient. This loss in Jameson Memorial Hospital was the same, 73 cents. This 73 cents average loss per day per patient for each of the 91 established hospitals, as well as our own new hospital, represents the average difference between the cost of giving each patient what he needs and the money received from all sources for the needed care given. In the aggregate, the loss for the 91 hospitals was more than $6,000,000.00, for 1930 and 1931.

"Jameson Memorial Hospital has had another expense during its first two years, the expense of equipment and facility necessary to building the high standard internal mechanism of approved quality of patient care. This expense has amounted to 62 cents for each patient each day during 1930 and nine months of 1931. But even if this 62 cents is added to the operating cost of $4.93, the aggregate of $5.55 is less than average operating cost of the 91 hospitals ($5.80).

"In very large measure the load of our hospital deficit has been carried by Directors and their friends for over two years. The load has become too heavy, but the major expense is over. The outlook is bright. A voluntary adjustment of wages and salaries by hospital personnel, effective October 1, 1931, amounted to a reduction of 80 cents a day in average cost of care of each patient. The operating budget is practically balanced.

"The public is now asked to help, just as is every other community public enjoying the protection of a fully approved hospital. Jameson Memorial Hospital has cost the general public of New Castle, exactly nothing. The people, all who are able, are asked to contribute to the fund being raised. The sum asked for is less than 6 percent on the cost of the property. Whether we go over the top or close the hospital is up to every one of us, vitally important business of each and every one of us.

Jameson Hospital Board Of Directors Highly Commended

Dr. Loyal W. Wilson this morning in speaking of the character of representation on the board of the Jameson Memorial hospital said:

"The hospital is managed by a board of directors composed of well known men and women all of whom are respected for their business ability. These directors have been New Castle residents for many years, many of them are members of old established New Castle families and naturally are well acquainted with local conditions. They give liberally of their time and in the past have given liberally of their money to make up hospital deficits. It is needless to say that no one of the directors of the hospital receives a cent of remuneration for the time he devotes to hospital affairs. Each renders the service wholly gratuitously, being happy to serve such a worthy cause.

"We know that they are the type of men and women who give a public trust much of their time and careful attention. And we also believe that any mistakes that have been made will be corrected by our new board.

"Any private business in New Castle that could boast of a board of

established and it will be able to operate as a modern disease fighting institution should. Once the deficit is lifted, the only future deficit that will accrue will be that common to all general hospitals, a small annual operating deficit which the directors feel can be met without any such campaign as the one just starting.

The campaign opening tonight is headed by Fred L. Reutz, and associated with him are outstanding citizens of this community. Not a one but realizes that this is not a propitious time to raise funds, and not a one but realizes that because of this fact they must work the harder to accomplish the aim of the campaign.

Ten Divisions

There are ten general divisions listed in the arrangement of the campaign. They are, Automobile, Financial, General, Industry, Mercantile, Official, Organizations, Public Service, Professional, and Real Estate and Construction. Each division is headed by a chairman, and the various subdivisions under each general division is headed by a vice chairman. Each vice chairman has his group of workers and in this manner every phase of the business and professional life of the city will be canvassed.

In order to make it possible for many people to contribute the pledges will be spread over a period of ten months, the pledge to designate just when he wishes to make his payments.

Tonight is the opening of the campaign. The decision as to the future of the Jameson Memorial Hospital lies squarely with the people of this community. The workers who will assemble in the Castleton tonight are confident of the outcome and are backing their confidence with their own personal pledges and a lot of hard work.

They're adopting the five-day week for foreign cabinets—five days and out.—The Omaha Evening World-Herald.

WOMAN IS TAKEN TO ELLWOOD HOSPITAL

State Highway patrolmen are conducting an investigation into the case of Miss Annie Mesko, aged about 18, who was found unconscious lying along the highway near Ellport at 7:30 p. m. last night. Ellwood City hospital attaches said today the young woman had recovered consciousness.

According to Patrolman Stoopes, the girl was found lying two feet off the improved highway. She was found by Irma Horvath, R. D. 3, Ellwood City, and Jennie Polovina, Ellport. However, only one small red mark was found and that was on her hand.

When the girl became conscious today she is reported to have said the last she remembered was seeing "glaring headlights coming toward her". Corporal Lawton, in charge of the New Castle station, said today Patrolman Stoopes would investigate the case further today.

League Leaders Have Hard Games

Specialty And Hot Mills Win In Games Last Night

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 21.—Both of the league leaders had tough going in their games at the Shelby clubhouse last night. The Specialty, who hold second place in the Shelby League, just managed to nose out the Office passers, 37-33, and the Hot Mills broke a deadlock in the third quarter to defeat the Mechanicals, 23-17.

Incidentally, the Specialty was minus the services of two of its regulars and the Hot Mills one. Ben Chambers of the latter team received a severe injury to his arm in the second quarter and was unable to finish the game.

In the first game it appeared that the ex-champs, Specialty, were going to have easy going. Boone found it to be a great day for him, having acquired at the close of the games 11 baskets. Seven of these were obtained in the first half. Patterson and Sumner also scored in this period. The Office were trailing behind a 13-6 count at the end of the initial period.

The ex-champs continued their wild race in the second quarter. They held their opponents in check while they managed to roll up a safe score. The Office was outscored, 12-5, in this period, which made the standing 25-11 for the Specialty.

Fans received a surprise in the next quarter when the Office began to reverse the situation. A sudden spurt twice placed them in front. The work of Joe Rielley was the feature of this period. Januzzi and Alexander aided their cause extensively. The escore at the end of the third quarter was 31-28 for the Specialty. The final chapter was a thriller. The lead exchanged hands several times and at one time it appeared that the Office was safe behind a five-point lead. But the Specialty rallied in the last three minutes to wipe off their deficit and stepped in front, which place they held to the end of the game. The final score was 37-33 for the Specialty.

The Mechanicals managed to keep the Hot Mills guessing for the first two quarters in the second game, but weakened in the final stanza to drop the game. They started off fast and scored early. The champions were kept in check until the final stanza. The scoore was 8-6 for the Mechanicals at the end of the first quarter. Matters began to get more interesting in the second quarter, as the Hot Mills strove to get in front. They got within one point of their opponent's lead to make the score 10-9 at the half. Ferrucci got the basket for the Mechanicals and Ursu and Friedhoff three points for the Hot Mills.

The third quarter became more complicated as each team became more desperate to obtain a lead. The Mechanicals were outscored, 5-4, in this period, which made the game deadlocked at 14-all at the close. The champions went on a spree in the final chapter to easily win the game. They accumulated nine points to two for their opponents. Clyde, Ursu and Fitzgerald led the attack. The final score was 23-16 for the Hot Mills. They only need one more victory to insure their place as champions of the first half. Two defeats would give them a tie with the Specialty, providing the latter wins its remaining games. It is almost a certainty that the Hot Mills will win their position. They are favored to whip the Office next Saturday, which would place them out of danger.

The line-up:

First Game

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Child Makes Plea For Little Brother

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

"Dear Doctor Myers: I am writing in regards to my little brother who is ten years old. He is dreadfully under weight for one thing. But the main thing that I'm writing about is his behavior and attitude toward his parents, sisters and brothers. To me he seems to have an extremely nervous system. He never can sit still for five minutes at a time. He will deliberately annoy others, doing things which he knows he should not do. He's so frightened at the least little noise and of the dark. He cries easily and is so jumpy.

"I've tried to get my parents to take him to a doctor, but they insist there is nothing the matter with him except that he is naturally mean. He gets so many lickings for things the other children do. Just because he acts this way I supose my parents think he does all of the mean things. I'd like to have your advice on this."

Answer: Your letter has touched me, and so many of my readers will share my sympathy with you and with your suffering little brother. What makes it such a tragedy is that your parents are doubtless wholly unaware of the harm they are doing. I have a notion they are as conscientous about the matter as you are. They merely see the problem differently. Rather, they entirely fail to see the problem as it is.

In the first place you doubtless know enough about human nature to realize that it is too much to expect your parents to take advice from you, their child, no matter how good that advice may be. Since you seem to have a good insight into the case maybe you might quietly persuade some older person whom your parents respect, to try to change their point of view toward your brother, and to take him at once to a medical specialist for advice.

Some such a friend might persuade your parents to read this column regularly, in which many aspects of your brother's problems are discussed.

By such means they might be induced to borrow from the library a copy of my book, "The Modern Parent," or my "Building Personality in Children," in which are a number of concrete suggestions. Some one might, moreover, persuade them to substitute other punishments for whipping and to reduce the punishment by playing up the child's successes; making him feel a more worthy member of the family.

My heart goes out to that lad as I know yours does, too. But keep in mind that you want to get results. It is possible that the more you say to your parents by way of criticism the more severe they will grow. It's the way of human nature's self-defense. I do hope some one may lead your parents to understand your little brother better and show them how to guide him more happily.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Marginalia of a Madhattanite:

That little "Vanities" girl's remark keeps bobbing back to mind: "Earl's given me a break at last. Haven't you heard? He's promoting me from the back row to be one of the nudes in the first act finale! I always knew I'd click if I kept at it!" . . . At a party the other night the napkins were a pale golden hue and each had embroidered on it in large script: Bacardi. . . . I can't figure out why the burlesk wheels hire those hefty and battle-scarred chorusine when plenty of lovely young things are looking for back-row jobs just now. . . From four hundred to two thousand job-seekers respond whenever a night club or new show sends out a call. . . .

These times are bringing out unsuspected versatility in practitioners of the arts. . . MacClelland Barclay, whose action-filled pretty-girl illustrations you've admired, has turned to sculpture and found it immensely profitable, transmuting his clean line to bronze ash trays. . . And John Held, Jr., has taken up fiction, now that his flaming youth cartoons have not the novelty they held for collegites ten years ago. . . Russell Patterson is doing "straight" illustration for the magazines, recalling the fact that he exhibited his oils brilliantly in Paris and Vienna fifteen years ago. . . He still is a comparative youngster, too. . .

All parties are agog just now over the Hawaiian situation, and some strange stories are going the rounds. . . My sympathy is with Bobby Bell, who is on his way now to Hawaii, as "the man of the family". . . I remember some grand parties at "Twin Oakes," the family estate outside Washington, and I recall Mrs. Fortescue, a charming and imperious lady, whose present predicament is inconceivable. . .

FIGHTER'S FUTURE

Several of the sport commentators have remarked the difficulty in "placing" Gene Tunney. A Dempsey or a Corbett is easy to predict; they must travel a lot, they must involve themselves in frequent public appearances reminiscent of the old days, and they age gently and gracefully from the public eye.

Gene is another matter. He couldn't succeed as a college professor, because his words are far too long for students to understand. He won't go back into the ring, which he secretly hates, or into any sort of barn-storming. He needn't do either, now, and his tastes run differently.

Maybe—I could even hazard probably—politics holds Gene's destiny. He has already been invited to join the Democratic Victory Fund committee, besides being a member of the Governor of Connecticut's staff. He is Irish, you'll remember, and he has a charming smile coupled with a swift understanding of his opponent's phychology. In addition, it would be a brave voter who'd dare heckle him.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21—Merry-making with other girls in night clubs today was the ground on which Mrs. Susan Power Schoenmaker obtained a divorce from her husband, Alex Schoonmaker, attorney and son of Federal Judge F. B. Schoonmaker.

Mrs. Schoonmaker also alleged her husband was away from home for long intervals. The divorce was not contested.

How Doctors Fight FAT

Medical science finds that lack of a certain gland secretion is a great cause of obesity. Food that should create energy goes to excess fat. People slow down and gain weight. Now doctors the world over supply that lacking factor. Instead of starving people, they combat the cause of fat. Abnormal figures, in late years, have been disappearing fast.

That modern method is the basis of Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 24 years—millions of boxes of them. Now almost everyone has friends who know and show the delightful effects of Marmola.

If you overweigh, go try Marmola. All druggists supply it, and a box in each box tells you all about it. Start Marmola now and watch results.

How Do You Buy

Do you buy blindfolded or do you want to see and know all about the article you desire?

Of two ads, one merely listing "a house" for sale, and the other describing a "modern tapestry brick bungalow, built in book cases, buffet and ironing board, wood burning fireplace," etc., which most appeals to you?

The "house" may have all the attractive features of the bungalow, but if the ad. does not tell about them, its appeal cannot equal that of the more fully described bungalow. An extra line costs only 10c. It may make the sale.

News Of The World As Told In Pictures

Roaring Rapids on a Mississippi Farm

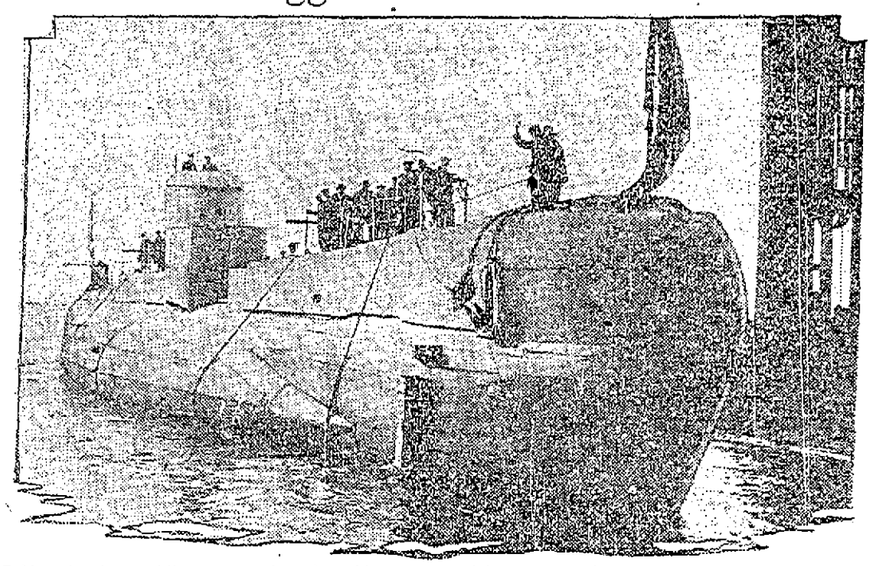
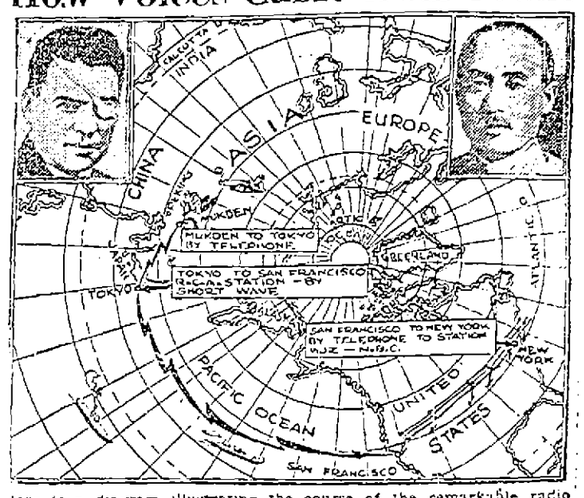
Britain's Bigger and Better Submarine



Said to be the world's largest submarine, this huge undersea craft, bearing the colorful name of "H. M. S. Sturgeon," is shown at Tilbury Docks, London, soon after her launching. The sleek and sturdy vessel, which has passed its tests to the complete satisfaction of the British Admiralty, embodies many features heretofore regarded as impractical for submarines. Besides her fore and aft torpedo tubes, the undersea monster carries batteries of disappearing guns and anti-aircraft artillery.

How Voices Came from Front



Here is a diagram illustrating the course of the remarkable radio broadcast of General Honjo (right, inset), commander of the Japanese Army in Manchuria, and Floyd Gibbons (left inset), famous International News Service war correspondent, from the war zone. Relayed through a field transmitter from Mukden, Manchuria, to Tokyo, Japan, thence to San Francisco by short wave, the program was carried to New York by special transcontinental phone circuits for distribution to stations of the WJZ red network, while N. B. C. short-wave units at Pittsburgh and Schenectady retransmitted the program to Europe, where it was rebroadcast.

Slain Churchman

Attacked while keeping a midnight tryst with a young woman near Germantown, Pa. Norman F. Bechtel (above), well known Mennonite church worker of Philadelphia, died as the result of twenty stab wounds. A trolley car conductor told the police that he had seen two men and a girl leave the scene, the girl screaming for help as the car dashed away.

As Rammed Rum Chaser Made Port

Tornado's Wake of Death

Imperial Infant

Despite her mere year of existence, there is a decidedly regal touch to the attitude of this little Japanese princess, who holds her "sceptre" in her left hand. She is Princess Yon, baby daughter of the Emperor of the Land of the Rising Sun. She was born in March, 1931, and has two sisters, one aged 6 and the other 4. This official photograph was made by a member of the imperial household.

Accuses Physician

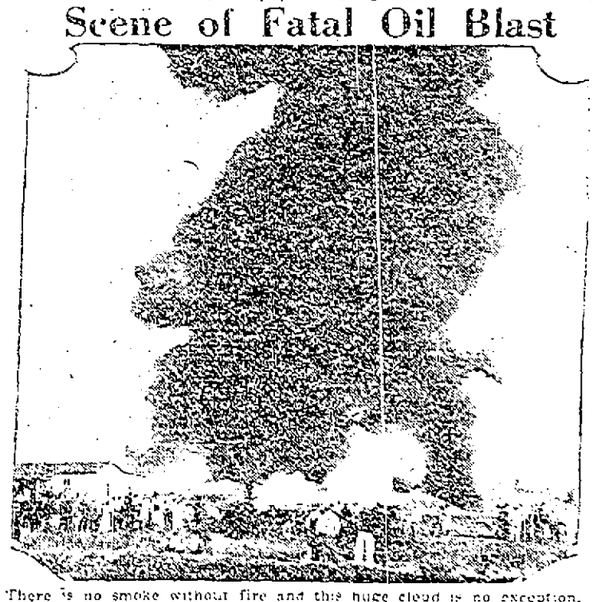
Big Step Towards Olympics

This unusual photo, made, apparently, from beneath the championship feet of Mack Weiss, shows the pedestrian king taking a huge stride in his training at Los Angeles for the Olympic try-outs. Weiss, holder of the American record for the Olympic distance, set a mark of 4 hours 52 minutes and 43 seconds for the 50,000 meters (31 miles, 125 yards) at Philadelphia in 1929. He will compete in the Olympic trials under the colors of the Los Angeles A. C.

Twice Fled From Chain Gang

Sentenced to serve six years in the chain gang in Georgia, for the theft of $5.80, Robert Elliot Burns (left) succeeded in escaping after he had served two years of his term. Starting life all over again, Burns established himself as a prosperous and respected publisher in Chicago. But Georgian authorities traced him and had him extradited to finish his sentence. Again he escaped and so far has not been located by his erstwhile jailers. He is shown telling his experiences to his brother, the Rev. Vincent Burns. Where? Somewhere in the United States.

Scene of Fatal Oil Blast



There is no smoke without fire and this huge cloud is no exception. One man was killed and five seriously injured when this oil tank near Oklahoma City exploded. Four storage tanks of 2,500-barrels capacity were ignited by a welding torch, killing the man who was operating it. So intense was the heat of the fire that it threatened four other gusher type wells near by. The blast broke all windows for a mile radius.

Getting His Old Job Back

As Jap Emperor Reviewed His Warriors

Reminiscent of the colorful scenes that were a feature of militaristic Germany in pre-war days is this imposing display of Japanese military man power. All the pomp and grandeur that distinguished such brilliant parades in the era before the world realized that war is not all it was cracked up to be was in evidence when Emperor Hirohito of Japan reviewed the crack troops of his army, including the Imperial Bodyguard, on the Yoyogi Parade Ground in Tokyo, recently. The Emperor is shown, in inset, mounted on his favorite horse, Keisho, as he inspected his warriors. On the return to the palace after the review an object, said to have been a hand grenade, was hurled at the royal procession. The missile slightly damaged a carriage other than that in which the Emperor was riding.

Prodigal Princess

Returning to her native land for a visit, the Maharanee Mahimai M. S. Holkar of Indore, formerly Nancy Ann Miller, of Seattle, Wash., is shown on her arrival in New York. The marriage of the American girl and the Indian Maharajah caused a world-wide sensation a few years ago. Evidence that she has embraced the faith of her husband is seen in the ruby caste mark she wears in her forehead.

Celebrate New Appointment

This group is comprised of a few of the distinguished guests that attended the luncheon tendered to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt by the Philippine Delegation at Washington, D. C., on the Colonel's appointment as Governor General of the Philippines. The former Governor General of Porto Rico was nominated for the post by President Hoover and indorsed by the Senate. Left to right (seated) are Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and Mrs. Nicholas Roosevelt Longworth, widow of the late Speaker of the House. Standing are Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, S. Osmena and Speaker Manuel Roxas, both of the Philippine Senate, and Colonel Roosevelt.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Market Prices Are Little Changed Today

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A slight strengthening of the railroad stocks and specialties, and moderate reaction in a few of the well known industrials, including General Electric, were the features of an extremely dull and motionless market this morning.

With an apparent deadlock in the war-debt and reparations negotiations and little progress in the railway wage conference the two sources from which the stock market expected to derive its inspiration failed to "come through."

New Haven, Atchison, New York Central and a few other active rails moved ahead fractionally. Selling of General Electric was promptly resumed and the stock fell off to 21⅝, only fractionally above yesterday's low. The New York City Traction stocks responded with slightly higher prices to reports of a possible acquisition of the elevated and subway lines by the city and their operation under a higher fare schedule. United States Steel sold fractionally above 46 and at least is displaying no special temerity over the dividend action of the directors at next Tuesday's meeting.

New Haven's rise to a new high at 30¾ was a feature of the popular rails. New York Central was in good demand at 35 and Union Pacific above 81. Dull and irregular movements characterized the automobile, coppor, oil and public utility stocks. Bonds were irregular, cotton a few points higher. Call money unchanged at 2½ per cent.

LONDON, Jan. 21—The longest railway rails in the world are to be laid here soon. They measure 90 feet in length, compared with the usual length of 30, 45 and 60 feet.

It is hoped that the longer rails will provide smoother running, less noise and wear. It is estimated that on a train traveling at 40 miles an hour on 30 foot rails each wheel jolts 117 times a minute due to the joints. On the new rails this number will be reduced to 39 a minute.

Restaurants Guarded Well

State Exercises Strict Supervision Over Health Of Employes

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21.—The restaurant hygiene division, of the State Department of Health, of which Howard M. Haines is chief, is constantly performing a valuable piece of service to the thousands of men and women who eat many of their meals at restaurants and lunch rooms.

Long ago it was recognized that the possibility of transmitting communicable diseases, by contact with employees, as well as by contact with the furnishings of such eating places, was very great. Hence the legislature enacted a law for the protection of patrons of these dining rooms, the enforcement of which was lodged in the Department of Health. In turn, this was placed in the bureau of communicable diseases, and in a separate division, known as the "restaurant hygiene division," at the present time directed by Mr. Haines.

This division sees to it that all employees who have anything whatever to do with the preparation or service of food, are medically examined for the purpose of detecting possible danger in the transmitting of disease. Every employee must satisfy the department of health that he (or she) is free from any affection that might be communicated to a customer. Healthy people cook your food, and healthy people serve it to you in Pennsylvania.

Not only is this true, but the handling of the dishes and glassware by means of which you are served, must measure up to a standard of cleanliness which insures you that there will not be danger of infection from a previous customer. Between each service, the tableware must be thoroughly washed in hot water, and come to you perfectly clean.

To keep watch over the thousands of eating places in a great state like Pennsylvania, and to insure the service of millions of meals free from danger to the health, is the gigantic task of the Restaurant Hygiene Division, of the Department of Health. The value of this service to the people is difficult to write down in terms that can be readily understood.

Few Bathing Pools Have Been Licensed

Only Ninety Out Of 1,500 Have Filed Applications To Operate

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21.—As the year ended the records of the State Health Department show that only 99 of the estimated 1500 bathing places in the state had filed applications for permits to operate, according to George H. Moore, Engineer in charge of that branch of the work. Indoor pools now open and operating, are being inspected as rapidly as possible by Engineer Moore himself, operating out of Harrisburg, Engineer Ruthven operating in the Philadelphia section and Engineer William H. Murdoch, active in the Pittsburgh territory.

Formal permits will begin to be issued as soon as inspected pools have met the standards set up by the Bureau of Engineers of the Department of Health. In the meantime the filing of applications for permits with the Department is being urged on all bathing place owners.

New Castle Is Center Of Marriage License Rush Across Border

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—Western Pennsylvania has become a "gretna green" for Ohio couples dodging the Buckeye state's new "five-day" marriage law, statistics showed today.

In New Castle alone, 280 couples from the neighboring state have been married since July 1, 1931. On the latter date, the Ohio law, requiring five days notice of intention to wed, went into effect.

At Mercer, a stone's throw from the state line, 150 couples from the Buckeye state fled into Pennsylvania to escape the Ohio law requirements.

Similar reports were received from other Keystone state border cities in a survey by International News Service. West Virginia also was reported to have become a "happy hunting grounds" for Ohioans seeking marriage licenses without waiting. Approximately 400 Ohio couples "signed for life" at New Cumberland.

Meanwhile, Western Pennsylvania counties are reaping the profits. Ministers and justices of the peace, who perform the ceremonies, also are benefiting.

Under Pennsylvania law, the wedding must take place in this state if the marriage license is issued here. Thus, in New Castle $560 in Ohio money went into the county treasury. It was exclusive of the donations given to justices and ministers for "tieing the knot".

One result of the situation may be agitation for a similar law in Pennsylvania. Already one plea has been made. It was by Dr. Roswell H. Johnson, professor of the University of Pittsburgh, who said:—

"The fact that the Pennsylvania marriage rate has gone up because of Ohio couples coming to Pennsylvania to marry is best proof of the need of extension of this legislation to include Pennsylvania.

"It proves how many hasty and ill-considered marriages there are and hence the need for this law.

"It is ignominous for this state to be performing marriages which connive at the circumvention of the well-meant laws of adjoining states.

"In the next session of the legislature, are we going to allow these ill-gotten fees of our border county officials to keep us from adopting this forward-looking legislation?"

E. & A. Safety Drive Reduces Injuries Here

LOOK TO BETTER RECORD FOR '32

A more intensive campaign among shopmen, trainmen, yard workers and office folk impress the vital importance of safety first, and a stricter compliance on the part of every employee to the safety practices now in use, led the Erie and Ashtabula division of the Pennsylvania railroad to newer heights last year in the safety first competition which the system sponsors.

Second in Class B for the entire Pennsylvania system, the E. and A. stepped up in front of every other division in the Central region territory. Only the Atlantic division outscored it for system honors.

Not One Fatality

During 1931 there was not one accidental death on the entire division, although in 1930 there were two and in 1929, three.

Reportable I. C. C. cases, denoting the more serious of accidents were reduced from 20 in 1930 to 10 during 1931. The Interstate Commerce Commission hears of each reportable case, one that disables an employee for over three days.

Taking in everything, counting the smallest accident where a hand may have been scratched, and the most serious injury, the E. and A. records revealed 167 during the past year as compared with 351 in 1930. The drop was greater than 50 per cent.

The E. & A. station department set up a perfect safety record for the second consecutive year, but wins no banner because the station departments of two other larger divisions, the Renova and the Logansport, also kept their accident slates clean.

Best among 16 other divisions, the maintenance-of-equipment department set up a record of .8 injuries per million-man-hours. For eleven months of the year the train service department had a percentage of 4.26 injuries per million-man-hours. The engine service department placed third among others, its percentage being 1.81 injuries per million-man-hours.

For its high standing on the Central region, the E. & A. division set up a score of 2.03 percent, with the Renovo division second with a percentage of 3.16 injuries per million-man-hours.

Education Pushed

"We try to correct bad practices before harm results" Safety Agent L. C. Gleason, who announced the year's report, said. "The men have shown a fine attitude toward safety and a fine willingness to live up to every safety rule."

To impress the safety message more indelibly on the men, divisional and district safety meetings are held; the shop groups listen to daily safety talks by some of their own men or superiors, and in all branches of the service, train service, engine service or in the clerical end, the safety first obligations are held high.

Superintendent H. T. Frushour commented that the past year's records attests to the fine attitude toward safety first prevalent all over the division.

All admitted membership in a "gang" which had terrorized the fashionable residence district of East Washington for more than a year.

Pittsburgh Boy Fatally Injured In Digging Coal

Landslide Buries Youngster As He Digs Coal For Mother, Dies In Hospital

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—Benjamin Bromley, 15, who set out to dig coal so that his mother "could have money to buy other things" was dead today.

Accompanied by his brother, Herman, 13, Ben went to an abandoned coal mine here. While Ben "mined" the coal, Herman packed it into baskets. After a short time, according to Herman, Ben complained his legs were caught in the earth. Then Ben cried out and Herman made frantic efforts to free him.

Paul Dutine, 13, ran to Herman's aid and together they began to dig the boy out. While they worked, the earth began to slide and Ben was completely covered.

Police were called and Ben was still alive when he was extricated. For an hour police worked with an inhalator after the boy's head was uncovered, while neighbors removed the earth from the rest of the boy's body.

Despite efforts to revive him, Ben died a short time later in Southside Hospital.

BLOSSOMS BLOOM ON BURNING BUSH

A "Burning Bush" in the front yard of the William J. Dunn home in Muddy Creek township on Tuesday, January 19, thumbed its nose at Jack Frost who has been standing hesitant behind the scenes "took the stage by storm and certainly has gone over big with the spectators.

The entire bush, and it is a large one, came into full bloom on Tuesday and has been attracting wide attention. Burning Bush in January is almost unheard of—a freak of nature that not many people in this part of the country see in a life time.

Ira L. Moore, a mail carrier, on Wednesday brought to The News several flowers from the bush. The flowers are well developed and could not have been prettier if they had opened in July.

Helen Walsh Will Talk With Crowley Last Time Today

Warden Lawes Will Not Oppose Doomed Slayer Seeing His Sweetheart

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Doomed to die in Sing Sing tonight, Francis ("two-gun") Crowley will be granted his final wish, that he be allowed to see his former sweetheart, Helen Walsh, just once, before he shuffles "the last mile" to his death in the electric chair.

At first Warden Lewis E. Lawes, a student of criminology and one of America's foremost penologists, said no, even though Helen had obtained an order from a supreme court justice that she should be allowed to see the prisoner.

The warden had been ordered to appear in supreme court in Brooklyn to show why he should not permit Miss Walsh and Crowley to see each other for the last time.

But when the court order was served on Warden Lawes, who was in bed this morning from the effects of a fall, he said he would not oppose it.

Japanese Woman In Honolulu Is Victim Of Fiend

Japanese Woman, Mother Of Two Children Attacked By Escaped Convict

MALE COMPANION SEVERELY INJURED

Officials Redouble Efforts To Capture Half-Caste Murderer And Attacker

By GILBERT PARKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 21.—Stunned by a second outrage against Honolulu women in less than a month, authorities today redoubled their efforts to capture David Lyman, 22, convicted murderer who escaped from Oahu prison New Year's eve.

Lyman, a half-caste, was identified as the man who early today criminally attacked attractive Mrs. Taka Okazaki, 29, a Japanese woman, after hitting her male friend, Takio Harimoto, over the head with a pistol and tying him to a railroad track about 30 minutes before a train was scheduled to pass.

Mrs. Okazaki, the mother of two children, was sitting in a parked automobile with Harimoto when the man they later identified as Lyman emerged from nearby bushes bordering the lonely moonlit road and leaped upon a running board of the automobile.

Tied to Tracks.

He clubbed Harimoto into unconsciousness and carried him to the railroad track as Mrs. Okazaki watched in horror.

After attacking and robbing Mrs. Okazaki, the half-cast drove her home.

She told her startled husband and the police that the man said: "Why, don't you recognize me?"

She and Harimoto, who had freed himself from the track, identified Lyman's picture as that of their assailant.

After Lyman and Luis Kaikapu, also a convicted murderer, escaped from prison Kaikapu attacked Mrs. James Odowda, the pretty wife of an oil company executive. Kaikapu was recaptured.

Question Members Of Household Of Woman Found Dead

Manila Police Not Satisfied That Mrs. Tait Met Death By Drowning

(International News Service)

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 21.—Members of the household of Mrs. Mabel Sedgwick Tait, 33-year-old wife of Edwin Tait, wealthy showman, who met a mysterious death in a fish trap, today were questioned by Capt. Frank Krueger, chief of the Manila Secret Service, and by police officials who re-opened an extensive investigation into the circumstances connected with her death.

Mrs. Tait's bruised and battered body was recovered from a fish trap in Manila Bay Tuesday morning. Police at first reported she had fallen from a stone wall at the rear of her residence into the Pasib river and had drowned.

Autopsy surgeons said absence of muddy water in Mrs. Tait's stomach and lungs indicated she had not been drowned, and expressed belief death was caused by a T-shaped head wound six inches long and two inches deep.

Ship-Board Romance Blossoms Into Plans For Early Marriage

Miss Ann Sharer, Niece Of Late Millionaire Alliance, Ohio, Magnate To Wed

Wealthy Wilmington, Del., Broker Will Lead Young Girl To Alter Shortly

(International News Service)

ALLIANCE, O., Jan. 21.—Reports of the ship-board romance of Miss Ann Sharer, 19, niece of the late Colonel William H. Morgan, millionaire Alliance manufacturer, and Theodore William Canning, 28, wealthy Wilmington, Del., broker, were confirmed here today.

William H. Morgan, Jr., a cousin of the girl, declared that he had received a cablegram from Miss Sharer stating she would be married to Canning as soon as the broker obtained a divorce from his present wife.

Wedding Denied

At the same time, Morgan denied that the couple already had been married. Public reports, he said, had stated that Miss Sharer and Canning were married in Rome, December 9.

According to the cousin, who resides at the show-place Castle Glamorgan estate here, Miss Sharer met the broker on ship-board two days afterr she sailed from New York. The romance blossomed while they were visiting the capitals and winter resorts of Europe.

Miss Sharer, now in London, plans to return to the United States, "most any day now," Morgan stated. The marriage will take place in this country, he said, probably in Wilmington or New York.

When she sailed from New York, Miss Sharer was accompanied by her aunt, Miss Ann Ballou, of Conneaut, Pa., while Canning was traveling with Rev. Thomas Cooper, a retired Methodist minister.

Parents Are Dead

Miss Sharer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sharer. The parents died in 1921 after having been stricken with poison after eating tainted olives. The death banquet since has been referred to as "The Famous Poison-Olive Dinner."

After the death of her parents, Miss Sharer lived with the Morgans, her relatives. She atttended Laurel Hall school at Hollidaysburg, Pa., and was graduated from the fashionable Pine Manor Finishing school at Wellesley, Mass.

After her graduation in June, Miss Sharer returned here for the summer and then sailed for Europe in November.

COUNTY MEN AWAY, KALISH'S HEARING AGAIN POSTPONED

Alderman L. C. Mantz, acting on the request of the commonwealth, today continued the hearing of Stanley Kalish, Southside man held on a liquor charge, for a possible week. Originally set for January 14, the hearing had been postponed until this afternoon.

A time extension was asked inasmuch as several county authorities found it necessary to be out of town today.

Kalish, whose Terrace avenue quarters were visited by county and city men on Saturday January 9, is out on $1,500 bail.

How to Relieve Head Noises

Good Advice For Those Who Fear Deafness

Catarrh sufferers who are growing hard of hearing, should take warning from that stuffy feeling of pressure against their ear drums, those buzzing, rumbling head noises, like steam escaping, and take prompt, effective measures to stop this trouble. Head noises due to catarrh are almost always the forerunners of deafness and most deaf folks suffer from them constantly. Often the never-ending, nerve-racking "hum" drives the sufferer almost frantic and may result in a nervous breakdown.

Thanks to a remarkable medicine, it is now possible to lessen these head noises and often completely overcome them, and with their disappearance the hearing also greatly improves, and frequently can be restored to normal. From New Castle Drug, Eckerd's Cut Rate or your druggist secure a 1 oz. bottle of Parmint (Double Strength), take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. Parmint is used this way to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, and also to correct any excess secretions in the middle ear. Parmint usually gives quick, effective results.

Every catarrh sufferer should give Parmint a trial.

AS MRS. JUDD BATTLES FOR LIFE

Pale, but showing almost no signs of nervousness, Winnie Ruth Judd is photographed at the counsel table during her trial for the "trunk murder," of her companions Agnes Anne Leroie and Hedvig Samuelson, in a packed courtroom at Phoenix, Ariz. With the defendant is her attorney, J. D. Zaversack.

"Mystery Bag" Is Opened, Water Snake Jumps Out

County Commissioners Surprise Group At Court House With Their Find

While examining a bridge near New Wilmington yesterday afternoon County Commissioners Conner, Woods and Elder were surprised to see a water snake swimming in the water near the abutment. Elder fearlessly grabbed the snake by the tail, and while it tried to get away, one of the other commissioners secured an auto chain sack, in which the snake was brought to the county commissioners' office.

The sack was partly filled with sand and the neck tied wtih a string. It looked not unlike one of Bim Gump's gold bags. This morning Commissioner Elder announced to a little crowd in the commissioners' office that they had made a great find while out viewing a bridge yesterday. Everybody was curious as Elder placed the sack on the counter and proceeded to untie the string. One young woman, more curious than the rest, bent over eagerly to get the first glimpse, and as the bag was opened the snake jumped out like satan from a "devil's band box".

Well, the young woman didn't exactly faint, but let out a little scream and rushed out of the room as the snake fell upon the floor and started toward her. Elder made a dive for the snake and got it by the tail. Elmer Conner held the bag, and soon his snakeship was back home.

As there is no very good snake roosts around the commissioners' office they are willing to give the snake to anybody who will provide a comfortable home.

Neither Elder nor anybody else around the court house ever remembers seeing a water snake in January.

Business Women To Observe Week In Early March

Plans for observance of National Business Women's Week, which comes March 6 to 12, are being launched by the New Castle Business and Professional Women's club and will probably be more extensively recognized this year than ever before.

The local club has made tentative plans for a noon dinner, a Wednesday evening church service and a bridge party for that week, as well as a special program at the regular meeting date which falls on March 7.

'Will-Not-Workers' Deserve No Help, City Mission Head Points Out In New Report

"We find that our new 'community log pile' affords a splendid way for us to ascertain the worth and sincerity of men who ask for aid," declares Superintendent B. J. Watkins of the City Rescue Mission in his report of activities during the period from November 27 and January 15.

Mr. Watkins' resume says he still receives flat refusals from certain men who will volunteer no work whatever in return for food, clothing or lodging. "If a man won't work," he says, "we feel that he doesn't need help."

The report expresses the opinion that New Castle or any other city would be far better off were transients of this type ordered to leave. Mr. Watkins says that 50 per cent of the men he refuses for such reasons, beg and receive help from some other eating place.

Milk, Soup Given

During the report period, the Mission distributed 2,500 gallons of milk daily to nearly 300 families. They passed out 400 gallons of soup furnished by the Jameson Memorial hospital, working in conjunction with the Mayor's Relief committee

A total of 564 men were given beds, after they had taken the required bath.

There were 1,618 meals provided during this time.

At the "community log pile," 30 South Mercer street, the Mission is keeping busy the men who willingly agree to do their bit for a warm place to stay overnight or for a deserving meal. The chopped timber is being donated to needy families.

Bridenbaugh Is Displeased With New Castle Five

"Showing In Past Three Games Has Not Been Too Good," Coach States

Speaking before several officials and a News representative, Phillip H. Bridenbaugh, head coach of the New Castle high school basketball team, Wednesday morning in the Athletic Association room stated that the players on the present floor quintet are getting "big headed" because they have won five straight games, and he may revise his lineup to correct this situation.

Perhaps the officials made a big mistake in carding Scott high of North Braddock, 1930 state champs for the opening game. The New Castle team led from the start and was defeated in the last 15 seconds when a Scott player let loose a wierd shot which found the rim. Although the local team lost, the feeling was installed into them that they were pretty good.

Meeting the Pitt Freshies team next, another ranked opponent, the local five managed to pull through with a triumph over this highly touted combination. Since then the showing has been "terrible" as Mr. Bridenbaugh states. It has been obvious in the past games that the boys are attempting to "Put on the Ritz" on the floor.

An air of arrogancy appears to prevail among the players, the local coach believes. For instance Tuesday night when the local five battled Youngstown South, an inexperienced five, the New Castle boys were a tempting many "grandstand" tricks which do not look nice from the side lines. The result was that New Castle defeated South only by an 18-11 score when the score should have been twice that.

The discussion came about when Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner who is also displeased with the team, suggested arranging to practice more on the George Washington floor where New Castle pays its games. The junior high floor is occupied the majority of afternoons and for this reason the Senior high team is forced to practice on the high school court. Coach Bridenbaugh retaliated with the remark that the whole trouble is not practice but "over confidence."

Coach Bridenbaugh has noticed particularly in the past three games he says that the athletes want to "show off," and this condition will not be tolerated, he says.

The Section Three race is plenty tough with teams like Butler, and Beaver Falls competing. In order for New Castle to be among the W. P. I. A. L. title seekers in the tournament in March, the tossers will have to play much better basketball than has been seen in the past three games.

Panthers Hand Tech Setback

Traditional Rivals At Pittsburgh Play Lopsided Game Wednesday

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—Carnegie Tech's basketball winning streak was at a temporary end today and the credit was given to John Brown, Pitt's gangling center. The score was 33-22.

Brown was given his "big chance" last night when Dr. H. C. Carlson, the Pitt coach, sent him to bat for Russ Ochsenhirt, out with an injured foot.

Brown rolled up 15 points to his credit and stowed the game safely away for Pitt.

At game time, Tech was given a slight edge over Pitt for the traditional court battle. At the end of half, the score was 26 to 6 in Pitt's favor and the Panthers took things easy for the rest of the game.

Union High school football team champions of the Lawrence County Class B football league, and at present members of the W. P. I. A. L. will be tendered a fine banquet tonight at the Union High gymnasium by the Union Athletic Association. The football players will be honored with a mound of food and awards by the coach David Morgan Boyd. The banquet will get under way about 6:30 o'clock. Preparations have been made to feed 250 which will just about fill the gym floor to capacity.

It will be the night of nights for the Union High gridders. They will be kingpins for the evening. The school will be their's. The boys who brought the championship to Union will eat plenty of good food.

Praise For Boyd

Coach Morgan Boyd will come in for his share of the praise for the championship team. Boyd in his short regime at Union has raised the athletic standard up to the 100 per cent mark. His worth is well recognized. Union was and is fortunate in having a man the caliber of Boyd to direct the destinies of the football and basketball teams.

Union began the season with eight veterans on the football squad. The men who formed the nucleus were Davis, Augustyn, Jaworski, Mateja, Sniezek, Dec, Andres and Lannigan. With this squad from the season before Coach Boyd began the hardest schedule that any Union team ever undertook. Only one game was lost that to Youngstown East High, a major class High School team.

Jaworski Leading Scorer

Joe Jaworski was the leading scorer of the team followed by Joe Augustyn and in turn L. Augustyn, Denney, Ammons, Monico and Dec. Union High played fifteen straight games without a defeat, but two ties marred this record in the two years.

Letters and pictures of the squad will be given out by Coach Boyd tonight as his part of the program that will follow the banquet. Coach Robert "Bob" Thorn of Grove City College basketball team and Athletic Director will be the principal speaker. Torn will no doubt have a fine message from the high school boys. Torn's experience dates back many, many years and he knows athletics from a to z. His talk tonight is eagerly awaited by the gridders. Principal Leonard of Union High will act as toastmaster of the ocasion.

Have Excellent Record

In the 1929 season Joe Jaworski was captain of the team and Andrew Eve was manager. In the 1930 season Joe Augustyn was captain of the team and Cecil McConahey was manager. In the past season Walter Sniezek was captain and Francis Davis manager.

In three years Union has won 19 games and lost 6, and tied 2 scoring 455 points against 157 for their opponents.

Herewith is presented the excellent record compiled by Union High in the past three years:

Fred Lindstrom Signs Contract

Versatile Star Of New York Giants Will Be Shifted To Second Base

OTHER HOLDOUTS MAY SIGN SOON

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—With receipt of the signed contract of Fred Lindstrom, their most versatile star, officials of the New York Giants heaved two sighs of relief today.

Sigh No. 1 was heaved with the comforting thought Lindy's acceptance was bound to weaken the morale of the club's holdout colony, headed by Bill Terry, first baseman. The other reason is that Lindstrom, for the second successive year, looms as one of the two key players on the team.

Last year Manager John McGraw made two "noble experiments" in shifting Lindstrom from third to right field and starting an untried rookie, Johnny Vergez, at the hot corner. Both experiments were successful.

Linstrom at Second.

This year Jawn is going to try to put over another parlay. He intends to start Leonard Koenecke, rookie from Indianapolis, in the outfield, and shift Lindstrom from right field to second base.

Hughie Critz, the club's regular second sacker, was hampered last season by an injury to his right shoulder which crippled his throwing arm. Hughie said yesterday at his southern home that he was doubtful as to whether he could regain his former effectiveness, and McGraw himself has just about given up hope on the diminutive star.

Lindy is the tenth member of the club to sign or agree to terms. He is the leader of a certain faction on the club and his desertion of the ranks of the holdouts is likely to exert a powerful psychological influence on Bill Terry, his pal and roommate.

Titan Football Schedule Is Revised; Nine Games Booked For Fall

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 21.—George Washington University will be played in football by Westminster College in a game October 1, in Washington, D. C., next fall, the athletic council announced last night. This contest, and one with St. Francis to be played at New Wilmington on October 8 fill the Titan card, giving the United Presbyterians a nine-game schedule for the coming season.

Following negotiations with the two new opponents and with Adrian College of Michigan, which had previously been carded tentatively for October 1, a plan was worked out whereby Adrian would not be met next fall and George Washington tendered the Titans the date for a game in the capitol.

Other new opponents on the Titan schedule for this coming fall include St. Bonaventure and Muskingum. Both these colleges will be played away from home. The St. Francis game at home this fall is the first of a two-year arrangement. The Titans will play the Saints at Johnstown in 1932. The Muskingum game at New Concord on November 12 this year is also the first of a two-year series. The Muskingum team will play at New Wilmington in 1932.

The revised schedule, showing nine contests four of which will be played at home, is one of the best ever planned for a Westminster team. The Titans will play in Ohio, New York, Districts of Columbia, and in Pennsylvania.

Teams on last fall's schedule who do not appear next fall are Adrian, Allegheny, Edinboro, and Juniata. In place of these opponents, George Washington University, St. Francis, Muskingum, and St. Bonaventure have been carded.

Feature games with district rivals will be Grove City and Geneva away; and Thiel, Slippery Rock, and Waynesburg at home. Bethany and Westminster tried to arrange a date for a contest but open dates would not agree, so the Bisons had to be left off the 1932 card. Bethany will no doubt be included on the 1933 schedule.

The revised schedule as announced is: September 24, Slippery Rock at home; October 1, George Washington at Washington, D. C.; October 8, St. Francis at home; October 15, Grove City at Grove City; October 22, St. Bonaventures at Olean, N. Y.; October 29, Waynesburg at home; November 5, Thiel at home; November 12, Muskingum at New Concord; November 19, Geneva at Beaver Falls.

St. Mary's Second Team Tops Hearts

Wednesday night the St. Mary's Reserves handed the Sacred Hearts a 27-17 setback on the St. Mary's floor.

Kearns, Hanlon and Trainor were the best for the winners while DiMuccio was the best for the losers. Friday night the St. Mary's Reserves will play the Eintrachts. The game starts at 8 o'clock.

The lineup:

Reserves 27		Hearts 17
Kearns	F	Nigro
Semler	F	DiMuccio
Vonderan	C	Bongivengo
Trainor	G	Barlett
Hanlon	G	Sheldone

Subs—Reserves: Rogers, Tyrell, Davis, Kelly.

Field goals—Kearns 3, Hanlon 3, Trainor 2, Vonderan 1, DiMuccio 2, Barlett 1, Bongivengo 1, Sheldone 1.

Fouls—St. Mary's 9 out of 18, Hearts 7 out of 11.

How Do You Buy

Do you buy blindfolded or do you want to see and know all about the article you desire?

Of two ads, one merely listing "a house" for sale, and the other describing a "modern tapestry brick bungalow, built in book cases, buffet and ironing board, wood burning fireplace," etc., which most appeals to you?

The "house" may have all the attractive features of the bungalow, but if the ad. does not tell about them, its appeal cannot equal that of the more fully described bungalow. An extra line costs only 10c. It may make the sale.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Market Prices Are Little Changed Today

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A slight strengthening of the railroad stocks and specialties, and moderate reaction in a few of the well known industrials, including General Electric, were the features of an extremely dull and motionless market this morning.

With an apparent deadlock in the war-debt and reparations negotiations and little progress in the railway wage conference the two sources from which the stock market expected to derive its inspiration failed to "come through."

New Haven, Atchison, New York Central and a few other active rails moved ahead fractionally. Selling of General Electric was promptly resumed and the stock fell off to 21¾, only fractionally above yesterday's low. The New York City Traction stocks responded with slightly higher prices to reports of a possible acquisition of the elevated and subway lines by the city and their operation under a higher fare schedule. United States Steel sold fractionally above 46 and at least is displaying no special temerity over the dividend action of the directors at next Tuesday's meeting.

New Haven's rise to a new high at 30¾ was a feature of the popular rails. New York Central was in good demand at 35 and Union Pacific above 81. Dull and irregular movements characterized the automobile, coppor, oil and public utility stocks. Bonds were irregular, cotton a few points higher. Call money unchanged at 2½ per cent.

LONDON, Jan. 21—The longest railway rails in the world are to be laid here soon. They measure 90 feet in length, compared with the usual length of 30, 45 and 60 feet.

It is hoped that the longer rails will provide smoother running, less noise and wear. It is estimated that on a train traveling at 40 miles an hour on 30 foot rails each wheel jolts 117 times a minute due to the joints. On the new rails this number will be reduced to 39 a minute.

Restaurants Guarded Well

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21.—The restaurant hygiene division, of the State Department of Health, of which Howard M. Haines is chief, is constantly performing a valuable piece of service to the thousands of men and women who eat many of their meals at restaurants and lunch rooms.

Long ago it was recognized that the possibility of transmitting communicable diseases, by contact with employees, as well as by contact with the furnishings of such eating places, was very great. Hence the legislature enacted a law for the protection of patrons of these dining rooms, the enforcement of which was lodged in the Department of Health. In turn, this was placed in the bureau of communicable diseases, and in a separate division, known as the "restaurant hygiene division," at the present time directed by Mr. Haines.

This division sees to it that all employees who have anything whatever to do with the preparation or service of food, are medically examined for the purpose of detecting possible danger in the transmitting of disease. Every employee must satisfy the department of health that he (or she) is free from any affection that might be communicated to a customer. Healthy people cook your food, and healthy people serve it to you in Pennsylvania.

Not only is this true, but the handling of the dishes and glassware by means of which you are served, must measure up to a standard of cleanliness which insures you that there will not be danger of infection from a previous customer. Between each service, the tableware must be thoroughly washed in hot water, and come to you perfectly clean.

To keep watch over the thousands of eating places in a great state like Pennsylvania, and to insure the service of millions of meals free from danger to the health, is the gigantic task of the Restaurant Hygiene Division, of the Department of Health. The value of this service to the people is difficult to write down in terms that can be readily understood.

Few Bathing Pools Have Been Licensed

Only Ninety Out Of 1,500 Have Filed Applications To Operate

HARRISBURG, Jan. 21.—As the year ended the records of the State Health Department show that only 99 of the estimated 1500 bathing places in the state had filed applications for permits to operate, according to George H. Moore, Engineer in charge of that branch of the work. Indoor pools now open and operating, are being inspected as rapidly as possible by Engineer Moore himself, operating out of Harrisburg. Engineer Ruthven operating in the Philadelphia section and Engineer William H. Murdoch, active in the Pittsburgh territory.

Formal permits will begin to be issued as soon as inspected pools have met the standards set up by the Bureau of Engineers of the Department of Health. In the meantime the filing of applications for permits with the Department is being urged on all bathing place owners.

New Castle Is Center Of Marriage License Rush Across Border

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—Western Pennsylvania has become a "gretna green" for Ohio couples dodging the Buckeye state's new "five-day" marriage law, statistics showed today.

In New Castle alone, 280 couples from the neighboring state have been married since July 1, 1931. On the latter date, the Ohio law, requiring five days notice of intention to wed, went into effect.

At Mercer, a stone's throw from the state line, 150 couples from the Buckeye state fled into Pennsylvania to escape the Ohio law requirements.

Similar reports were received from other Keystone state border cities in a survey by International News Service. West Virginia also was reported to have become a "happy hunting grounds" for Ohioans seeking marriage licenses without waiting. Approximately 400 Ohio couples "signed for life" at New Cumberland.

Meanwhile, Western Pennsylvania counties are reaping the profits. Ministers and justices of the peace, who perform the ceremonies, also are benefiting.

Under Pennsylvania law the wedding must take place in this state if the marriage license is issued here. Thus, in New Castle $560 in Ohio money went into the county treasury. It was exclusive of the donations given to justices and ministers for "tieing the knot".

One result of the situation may be agitation for a similar law in Pennsylvania. Already one plea has been made. It was by Dr. Roswell H. Johnson, professor of the University of Pittsburgh, who said:—

"The fact that the Pennsylvania marriage rate has gone up because of Ohio couples coming to Pennsylvania to marry is best proof of the need of extension of this legislation to include Pennsylvania.

"It proves how many hasty and ill-considered marriages there are and hence the need for this law.

"It is ignominous for this state to be performing marriages which connive at the circumvention of the well-meant laws of adjoining states.

"In the next session of the legislature, are we going to allow these ill-gotten fees of our border county officials to keep us from adopting this forward-looking legislation?"

Officials Redouble Efforts To Capture Half-Caste Murderer And Attacker

By GILBERT PARKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 21.—Stunned by a second outrage against Honolulu women in less than a month, authorities today redoubled their efforts to capture David Lyman, 22, convicted murderer who escaped from Oahu prison New Year's eve.

Lyman, a half-caste, was identified as the man who early today criminally attacked attractive Mrs. Taka Okazaki, 29, a Japanese woman, after beating her male friend, Takio Harimoto, over the head with a pistol and tying him to a railroad track about 30 minutes before a train was scheduled to pass.

Mrs. Okazaki, the mother of two children, was sitting in a parked automobile with Harimoto when the man they later identified as Lyman emerged from nearby bushes bordering the lonely moonlit road and leaped upon a running board of the automobile.

Tied to Tracks.

He clubbed Harimoto into unconsciousness and carried him to the railroad track as Mrs. Okazaki watched in horror.

After attacking and robbing Mrs. Okazaki, the half-cast drove her home.

She told her startled husband and the police that the man said: "Why, don't you recognize me?"

She and Harimoto, who had freed himself from the track, identified Lyman's picture as that of their assailant.

After Lyman and Luis Kaikapu, also a convicted murderer, escaped from prison Kaikapu attacked Mrs. James Odowda, the pretty wife of an oil company executive. Kaikapu was recaptured.

Question Members Of Household Of Woman Found Dead

Manila Police Not Satisfied That Mrs. Tait Met Death By Drowning

(International News Service)

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 21.—Members of the household of Mrs. Mabel Sedgwick Tait, 33-year-old wife of Edwin Tait, wealthy showman, who met a mysterious death in a fish trap, today were questioned by Capt. Frank Kruger, chief of the Manila Secret Service, and by police officials who re-opened an extensive investigation into the circumstances connected with her death.

Mrs. Tait's bruised and battered body was recovered from a fish trap in Manila Bay Tuesday morning. Police at first reported she had fallen from a stone wall at the rear of her residence into the Pasib river and had drowned.

Autopsy surgeons said absence of muddy water in Mrs. Tait's stomach and lungs indicated she had not been drowned, and expressed belief death was caused by a T-shaped head wound six inches long and two inches deep.

Ship-Board Romance Blossoms Into Plans For Early Marriage

Miss Ann Sharer, Niece Of Late Millionaire Alliance, Ohio, Magnate To Wed

Wealthy Wilmington, Del., Broker Will Lead Young Girl To Alter Shortly

(International News Service)

ALLIANCE, O., Jan. 21.—Reports of the ship-board romance of Miss Ann Sharer, 19, niece of the late Colonel William H. Morgan, millionaire Alliance manufacturer, and Theodore William Canning, 38, wealthy Wilmington, Del., broker, were confirmed here today.

William H. Morgan, Jr., a cousin of the girl, declared that he had received a cablegram from Miss Sharer stating she would be married to Canning as soon as the broker obtained a divorce from his present wife.

Wedding Denied

At the same time, Morgan denied that the couple already had been married. Public reports, he said, had stated that Miss Sharer and Canning were married in Rome, December 9.

According to the cousin, who resides at the show-place Castle Glamorgan estate here, Miss Sharer met the broker on ship-board two days afterr she sailed from New York. The romance blossomed while they were visiting the capitals and winter resorts of Europe.

Miss Sharer, now in London, plans to return to the United States, "most any day now," Morgan stated. The marriage will take place in this country, he said, probably in Wilmington or New York.

When she sailed from New York, Miss Sharer was accompanied by her aunt, Miss Ann Ballou, of Conneaut, Pa., while Canning was traveling with Rev. Thomas Cooper, a retired Methodist minister.

Parents Are Dead

Miss Sharer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sharer. The parents died in 1921 after having been stricken with poison after eating tainted olives. The death banquet since has been referred to as "The Famous Poison-Olive Dinner."

After the death of her parents, Miss Sharer lived with the Morgans, her relatives. She attended Laurel Hall school at Hollidaysburg, Pa., and was graduated from the fashionable Pine Manor Finishing school at Wellesley, Mass.

After her graduation in June, Miss Sharer returned here for the summer and then sailed for Europe in November.

Good Advice For Those Who Fear Deafness

Catarrh sufferers who are growing hard of hearing, should take warning from that stuffy feeling of pressure against their ear drums, those buzzing, rumbling head noises, like steam escaping, and take prompt, effective measures to stop this trouble. Head noises due to catarrh are almost always the forerunners of deafness and most deaf folks suffer from them constantly. Often the never-ending, nerve-racking "hum" drives the sufferer almost frantic and may result in a nervous breakdown.

Thanks to a remarkable medicine, it is now possible to lessen these head noises and often completely overcome them, and with their disappearance the hearing also greatly improves, and frequently can be restored to normal. From New Castle Drug, Eckerd's Cut Rate or your druggist secure a 1 oz. bottle of Parmint (Double Strength), take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. Parmint is used this way to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, and also to correct any excess secretions in the middle ear. Parmint usually gives quick, effective results.

County Commissioners Surprise Group At Court House With Their Find

While examining a bridge near New Wilmington yesterday afternoon County Commissioners Conner, Woods and Elder were surprised to see a water snake swimming in the water near the abutment. Elder fearlessly grabbed the snake by the tail, and while it tried to get away, one of the other commissioners secured an auto chain sack, in which the snake was brought to the county commissioners' office.

The sack was partly filled with sand and the neck tied with a string. It looked not unlike one of Bim Gump's gold bags. This morning Commissioner Elder announced to a little crowd in the commissioners' office that they had made a great find while out viewing a bridge yesterday. Everybody was curious as Elder placed the sack on the counter and proceeded to untie the string. One young woman, more curious than the rest, bent over eagerly to get the first glimpse, and as the bag was opened the snake jumped out like satan from a "devil's hand box".

Well, the young woman didn't exactly faint, but let out a little scream and rushed out of the room as the snake fell upon the floor and started toward her. Elder made a dive for the snake and got it by the tail. Elmer Conner held the bag, and soon his snakeship was back home. As there is no very good snake roosts around the commissioners' office they are willing to give the snake to anybody who will provide a comfortable home.

Neither Elder nor anybody else around the court house ever remembers seeing a water snake in January.

'Will-Not-Workers' Deserve No Help, City Mission Head Points Out In New Report

"We find that our new 'community log pile' affords a splendid way for us to ascertain the worth and sincerity of men who ask for aid," declares Superintendent B. J. Watkins of the City Rescue Mission in his report of activities during the period from November 27 and January 15.

Mr. Watkins' resume says he still receives flat refusals from certain men who will volunteer no work whatever in return for food, clothing or lodging. "If a man won't work," he says, "we feel that he doesn't need help."

The report expresses the opinion that New Castle or any other city would be far better off were transients of this type ordered to leave. Mr. Watkins says that 50 per cent of the men he refuses for such reasons, beg and receive help from some other eating place.

Milk, Soup Given

During the report period, the Mission distributed 2,500 gallons of milk daily to nearly 300 families. They passed out 400 gallons of soup furnished by the Jameson Memorial hospital, working in conjunction with the Mayor's Relief committee.

A total of 564 men were given beds, after they had taken the required bath.

There were 1,618 meals provided during this time.

At the "community log pile," 30 South Mercer street, the Mission is keeping busy the men who willingly agree to do their bit for a warm place to stay overnight or for a deserving meal. The chopped timber is being donated to needy families.
